

after Two Medicine National Forest is est'd, Angus (and Rob too?) has to rely on rented land for his sheep.

--or does he have a forest permit?

early in book, Scotch and other accents maybe should predominate; about the time of Stanley's appearance, language becomes more ~~more~~ modern Montanan.

... you've got another think coming.

~~me & Jack, as resentment against Mac?~~

- me & Angus - too feud?

No - this doesn't need to be made explicit

Angus teaches Varick the prrr sound to sheep

Stanley builds the English Creek ranger station.

At about the same time, Rob Barclay builds the line cabin near the forest boundary fence.
