after Two Medicine National Forest is est'd, Angus (and Rob too?) has to rely on rented land for his sheep.

—or does he have a forest permit?
early in book, Scotch and other accents maybe should predominate; about the time of Stanley's appearance, language becomes more modern Montanan.
... you've got another think coming.

- use c-folds, as resistance against Mac

- use a augmenting drug?
Angus teaches Varick the prrr sound to sheep

No - this doesn't need to be made explicit Stanley builds the English Creek ranger station.

At about the same time, Rob Barclay builds the line cabin near the forest boundary fence.
