Dear Sir or Madam,

Enclosed is a booking form and a check for $30 U.S. to cover the deposit on accommodations for the week of 21 July through 28 July.

As my wife and I will be in Edinburgh to accomplish research for my next book, we are most desirous in having quiet, private quarters in which to work. Your advice here would be most welcome. I have indicated our first choice to be a two-person flat in Sempills Close; second choice, a twin room in Geddes Hall. Since we have not seen the accommodations, please book us for the most private quarters with the best work space.

Should that require us to stay in Pollock Halls, we are willing to be booked there.

With thanks for your attention.

Sincerely

HOLIDAY ACCOMMODATION FOR FAMILIES AND INDIVIDUALS

General Information and Booking Conditions

General

Edinburgh, Scotland's Capital City, is rivalled only in the United Kingdom by London in its popularity as a tourist centre. No city in Europe combines more beauty, history and romance. The city is proud of her ancient history and traditions, is modern in her outlook, as becomes an important cultural and commercial centre. She also offers the visitor everything to make the ideal holiday centre.

The City is rich in historic buildings and boasts many famous stores.

Places of interest are innumerable and include:

The Castle – with its historical apartments, Scottish National War Memorial and United Services Museum.

Canongate Tolbooth – This building, dating from 1591, is one of the most striking features of the Royal Mile.

Edinburgh Wax Museum, 142 High Street – Wax figures drawn from Scotland’s political, literary and social past.

Hillend Ski Centre – Pentland Hills. Largest artificial Ski Slope in Britain, where equipment can be hired.

Huntly House Museum, Canongate – Many interesting exhibits relating to the Burghal life of Edinburgh during past centuries.

National Gallery of Scotland, Mound – Collection of works by continental and English masters with an important section of Scottish Artists.

National Museum of Antiquities and the National Portrait Gallery of Scotland, east end of Queen Street – Treasures of everyday life in Scotland from stone-age down the centuries.

St. Giles' High Kirk, High Street – City Church on this site for 1,000 years with present buildings dating from 14th century.

Scottish National Zoological Park, Corstorphine Road – Scotland’s biggest pay-at-the-gate attraction, one of Britain's best Zoos set in 18 acres of parkland on Corstorphine Hill.

We feel confident that with all Edinburgh has to give you and the accommodation facilities available within the University that your choice to holiday here will be one which you will not regret.

University Accommodation

PATRICK GEDDES HALL, LAWNMARKET, EDINBURGH – Occupying a quite magnificent site in the heart of Edinburgh overlooking Princes Street Gardens and commanding unforgettable views over the New Town to the Firth of Forth and beyond to the Hills of Fife, Patrick Geddes Hall offers an ideal venue for the visitor to Edinburgh. It is a prime example of late 18th century Scottish vernacular architecture and is the newest of Edinburgh University's Halls of Residence to be refurbished, offering up to date facilities and every comfort.

The accommodation comprises comfortable twin bedded and a limited number of single rooms and terms available are Bed and full Scottish Breakfast.

Open July to September

SEMPILL’S CLOSE, SELF CATERING FLATS – Sempill's Close lies at the heart of historic Edinburgh where the Royal Mile narrows as it climbs up Castle Hill to the Esplanade of Edinburgh Castle only 100 yards away. The original Sempill's Close to the west of the present building was a narrow pend, or alleyway leading to 'Lord Sempill's Lodging', the old house at its foot built in the 17th century and owned for a time in the following century by the 12th Lord Sempill who commanded part of the English army against the Highlanders at Culloden.
It is in two parts, the rear portion being of 17th century date and the remaining a typical example of the kind of house which at one time occupied this whole area - turnspike stair, panelled rooms, an interesting roof line and a general atmosphere of character. The front portion, facing Castle Hill, was built in the 19th century. Both parts have now been modernised and provide comfortable accommodation in three x four person flats and two x two person flats.

Availability July to September - Weekly lets only Saturday to Saturday.

Charges - please see booking form - Booking:

Dear sir:

This is to confirm the booking of a twin room for my wife and me, for the nights of 18, 19 & 20 July on a bed and breakfast basis, as per the 2 April letter to me by Jean Cottram of the Conference & Vacation Office. I am enclosing a bank draft for 10 pounds as the requested deposit, and my wife and I much look forward to our stay at the University of Glasgow.

Dear Mr. Barr,

Thank you for your prompt and very helpful response to my enquiry about accommodations for my wife and me. We have planned our way around the Open Golf Championship and enclose a booking request for the week of 30 June to 7 July. Also enclosed is a check for $60 US to cover the deposit for two.

We note the possibility on the form for bed and breakfast only. Since my research will require that we spend at least a couple of long days in the area of Forfar, and it is unlikely that we could return by dinner hour, that would be most helpful to us, if it can be arranged.

Since we have not seen the accommodations, and since we will need as much privacy as possible in pursuit of our research efforts, we would be pleased to leave to your discretion the best accommodations to suit those needs.

We look forward to visiting St. Andrews, and we thank you for your kind attention.

Sincerely

Ivan Doig

Dear Mr. Doig,

Summer Accommodation 1984—David Russell Hall

I have received your letter of 10th February and note that your wife and you are researching a book on Scottish emigration to the American west and would like to book accommodation in St. Andrews for between two and four weeks between 25th June and 23rd July. Accommodation should be available up to the 14th July in David Russell Hall and I enclose the appropriate leaflet with booking form, general University brochure and map showing the residence's situation. I should stress that we are fully booked from the 15th to 23rd July, the week of the Open Golf Championship in St. Andrews and that you will have great difficulty in finding accommodation in or near St. Andrews at that time.

Yours sincerely,
