Social Work Program

The MSU Social Work Program is among the first programs in the country accredited by the Council on Social Work Education (CSWE). For the past seven years, the council has been examining the 200 four-year social work programs in the U.S. This week CSWE announced that 150 of the programs met its strict accreditation standards.

The accreditation, said John W. Bauer, director of the MSU Social Work Program, "will play an important role in helping our students secure employment." Bauer said among the fields graduates of the program are working in are: child welfare, corrections, public welfare, school social work, drug and alcohol rehabilitation, parole and probation, crisis intervention, family counseling and community planning and development.

Kaliedio Festival

B. J. Thomas
Richie Lecée, Guitarist
Applejack

$4.50 Tickets in Advance
$5.00 At the Door
Tickets on Sale At The Emporium

FRIDAY, APRIL 11 — 8:00 p.m.
CARROLL COLLEGE PE CENTER

By M.G. Krebs

Frederico Fellini's "Juliet of the Spirits" was shown here last Wednesday night as part of the spring quarter Fine Film Series sponsored by the Campus Entertainment Committee. The film, which was Fellini's first movie in color, was made in 1965.

The film was unbelievably fantastic! This film and perhaps most of Fellini's work must stand in a class all its own. In a discussion of the conversion of the book A Clockwork Orange into the movie of the same title Anthony Burgess once said that few filmmakers use the movie as a medium in its own right. They usually seek to portray written material on the screen. Burgess cited Fellini as a maverick in the use of a film as a truly distinct medium. The dream-like world portrayed in "Juliet of the Spirits" could not have been portrayed, through any other currently known medium. It was both conceived and directed by Fellini.

The anxieties and fears of a middle age upper middle class woman are the theme of the story. She is faced with anxieties about her usefulness and role in society. She discovers her husband is having an affair with a beautiful model. Her whole world seems to be melting away causing her to lapse into dreaming.

Fellini seems to leave it up to the viewer to use his own imagination in interpreting much of the film. At times scenes that appear to be dreams turn out to be reality and vice versa until each melts into the other during the last third of the film. A person viewing the film could easily have to pinch himself to make sure what he is seeing is not his own dream.

In spite of this being Fellini's first color film the use of color is superbly unreal. Bright colors of evening gowns and draped contrast and yet melt into each other during a party scene. This treatment produces a warm hazy dream effect far superior to the usual dream scenes in American films.

The Campus Entertainment Committee deserves praise for putting on this free admission film series for spring quarter.

NSF stipends available

Here are the summer projects, their directors, duration number of students to be employed:

1. Domestic Water Heated Surface Combustion Gases (Douglas Polette, Agricultural and Industrial Education, 10 weeks, 1 student).
2. Energy Conservation and Building Performance (William Sample, Architecture, 12 weeks, 4 students).
3. Analytical Procedures Applied to Energy Sources and Their Pollutants (Ray Woodruff, Chemistry, 12 weeks, 2 students).
4. Geological and Geochimical Studies of Hot Springs (Robert Chadwick, Earth Sciences, 10 weeks, 1 student).
5. Photomission Studies of Surfaces (Gerard Lapere and James Anderson, Physics, 10 weeks, 1 student).
6. Materials Studies Using Van de Graaff Accelerator (Wendland Beezhold, Physics, 10 weeks, 1 student).
8. Wind Energy Supplementation of Residential Power (V. Hugo Schmidt, Physics, 10 weeks, 1 student).

ATTENTION
Veterans and War Orphans
If you are planning to attend the summer quarter at MSU, please contact the Veterans Representative as soon as possible. For further information, contact Mr. Winston, 215 Reid, 431-4312.

ANNOUNCEMENT
Inter-varsity Christian Fellowship will hold its first large group meeting Friday, April 15 at the Lambda Chi Alpha Fraternity House. Many Anderson will speak on "What is I.V.C.F.?

TYPING SERVICE
COPY—TERM PAPERS—THESIS
586-6488
MRS. RUTH L. LEWIS
Vietnamese "orphans" have families

(ZNS) - The American Friends Service Committee and the International Children's Fund are both warning that many of the so-called Vietnamese "orphans" being brought to the United States are not orphans at all.

Jane Barton of the Service Committee says that many of them have parents and family members from whom they were separated in Vietnam.

Tran Tuong Nu of the International Children's Fund states that many Vietnamese parents placed their children in state-run homes in Saigon, expecting to reclaim them later when the war was over. No war that parents would show up at the orphanages after the war to find that not only did U.S. planes bomb and strafe their country, but that U.S. planes also carried away their children.

World Airways Vice President Charles Patterson, who was aboard one of the highly publicized orphan flights last week, confirmed that many families were split up during the confusion of the war. Patterson denied, however, that any of the orphans on the World Airways flights were leaving family members behind.

Patterson was asked how it was possible to determine which children are orphans and which are not. He replied: "You can't because a child doesn't even know his (or her) name. What you've got," he said, "are those nobody is speaking for."

In Saigon last week, World Airways President Ed Daly reportedly gathered the first 54 children for the orphan evacuation "from any place we could find them." The Los Angeles Times reports that Daly did not obtain individual visas for the children. He waved, instead, a handful of 100-dollar bills at a Vietnamese official, demanding exit visas. The official quickly obtained a blanket visa for the entire group.

Griffin reports: "We only got answers to two or three of them." He says that the Warren Commission staff settled for inadequate answers without challenging government agencies. He explains: "To do so, we'd have had to challenge the integrity of the F.B.I. and the C.I.A. Back in 1964, that was something we didn't do."

Rolling Stone reporter Robert Kaiser reports that Griffin's memo questioning the official version is mysteriously missing from the National Archives.

Judge for re-opening of JFK case

(ZNS) - A former staff member of the Warren Commission who is now a judge in Cleveland, Ohio, is calling for a reopening of the investigation into the assassination of President Kennedy.

Judge Burt Griffin, an attorney who questioned dozens of witnesses in the J.F.K. assassination case, says: "The case ought to be reopened . . . it's all tied in with everything that's been happening in our government for the past 10 years."

Griffin's views are spelled out in the current edition of Rolling Stone which contains 10 pages of stories and photos relating to the 1963 assassination in Dallas.

Judge Griffin states: "I don't think some agencies were candid with us. I never thought the Dallas police were telling us the entire truth. Neither was the F.B.I."

The former Warren Commission staff member says that six months after the investigation began, he wrote out a long memo to the investigation's director asking a series of what he thought were unanswered questions about possible loopholes in the investigation and about Lee Harvey Oswald.
EDITORIAL

More money for the puppet government

How could anyone who had managed to get re-elected to Congress for 12 terms be so out of touch with the American people as to recommend more military aid for South Vietnam? Yet last night Gerald Ford did just that.

He spoke of maintaining our stature with our other allies. Would they have faith in us if we stopped supporting South Vietnam? How can we stop our support while the Soviet Union and China continue to support the other side? What about the 6000 American citizens there? These are among the questions Ford raised.

What Ford didn’t talk about is how the U.S. actually created the country of South Vietnam. After the French pulled out, the Geneva agreement of 1954 called for elections to be held throughout Vietnam. Until the election the country was to be temporarily divided in half. The Pentagon Papers revealed that the CIA estimated that free elections at that time would have resulted in a Communist government. The decision was to prevent the election. So now for over 20 years American men and money have supported a puppet government at a total cost of over $150 billion, and 45,000 American lives.

Most Americans have grown tired of spending their money on the rose colored glasses supplied by the Saigon government. They are not willing to supply the bribes that Nixon offered Saigon in order to extract a peace agreement just before the 1972 U.S. elections.

In spite of Ford’s numerous pauses in his speech the congressional applause was notably slow to come and lacking in volume. At least there is some hope.

To the Editor:

I hesitate to write in response to Pat Dawson’s “review” of Seats and Crofts. Should I state my lack of objectivity right off? Well, as the faculty advisor to the MSU Bahá’í Club and member of the Bozeman Bahá’í Community some might say I could lack objectivity. I would prefer to see it as reacting to what Dawson heard and saw from a different perspective.

I have to agree that Seats and Crofts might attract some “older people.” For this 47 year old it was my first rock concert. I thoroughly enjoyed it. I have also enjoyed Seats and Crofts by record for six years. I have enjoyed the New York Rock Ensemble and other groups as well. And for 35 years I have listened to the Metropolitan Opera Broadcasts.

In some respects I wondered if Mr. Dawson and I were at the same place. I happened to be one of the FOUR “local Bahá’ís” who did their “thing” after the press conference and it hard to imagine four people filling up an place except a closet. Yes, we did hug, we did greet each other but there was no murmuring”. Georgia Sanchez did arrange for us to meet Seats and Crofts before the concert because it was impossible to get together at any other time. She did say it was time to end the conference because S & C had to get ready to go on stage.

Seats and Crofts have always arranged to tell whoever is interested a little about the Bahá’í Faith after each concert. No one is required to stay. The concert is over. And they can go home.

From where I stood after the concert I heard people, who were not Bahá’ís, make rather favorable and supportive comments about the Bahá’ís teachings which were being talked about by Seats and Crofts.

To intimate “We May Never Pass This Way Again” with financial gain and getting rich was, I think, uncalled for. We were very pleased to have the opportunity to buy a program and my kids, ages 7, 11, and 12 who were there, were excited about the T-shirts and frisbees. It is not unusual for performers to have promotional items. Even Mickey Mouse and Shirley Temple have done it. No one forced me to buy a program, a T-shirt or a frisbee. I also have duplicate copies of each of their record albums and will buy #7 as soon as I see it.

A word to Mr. Dawson! Your closing paragraphs show your lack of understanding of the message which I believe S & C hoped to leave with you. You interpret their message with current standards and practices without hearing the depth and scope of what they are saying to all of us. Even to recreate Marcia Day with a “guru” indicates how little you understand the Bahá’í Faith. We are all teachers.

Perhaps if Janis Joplin had had more T-shirts and less dope she would have been alive today.

I find the music and words of S & C uplifting, invigorating and exciting. I found much of the audience behavior “dope”, “weird” and vomiting a rather striking contrast to just what S & C are saying to all of us:

“Father along we’ll understand. We’ll all just part of the plan. The Sun of Reality has dawned above eternity. Now, even the desert will bloom. Hurry, oh hurry, come soon. Cause even the desert will bloom. Father along we’ll be at ease. The world will be free from disease. The Most Great Peace Will come and all mankind will live as one. Even the desert will bloom. Even the desert will bloom.”

(Day, Richard 1974 in Unbound Child)

Sincerely,
George B. Gailinik
Asst. Professor of Social Work

Dawson Replies:
The concert review was my observations of a concert. It was not intended to be a theological discussion. I wrote about what happened on the stage and around it. It should have been obvious to any reader that I reported some of the fine aspects of Seats & Crofts’ philosophy. I did not call anyone hypocritical or greedy. I merely observed and reported what could have been construed as ironic to us of less enlightened consciousness.

Less dope and more T-shirts

Your observation that Mickey Mouse and Shirley Temple cashed in on promotional items leaves me wondering if you regard Seats & Crofts as on the same consumer-American level as those two. It is refreshing to see a contemporary rock group actually stand for something. Seats & Crofts do not seem to be attempting to work a con on the public. They are not flashy and commercial. They just have good management. Peace.

Colleges not hot beds of vice

To the Editor:

I have been feeling an increasing concern that the vital issue of funding for our state university system is being confused with the totally irrelevant issue of student morality. Funding for our colleges should be based on a balance between what is necessary for our young people to receive a quality education, and what the taxpayers of Montana can afford. The real question to consider is whether we can afford to cheat our young people (and their parents) if their education is not up to the best standard we can possibly manage.

The issue of morality is properly the concern of the parents. When young people are sent to college, it seems evident they should be mature enough to be trust-worthy, and when people of any age are trust-worthy, they deserve to be trusted. As expensive as any college system is, it is foolish to try to turn Montana’s into glorified babysitters.

As the mother of four children, two of them in college, I am also disturbed at the implication that our colleges are hot-beds of vice and immorality. I know and trust my children and their friends. I also like them, and I consider moral standards to be at least as high, if not higher, than those of the older generation.

Mrs. E.W. Hempleman
1100 Avenue B, N.W.
Great Falls, MT. 59404

THE STAFF

editor ........................................ pat dawson associate editor .................................. gregory prior data editor .................................... dennis brosten
photo staff .................................... ron savage
george rosko
john brandt
deb buges
ad salesman .................................... pete stein

THE EXPOSER, Friday, April 11, 1975
By Rev. C. J. Kelly

It was over a year ago that I first read the writings of Garrett Hardin. I regret that the introduction was so long in coming. A population biologist of renown, Dr. Hardin is a creative writer who refuses to judge on the basis of content. He does not argue the facts, but a reader may argue with him, of this you can be sure. Reading him gives you a better handle on the issue; abortion, natural resources, and the poverty of the rich and the poor. Frankly, calmly Dr. Hardin has recently made the case for the deliberate abandonment of the poor countries the more and, rather to see how he raises the issue and to ask some questions in response that none of us can pass on a rich policies, are act in our own best interest was interests can be served by reality ties in Bozeman for her active hemorrhage in the intensive care unit after having had extensive surgery. June - i.e. your grandchildren?

- i.e. your grandchildren?

In the final sensitive nerve is touched when he finds an act in the interest of... and they reach a... for the poor are in the other, more

The final sensitive nerve is touched when he finds an act in the interest of... and they reach a... for the poor are in the other, more... had, and how high it should fly. It sounded like Washington. Chickens came home to roost; too, from all directions. It seemed that when the... were running out of... for the failure of the Kissing Mission, for Vietnam, the failure of Congress to take... House advice on the economy, and vice versa. The day the magnitude of this... dropped 20 points.

It was all so simple to some; the Wall Street Journal policies, or our national... limitation, our population doubles every 87 years, their doubles every 35 years.

Can countries which are irresponsible in their food and population policies, Hardin asks, be expected to take the steps necessary to solve their own problems? For instance, a country with a population of 100 million people, Hardin's reasoning is powerful and troubling. And for some one living in a rich country, it is immensely seductive. What he does is to underline a complex and... within a human context that seems to have neither the will or the skill to do... much about its food supply. The final sensitive nerve is touched when he appeals to our responsibility to future generations. "Is it not desirable, " he asks, "that a least the United States reach a limit in providing aid to other countries - to the point of threatening our own resources..."

There is something attractive about proposed hard-nosed decisions. They appeal to our desire to be rid, once and for all, of nagging problems which we never seem to solve in any happy way. They are all the more attractive when their ultimate appeal is to our own self-interest, and... is not that kind of universe - or only very rarely. This is not, however, sufficient reason to go to the other side of the coin and assert that our best interest, self-interest, is not the interest of people to starve. This is reality is what the "ethics of a lifestyle" proposes.

To make this point in this way seems prejudicial - as though I have a viable alternative at hand. I don't, I suspect we are here faced with one of those issues which cannot be faced strictly in the political sense. "I am grateful to Dr. Hardin for asking me even though I cannot agree with his answer. I think he asked the right question. "What should the population of the world be, in order that need be pursued? In the pursuing of it I think there are other questions to be raised. And for these too, we are indebted to Dr. Hardin."

a) Is ours, in fact, a self-sufficient lifestyle? The oil crisis gives us cause to wonder.

b) Why is ours a rich lifestyle? Does it have something to do with our use of a disproportionate percentage of the world's resources? The opinions expressed herein are not necessarily those of the University or the Department of Geography and lead to the assertion of students. The opinions expressed herein are not necessarily those of the University or the Department of Geography and lead to the assertion of students. The opinions expressed herein are not necessarily those of the University or the Department of Geography and lead to the assertion of students. The opinions expressed herein are not necessarily those of the University or the Department of Geography and lead to the assertion of students. The opinions expressed herein are not necessarily those of the University or the Department of Geography and lead to the assertion of students. The opinions expressed herein are not necessarily those of the University or the Department of Geography and lead to the assertion of students. The opinions expressed herein are not necessarily those of the University or the Department of Geography and lead to the assertion of students. The opinions expressed herein are not necessarily those of the University or the Department of Geography and lead to the assertion of students. The opinions expressed herein are not necessarily those of the University or the Department of Geography and lead to the assertion of students. The opinions expressed herein are not necessarily those of the University or the Department of Geography and lead to the assertion of students. The opinions expressed herein are not necessarily those of the University or the Department of Geography and lead to the assertion of students. The opinions expressed herein are not necessarily those of the University or the Department of Geography and lead to the assertion of students. The opinions expressed herein are not necessarily those of the University or the Department of Geography and lead to the assertion of students. The opinions expressed herein are not necessarily those of the University or the Department of Geography and lead to the assertion of students. The opinions expressed herein are not necessarily those of the University or the Department of Geography and lead to the assertion of students. The opinions expressed herein are not necessarily those of the University or the Department of Geography and lead to the assertion of students. The opinions expressed herein are not necessarily those of the University or the Department of Geography and lead to the assertion of students. The opinions expressed herein are not necessarily those of the University or the Department of Geography and lead to the assertion of students. The opinions expressed herein are not necessarily those of the University or the Department of Geography and lead to the assertion of students. The opinions expressed herein are not necessarily those of the University or the Department of Geography and lead to the assertion of students. The opinions expressed herein are not necessarily those of the University or the Department of Geography and lead to the assertion of students. The opinions expressed herein are not necessarily those of the University or the Department of Geography and lead to the assertion of students. The opinions expressed herein are not necessarily those of the University or the Department of Geography and lead to the assertion of students. The opinions expressed herein are not necessarily those of the University or the Department of Geography and lead to the assertion of students. The opinions expressed herein are not necessarily those of the University or the Department of Geography and lead to the assertion of students. The opinions expressed herein are not necessarily those of the University or the Department of Geography and lead to the assertion of students. The opinions expressed herein are not necessarily those of the University or the Department of Geography and lead to the assertion of students. The opinions expressed herein are not necessarily those of the University or the Department of Geography and lead to the assertion of students. The opinions expressed herein are not necessarily those of the University or the Department of Geography and lead to the assertion of students. The opinions expressed herein are not necessarily those of the University or the Department of Geography and lead to the assertion of students. The opinions expressed herein are not necessarily those of the University or the Department of Geography and lead to the assertion of students. The opinions expressed herein are not necessarily those of the University or the Department of Geography and lead to the assertion of students. The opinions expressed herein are not necessarily those of the University or the Department of Geography and lead to the assertion of students. The opinions expressed herein are not necessarily those of the University or the Department of Geography and lead to the assertion of students. The opinions expressed herein are not necessarily those of the University or the Department of Geography and lead to the assertion of students. The opinions expressed herein are not necessarily those of the University or the Department of Geography and lead to the assertion of students. The opinions expressed herein are not necessarily those of the University or the Department of Geography and lead to the assertion of students. The opinions expressed herein are not necessarily those of the University or the Department of Geography and lead to the assertion of students. The opinions expressed herein are not necessarily those of the University or the Department of Geography and lead to the assertion of students. The opinions expressed herein are not necessarily those of the University or the Department of Geography and lead to the assertion of students. The opinions expressed herein are not necessarily those of the University or the Department of Geography and lead to the assertion of students. The opinions expressed herein are not necessarily those of the University or the Department of Geography and lead to the assertion of students. The opinions expressed herein are not necessarily those of the University or the Department of Geography and lead to the assertion of students. The opinions expressed herein are not necessarily those of the University or the Department of Geography and lead to the assertion of students. The opinions expressed herein are not necessarily those of the University or the Department of Geography and lead to the assertion of students. The opinions expressed herein are not necessarily those of the University or the Department of Geography and lead to the assertion of students. The opinions expressed herein are not necessarily those of the University or the Department of Geography and lead to the assertion of students. The opinions expressed herein are not necessarily those of the University or the Department of Geography and lead to the assertion of students. The opinions expressed herein are not necessarily those of the University or the Department of Geography and lead to the assertion of students. The opinions expressed herein are not necessarily those of the University or the Department of Geography and lead to the assertion of students. The opinions expressed herein are not necessarily those of the University or the Department of Geography and lead to the assertion of students. The opinions expressed herein are not necessarily those of the University or the Department of Geography and lead to the assertion of students. The opinions expressed herein are not necessarily those of the University or the Department of Geography and lead to the assertion of students. The opinions expressed herein are not necessarily those of the University or the Department of Geography and lead to the assertion of students. The opinions expressed herein are not necessarily those of the University or the Department of Geography and lead to the assertion of students. The opinions expressed herein are not necessarily those of the University or the Department of Geography and lead to the assertion of students. The opinions expressed herein are not necessarily those of the University or the Department of Geography and lead to the assertion of students. The opinions expressed herein are not necessarily those of the University or the Department of Geography and lead to the assertion of students. The opinions expressed herein are not necessarily those of the University or the Department of...
Fresno cowboy leads rodeo competition

The defending national collegiate all-around cowboy, Dudley Little of Fresno State, climbed back into the lead again this month, according to statistics released today by the National Intercollegiate Rodeo Association.

With 37 of the 115 collegiate rodeos scheduled for the season completed, Little has accumulated a total of 871 points. Chandler, points, has a total of 855 completed, Little has second place in Kansas is in third with 834 points. Diana Luthi of Fort Hays State in Kansas is in third place with Lamar Roche of Brigham Young University and Paul Tierney of the National Intercollegiate Rodeo, according to Washington for the annual rodeo June 17-21 at MSU. The top two women's teams from each of the NIRA's 10 regions will compete for team titles during the championship rodeo.

MSU foils again

The MSU Fencing Team swept the Boise State University Invitational last Saturday, March 29. Team captain, Lewin Dover, a senior from Billings, took first place in Men's Foil, and Tim Smith, also of Billings, allowed only one defeat to secure second. Being knocked out of the first round of 45 fencers, Jeff Leischner, Billings, came back to take first in consolation.

The six attending universities presented a well rounded field of competitors from Women's foil also, and freshman Robin Scoles presented a well rounded field of competitors from Women's foil also, and freshman Robin Scoles

Carolina coach coming to msu

Coach Lou Holtz of North Carolina State will head the football portion of the 17th annual MSU coaching School. The school is scheduled June 9-13 on the MSU campus, said athletic director Tom Parar.

Holtz, who has won more games in a three-year period (26-9-2) than any other coach in NC State's history, is a master of the Veer-T offense. Also, he has earned a reputation as an outstanding motivator.

Holtz' last two teams have played in bowl games, beating Kansas in the 1973 Liberty Bowl and tying favored Houston 31-31 in the 1974 Astro-Bluebonnet Bowl.

Holtz, 38, was head coach at William and Mary from 1969-71. Before that he was on Woody Hayes' staff at Ohio State. He was an assistant to Paul Dietzel at South Carolina from 1966-67.

Earlier, Parar announced that Coach Denny Crum of Louisville would lecture on basketball at the MSU Coaching School. His Louisville teams have won 98 games and lost 22. The Cardinals finished third in the 1975 NCAA championships after losing to UCLA by one point in the semi-finals.
Women’s track team travels to tourney

Weather permitting, the women’s track team will compete against some talented athletes Saturday in Columbia Falls.

Scheduled to compete in the Flathead Community College Invitational are Seattle Pacific College, a pair of Canadian schools, MSU and host Flathead.

MSU Coach Cherry Spurlock said Seattle Pacific is the nation’s top-rated women’s team. Flathead is defending state champion and has another good team.

Tennis talk

An MSU faculty-alumni tennis team defeated the Bobcats varsity in a recent indoor dual meet, 5-4.

This weekend the Bobcats will travel to Billings for a meet with the Yellowstone Racquet Club.

Results of the faculty-alumni meet: Jim Cutler, faculty-alumni, def. Mark Skelte, 7-6, 6-2; Roy Johnson, faculty-alumni, def. Pat Richards, 2-6, 6-4, 6-2; Jerry Peach, faculty-alumni, def. Kermit Eck, 6-0, 6-2; Chuck Robinson, MSU, def. Hervy Macferren, 6-2, 3-6, 7-6, 5-7; Eric Peterson, MSU, def. Bob Story, 6-7, 6-2; Don Doud, MSU, def. Al Green, 6-3, 6-3; Peach-Cutter def. Skelte-Richards, 6-3, 6-2; Johnson-Macferren def. Eck-Larry Silverman, 6-2, 6-1; Bryan Knight-Robinson def. Story-Green, 7-6, 6-2.

“Tennis will be quite a challenge for us,” Spurlock said. “I’m just hoping we can have some good times and distances.”

Sponsors to watch

Sponsors to watch.

This week’s meet: Jim Macferren, 6-2.

Robinson, Green, athletes Flathead schools, MSU Invitational said state champion and has another.

The Bobcats are in the midst of a tough 33-match season. Last year’s California Tour (over spring break) produced 2 team wins and 7 losses; this year’s trip ended with 7 wins and 4 losses. Experience wise, the 1975 Bobcats have only 6 years total college play behind them on the entire team! They are the best ever at Montana State University, both on the varsity and campus-community levels.

Tennis no longer seasonal sport

The sport of tennis is growing larger at Montana State University, both on the varsity and community levels. Until next year, tennis was a completely fair-weather sport; now the indoor courts in the P.E. complex have made it possible for the Stevens to play the year round. The number of people playing tennis this year can be best exemplified by the fact that some 400 persons were not able to get into the beginning P.E. classes. Petitions are now circulating about the campus, in an effort to increase both the number of outdoor and indoor courts.

On the varsity level, MSU is represented by two inter-collegiate teams – a men’s and the new women’s team. Varsity tennis first began in 1960 and now is at the same level of the larger NCAA schools. The men’s team, with the largest schedule in the nation, is the best ever at MSU. The top ten (listed by position) are Mark Skelte, Pat Richards, Kermit Eck, Chuck Robinson, Eric Peterson, Don Doud, Larry Silverman, Bryan Knight, and Lyle Mitchell. Comparisons between the 1974 and 1975 seasons are very encouraging. A total of 18 matches were played by the 1974 team, whereas the 1975 Bobcats are in the midst of a tough 33-match season. Last year’s California Tour (over spring break) produced 2 team wins and 7 losses; this year’s trip ended with 7 wins and 4 losses. Experience wise, the 1975 Bobcats have only 6 years total college play behind them on the entire team! The potential for the few next years is tremendous, for many outstanding high school seniors have indicated that they will be attending MSU next year, when blended with the young lettermen already here, the future for the Bobcat team looks very bright.

The competition in Bozeman is varied and improving. Players range from the beginning level all the way up to some who are ranked in the Pacific Northwest Region of the United States.\n
The Associated Students of Montana State University

Call for Editor Applications

Media Board is requesting applications for the editorships of the Montanan, Exponent, Free Quarter and General Manager of KGLT Radio Station which may be obtained in the ASMSU Office. Application deadline is April 14 at 1:00 p.m.

For further information, contact Alan Wallace at 994-2933 or through the ASMSU Office.
Help get your parents through college.

Your college education can be pretty tough going. Especially on your parents. Because the cost of learning is going up as fast as the cost of living.

The Army ROTC Two-Year Program can help. Attend a six-week Basic Camp this summer at no obligation. You'll draw pay and travel allowance while you look over and decide on the program. And you'll have a chance to compete for a full scholarship.

If you enroll, you'll receive $100 a month while you're in school for the next two years. For you vets, that's in addition to your VA benefits and you may qualify without the Basic Camp. You'll be earning an officer's commission along with your degree. And gaining experience and self-discipline as you develop. Because let's face it; you're not just helping your parents through college. You're helping yourself through life.

For more information, send in the attached coupon or call Army ROTC. The more you look at it, the better it looks.

---

Feds training SWATS

(ZNS) The Federal Government has been quietly training and financing hundreds of paramilitary "SWAT" teams attached to local police agencies across the United States. The actual number of these F.B.I.-trained "special weapons and tactics" teams may run into the thousands. The figure cannot be obtained because the F.B.I. in Washington states it will not divulge the number of domestic police forces which currently maintain bureau-trained SWAT units.

However, past checks by newspapers in the Washington, D.C. and San Francisco areas indicate that each of these areas alone maintains at least 30 separate federally-trained SWAT teams. If the Washington and San Francisco figures are any indication, there could be as many as 1000 SWAT units in existence nationwide.

SWAT teams are military-like units of riflemen trained to handle so-called "sniper situations" in urban areas. It was a Los Angeles SWAT team which wiped out six members of the Symbionese Liberation Army last May.

A typical SWAT unit is armed with tear gas grenades, long range sniper rifles, semi-automatic M-16 rifles and bullet proof helmets and vests. Most units are trained at F.B.I. academies, although a few have been trained directly by the military at U.S. Marine bases.

The Federal government's Law Enforcement Assistance Administration— the L.E.A.A. is funding many SWAT training projects, but the L.E.A.A. has declined to release any figures.

The L.E.A.A. states simply that cost figures for the nationwide SWAT training programs are "unavailable."

Agnew's love story slows down

(ZNS) Former Vice President Spiro Agnew's love story novel has apparently come to a grinding halt.

It was almost a year ago when the first and only installment of the Agnew novel, titled A Very Special Relationship, appeared in The Ladies Home Journal.

Since that time, Agnew has failed to produce another chapter.

The novel is about a vice president of the United States, Porter Canfield, who seems headed for a secret love affair with the "beautiful and provocative" Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare, Meredith Lord.

Why Agnew's book remains unfinished is a mystery. The Los Angeles Times suggests that Agnew may have been struck by "writer's Block" and simply can't go on. Other cynics are joking that his ghost writer died suddenly.

Agnew, however, insists he's simply been too busy with other projects.

Big 3 wants to put Chilean junta on wheels

(ZNS) Three major U.S. auto firms have submitted bids to the Chilean government offering to help expand the car manufacturing industry in Chile. General Motors, Ford and Chrysler have all submitted the bids as part of a $544 million international plan to restore the auto industry under the Chilean Junta.

American support of the Chilean industry is being protested by United Auto Workers member Nick Rabkin, who is organizing a nationwide protest in the United States against U.S. involvement in Chile. Rabkin claims that the auto industry in Chile was sabotaged several years ago as part of "a planned campaign of economic destabilization of the Allende government by the C.I.A., Multinational Corporations and the American Embassy."

The protest organizers say they object to the investment of American money in a military ruled country abroad while more than 260,000 auto workers are on the unemployment roles in the United States.
Jersey against their food just popped into a freezer and because, according to the charges, quality, operation out to grumbled.

For years cafeteria food was equalled only by the weather as one of the issues everyone talked about but no one did anything about. Today, however, cafeteria managers have been faced with lowering numbers of student revolts as well as rising food costs and the invasion of fast food marauders.

BORED BY THE BOARD

"At least the boycott will save the cost of three Di-gels today," quipped a student at the University of Connecticut at Storrs, where North Campus residents staged a one-day dining hall boycott last month to protest the "quality" of the food.

Food quality has always been a rallying cry in many cafeteria protests across the country. But "quality" has meant everything from spoiled food to a lack of menu variety.

For instance, a spokesman for a foods committee at the University of Missouri/Columbia complained that, "One type of meat has several different names, but it all tastes the same." The leftovers are usually just popped into a freezer and used for another meal, he grumbled.

The issue is not so much food quality, but student boredom, said a University of Missouri official. Students, like anyone else, tire of eating the same menu in the same dining hall three times a day, seven days a week for months on end.

Meanwhile, because such general meal malaise was charges leveled by students at Ramapo State College in New Jersey and others. "The food service, operated by Saga Foods. Most small colleges like Ramapo can't afford to operate their own food service, so they contract the operation out to national firms like Saga, Canteen or Servnation.

At Ramapo, students staged three boycotts against Saga, the largest one occurring after Saga fired two student workers because, according to the protesters, they refused to serve stale food. After more firings and more protests, a Saga facility on campus was closed down by local health officials.

Finally, Saga announced that it has lost almost $40,000 in its last two years at Ramapo and wanted out of its contract with the college.

THE ECONOMICS OF FEEDING

Stomachs aside, students at many schools have also protested rules that require them to live in dorms and take meals on campus. For instance, with the help of the student union organizing project, students at the University of Massachusetts/Amherst have filed suit in federal court challenging university regulations that force single students under 21 to live on campus and buy a meal ticket unless excused for medical reasons.

School officials have usually argued that such regulations are financially necessary: where room and board are tied together, profits in one area can help offset losses in the other. With rising food costs, however, cafeteria managers have reported that it's increasingly difficult to make a profit feeding students.

Schools that operate their own food services have been hit by rising labor costs, according to Clark Dehaven, executive director of the National Association of College and University Food Services. Dehaven said that increasing numbers of cafeterias are trying to increase the use of self-service and self-busing.

Another change has been the growing utilization of meat substitutes and other food extenders, he said, but usually these require extensive testing. "If you go real slow, they'll (students) accept it," said Dehaven, "but if you make a real change, they won't go for it."

"Faced with the same economic situation, the large cafeteria chains have cut costs through mass buying and vertical integration, that is, artificial food extenders. She said she doesn't know of any chain that does.

Saga has tested things like fake cheese, chemical tomatoes and artificial eggs and found them wanting. Except for some "special units" Saga food services all use "real things" and cook from "scratch recipes," she claimed.

THE MYSTIQUE OF THE BIG MAC

Mired by student complaints and rising costs, campus cafeterias have also begun to face a new threat: the arrival of fast food chains on campus. Flushed with mercenary zeal, college and university unions across the country have started leasing their space to large-volume food chains like McDonald's, Shoney's Pizza and Hardie's Food Systems.

As an experiment, McDonald's opened its largest outlet on the Ohio State campus last fall and found the operation so successful that it opened another on-campus outlet at the University of Cincinnati. College unions at both schools, which get about a 6% cut from McDonald's, have reported that sales have increased dramatically.

A spokesman for McDonald's refused to say how many more college outlets were planned, but said the firm was looking "from coast to coast."

McDonald's chains in particular are so successful that the firm only accepts about 10% of the thousands of franchise applications it receives each year. The average entrepreneur must pay $150,000 to buy in, but he can expect to gross about $508,000 each year.

But the debate is intense enough that many food service directors are watching carefully the fast food success of giving students only what they want. Plagued by menu complaints and inflation, lured by the profits of McDonald's and others, they have just about convinced that the way to a student's stomach is through his heart.
ANNOUNCEMENT

Watt's amendment was not approved which passed consideration of the Senate yesterday, which would strike language in the original bill requiring that foundation money be placed in the state treasury. The motion passed, but Fasbender's move to pass consideration for the day made all action void.

When the systems bill comes before the Senate body today, it will contain three proposals for additional funds which have already been approved by the Senate Finance and Claims committee. The three amendments, proposed by Bozeman Senator Paul Boylan, provide extra monies for MSU, U of M, and Northern Montana College, to compensate for certain deficiencies in the original budget.

The committee approved a $350,000 increase for Graduate Teacher Assistants at MSU, and an additional $500,000 in faculty benefits, as Boylan requested. The third amendment was changed somewhat from the Senator's original proposal, which called for approximately $700,000 in additional funds to make up for the low state classification pay plan. The committee reduced additional funds for the pay plan by increasing some employees pay by a half-step the first year, and completing the step on the pay scale the second year.

Other action in the Finance and Claims body saw passage of an amendment limiting any salary increase for a university president or the Commissioner of Higher Education. Any salary increase would be limited to 5% each year of the biennium.

The entire university systems budget, as recommended by the Finance and Claims committee, will be debated on the Senate floor today and will be passed at a tentative vote on the Senate floor. Any additional amendments, such as Watt's $2.5 million increase, will also be debated and voted on.

Senate to decide future of university system

By Ginny Prior

The university systems budget experienced a brief stay on the floor of the Senate late Thursday afternoon, before Senator Larry Fasbender made the motion which passed consideration of the bill to the next day.

Two amendments to the bill were offered before the Senate body including a proposal by Missoula Senator, Robert Watt, to add an additional $2.5 million to the university system 'kitty'. Watt's amendment was not discussed on the floor, but if approved would be added to the already $4 million 'kitty' passed by the Senate Finance and Claims committee earlier this week. These extra funds would be left up to the Board of Regents for distribution between the university units.

A second amendment was discussed and voted on in the Senate yesterday, which would strike language in the original bill requiring that foundation money be placed in the state treasury account. The motion passed, but Fasbender's move to pass consideration for the day made all action void.

When the systems bill comes before the Senate body today, it will contain three proposals for additional funds which have already been approved by the Senate Finance and Claims committee. The three amendments, proposed by Bozeman Senator Paul Boylan, provide extra monies for MSU, U of M, and Northern Montana College, to compensate for certain deficiencies in the original budget.

The committee approved a $350,000 increase for Graduate Teacher Assistants at MSU, and an additional $500,000 in faculty benefits, as Boylan requested. The third amendment was changed somewhat from the Senator's original proposal, which called for approximately $700,000 in additional funds to make up for the low state classification pay plan. The committee reduced additional funds for the pay plan by increasing some employees pay by a half-step the first year, and completing the step on the pay scale the second year.

Other action in the Finance and Claims body saw passage of an amendment limiting any salary increase for a university president or the Commissioner of Higher Education. Any salary increase would be limited to 5% each year of the biennium.

The committee also voted to strike the amendment which would prohibit the regents from switching any more than 10% of the units programs to another unit.

The entire university systems budget, as recommended by the Finance and Claims committee, will be debated on the Senate floor today and will be passed at a tentative vote on the Senate floor. Any additional amendments, such as Watt's $2.5 million increase, will also be debated and voted on.

Senate revives Educational TV funding

By Ginny Prior

Montana's controversial educational television system, which was assumed by many to be a dying dream, was miraculously saved on the floors of the Senate Thursday afternoon.

The 29-17 vote served to provide funding for ETV operations at a level of $420,000 for each year of the biennium, with an additional $250,000 for equipment the first year. The monies for equipment are contingent on a matching federal grant.

The supporting move in the Senate was spurred by Bozeman Senator Paul Boylan, Senator Larry Fasbender from Fort Shaw, and Senator Stan Stephens from Havre.

Ken Clark, executive director of the new educational station, expressed his approval of the Senate decision and his confidence in the programs adoption from the start. "Public television has never been turned down in the U.S. and I was sure that Montana would not pass up the chance for educational programming. We're all very pleased with the Senate decision, and we feel we have a clear signal from the state to go forward."

Clark touched briefly on plans for the stations programming. Included in the format will be three basic types of programming: public affairs, cultural affairs, and learning resource. The learning resource programming will concentrate on education for people of all ages.

COX and MURNION Are Running for SENATE

You Owe Yourself an Oly.

Snow bull

It's a fact: Army ROTC offers you more. More adventure, more challenge, and more opportunity. And now you can complete a four-year ROTC program in just two years.

You'll also receive $100 a month, tax-free, during your junior and senior years (for you vets, that's in addition to your GI Bill).

Army ROTC also guarantees you a job when you graduate...at $9000 plus!

Snow bull, Army ROTC has a lot to offer. Check it out. Get all the facts by contacting: Sergeant Bob Hoth, 994-4044. Military Science Department

ANNOUNCEMENT

Gallatin County Study Commission to hold first planning meeting, Monday, April 14th at 7:30 p.m. in the Courthouse Community Room.

Office of the Justices of Peace Courts and Constables are scheduled for the Monday evening study and review.

Previous studies included the following offices and departments: Clerk and Recorder, Assessor, Auditor, Supt of Schools, Courthouse Bookkeeper, Treasurer, Health Department and the Welfare Department.

The public is invited.

Bozeman Montana Woolen Shop

NOW OPEN
"Direct from the Mills"
We carry Fabrics, Sportswear, Camper Blankets, Sweaters, Jackets & Caps
We Carry Fabrics, Sportswear, Camper Blankets, Sweaters, Jackets & Caps
3100 West Main (Just West of City Limits on Highway 191)

BOZEMAN MILL SALESROOM PRICES

Montana's spring quarter enrollment is at an all-time high for the institution, according to Registrar J. E. Frazier. As of this week, 7,654 students were registered, with some late registrations expected to put the gross enrollment figure even higher.

Wide Highway Retreads

$15.95

 LeBron's

1 Block North of 1st National

10 — THE EXPONENT — Friday, April 11, 1975
Ask the Librarian

Suggestion:
I am aware that most, not all students have weekend jobs. Never on Friday and Saturday nights, but there are those of you who would like to use the library facilities on weekends. Even if you don’t have time to use the library open during the day, you may be able to use the space conveniently. We have studied the matter of hours of opening long and carefully, and we have settled upon hours which serve the greatest number of users at times of heaviest use. Friday and Saturday nights are, as you say, times when most students are out on the town; they are times when it is most appropriate for the library to conserve its resources.

Suggestion:
Most industrial firms operate on the 2nd floor. I’ ll Play People to the fact that certain facilities are operated on the 2nd floor, especially in the evenings. Response:
Saturday nights of the 2nd floor. I’ ll Play People to the fact that certain facilities are operated on the 2nd floor, especially in the evenings. Response:
Saturday nights of the 2nd floor.

Suggestion:

When you don’t have enough time to check out a movie, just ask the attendant (in a voice that carries) if the machine you want to use is available, and if the attendant can answer your question and go on working for whoever is ahead of you.

Suggestion:

Response: Strictly Speaking is now available for circulations. The General Book Selection Committee will consider purchase of the Herriot book for the collection. The Herriot book has been out of print and there is a strong demand for it. The book was published in 1972.

Suggestion:
Get a fake dinosaur for the plant corner. Response: We thought that what the abstract sculpture would be might be out of the pool represented. Use your imagination.

Suggestion:
1) Please tell what periodicals (bound) can be checked out.
2) Don’t make students have to guess which bound periodicals might be out of the pool represented. Can’t you provide a list of the ones that can’t? It would save steps.

SUGGESTION; Suggestion:
I’m aware that most, not all students have weekend jobs. Never on Friday and Saturday nights, but there are those of you who would like to use the library facilities on weekends. Even if you don’t have time to use the library open during the day, you may be able to use the space conveniently. We have studied the matter of hours of opening long and carefully, and we have settled upon hours which serve the greatest number of users at times of heaviest use. Friday and Saturday nights are, as you say, times when most students are out on the town; they are times when it is most appropriate for the library to conserve its resources.

Suggestion:
Most industrial firms operate on the 2nd floor. I’ll Play People to the fact that certain facilities are operated on the 2nd floor, especially in the evenings. Response:
Saturday nights of the 2nd floor.

Suggestion:
When you don’t have enough time to check out a movie, just ask the attendant (in a voice that carries) if the machine you want to use is available, and if the attendant can answer your question and go on working for whoever is ahead of you.

Suggestion:

Response: Strictly Speaking is now available for circulations. The General Book Selection Committee will consider purchase of the Herriot book for the collection. The Herriot book has been out of print and there is a strong demand for it. The book was published in 1972.

Suggestion:
Get a fake dinosaur for the plant corner. Response: We thought that what the abstract sculpture would be might be out of the pool represented. Use your imagination.

Suggestion:
1) Please tell what periodicals (bound) can be checked out.
2) Don’t make students have to guess which bound periodicals might be out of the pool represented. Can’t you provide a list of the ones that can’t? It would save steps.

SUGGESTION;
Tea Parties
of the Revolution

Although tea was cheaper in the colonies, even with the British tea tax, than it was in England without the tax, the beverage came to symbolize the hated British oppression to the colonists.

When the British East India Company ship Dartmouth arrived in Boston in April, 1774, loaded with taxable tea, the local populace gathered.

A group of concerned citizens, calling themselves the Mohawks, donned disguises and departed in an orderly manner to Griffins Wharf.

There the "tea party" was born.

The citizens told the shipowner that the tea must be returned to England. The owner refused to go.

The citizens then placed a torch in his hands and compelled him to burn his cargo of tea, ship and all.

The captain would then be placed under arrest and forced to drink all of his tea. This sometimes took up to twelve years.

The citizens spread rapidly. Ten months later, the ship Peggy Stewart, filled with delicious tea, sailed into Annapolis, Maryland.

Not so fortunate were the captains of some ships that landed at ports in the more remote areas of the colonies.

There the patriotic citizens, in their efforts to outshine their neighbors, would often unload the entire cargo...