diamond cross

(1956, Moody Home Ranch 229 CO (as of 1911)

"Reckon you could hold a course to ride diamond crosses?" "I could try," I shouted, "but I don't know what they are." "Light down!" he told me, then took a stick and drew a long straight line in the sand. "That's the wind." Then he drew three or four diamonds straddling it, with their points meeting along the line. "Them's diamonds. You ride this zigzag; I'll ride this one! Keep the wind blowin' your horse's mane acrost his right ear till you think you've gone a quarter mile, then turn him so's to bring it across his left. Go a quarter mile and stand still till I meet you!"

McDonald: Mormon "milk ranches"

→ "They used to have what they called milk ranches. There'd be maybe 40 acres of flat grassland...(Mormons) used to send their youngsters up to these places and build 'em a little cabin and a spring house and they'd milk their cows there during the summer. They'd make butter...maybe 75, 100 lbs and every week they'd come and get that and take it into town to sell....They just grubbed out the country, just made dust beds of it, ~~xand~~ In those days we tagged the cattle, every animal (that had a permit)...(had 1-head permits) Every spring in March we'd have to snip out the old tags out of the ears and put in these new aluminum ones; they were always different colored or shaped and they had the dates and so on...
