

Rhonda, internal monologue during picnic, watches Rosellen (who can't have baby without medical tinkering) and Charlene (who won't have baby until she and Owen are through with Fort Peck?)...

or just: One can't, and one won't.

Owen (and Charlene?) wonder if things are okay between Neil & Rosellen?

target practice scene:

(See Robert Elliott FHS card in Neil/Phoebe file)

target is dynamite cap on stump. Neil/Phoebe and Bruce/Rhonda are the shooters, somewhere along bank of the Missouri; stumps maybe left from steamboat woodhawk cutting? Just the four of them, on an outing.

--using a .22 which had been run over by car; left leaning against bumper by Bruce, car ran over it and bent the barrel, to fury of Hugh etc. Bruce insouciantly straightened the barrel by sticking it into bumper and bending it back, somehow getting it just right, so that the rifle shoots at least as well as before.

--The surprise winner, hitting the cap and blowing the stump into slivers, is Rhonda.

"Oh, go ahead."

shooting contact?

"Can't stand prosperity, huh? In that case, I'm game to take your money."

So you think you have the bragging rights to that?

Strange how people who hadn't yet been to Alberta and Manitoba thought they had bragging rights to those places.

"About to famish?"

"Pretty damn close."

Gonna be a dilly, I can see that.

"Here's one." (contest of some kind?)

"Think we can?"

"Don't see why not. Here, you..."

"Child's play." (someone says of something easy; Darius abt the danwork?)

"Depends on child."

schemophilia

Gwen thinks: "Bri's problem, he's a schemophiliac."

There's nonsense we haven't even thought of yet, so let's get to work.
