

Stanzas of debate were not Wennberg's style. He preferred to bang a point, go on to the next if it mis-echoed.

What are you gaping at? Want a good look, I'll take your eyelids off for you.

Wennberg puffed his cheeks. Argu^m_g with Melander never turned out well.

have some reference back to W's gambling

W broke B of that by hurling B's blankets onto the ~~worst~~ wet spot...

~~Era~~ W before now had not been a Bible-spouter...

W himself was a kind of human anvil...

His anvil strength...

W: have biblical quotes creep increasingly into his interior monologues?

Heat and hammer in their heavy dance (at his forge)

He could read people, but not situations.

Combustible as he was, W had a regard for...

this probation W bore uneasily...

It could be thought, with no huge imaginative effort, that some ancestor of W's wielded ~~an~~ a Viking axe, ~~xxx~~ chopping limbs from the Saxons.

Make W fastidious, as if perpetually warring against blacksmith's grime?

Williamsburg wheelwright:

--he ladled water around forge coal: concentrates the heat

--twin taps of his hammer between working strokes: peen, peen, CLANG

W reached down beside the forge and brought up a wooden bucket. From it he ladled water in a sputtering circle on the charcoal, concentrating its heat into the glowing bull's-eye where he would work metal.

(possible use: p. 42, M-W scene, after M's "school me")

Melander in his ship days had heard every complaint ever whittled by the tongue of man. So W....

W as usual complained heavily.

M on ship had heard every complaint that might ever be made.

W was in a grump again.
