

The sun sets up the first parts of the day--slanting shadows down from ridgelines, deeper shadows of valleys, the broad distinct line of silhouette on the high horizon, highlights on the meadow flowers.

Toby?

letter from Paul Holte in '86 letters file:

"Lost my big toenail when 5 years old by going into the barn and into a stall with one of Dad's horses and had my foot stepped on."

Paul

I fell heir to the cookstove.

Threatens Damon: "If you tell..."

Paul in retaining his dreams is something like an idiot savant.

--He recounts them to Toby, who listens avidly as if they were fairy tales.

Someone overhears: Moe, Rose, Oliver?

...flung some food into themselves and (went back to work) (started trucking)

Big Bell?

rough edges weren't off the country, & they still aren't.

Toenails are proof against God.

--Morrie says? (after Toby's accident)

to Oliver

"Tobe?" (Oliver has him read to him)

"Aw, all right."

--King's Remembrancer?
