

"I thought WAFs only go for each other?"

"Hundred percent? No way. There's always going to be somebody one in a bunch that likes ~~to sample~~

w/ a taste for meat

"Pres, no."

"Mmm, I think ^syess. Doesn't Sergeant Louise look fuckulent to you?"

Sgt. Louise looked to me like she could tear the thing off a guy

To which I say, 'Fuck thee.'

late '50's/early 60's use of "like" as an intensifier: "It's like cold. "Like hi."
--see Jerry Oster "Metamorphosis..." letters column clip in "inventive wordages" file

"Be a guy, Webb." (i.e., speaker is asking a favor)

"Don't kid yourself."

You suppose? (convstn interjection, meaning "Think so?")

What I miss is...

(Mariah?)

"I don't that much give a shit what you think."

It sounds like it.

"Don't give me that." (i.e., come on, tell the truth)

"With the undodgeable aim of an asshole, he let fly."

"No prompting, let me guess. ~~Am~~ Terry Southern, somewhere in the last hundred pages of Candy where it gets hot and heavy."

"Not even close."

"(Purdy? author of Kitten?)" Micky Spillane, though it sounds kind of dirty even for him?"

"Spillane, Schmillane."

"Up I give." Who wrote that?

"Me." Right now.

"Oh God. Do Lawd, I'm in the ~~man~~ hands of a word maniac."

"Why draft us?" (Keith asks?)

"Because we're there." (Frew answers)