Dedication

VERN R. PETER

We, the Class of '57, dedicate our annual to Mr. Vern R. Peter, one who has long deserved the honor. He has done more for our class than we can ever repay. This dedication is only a small token to show our appreciation.

Rhyme in the sky is the theme of our book.
Turn all the pages and take a good look.
See your friends, enemies, and old flames too.
And teachers who did their best for you.

* The moon's first quarter
Like freshmen is new.
We all are young once,
So you will grow too!

The half moon is growing
Like sophomores,
you see
In two more years
Mighty seniors
they'll be!

When in its third quarter, the moon's almost mature
So, juniors, keep at it, you'll get there, I'm sure!

Brightest of all is the seniors' glow;
Tho' we worked hard to get here, we all hate to go!

About 300 pupils and teachers enjoy well-balanced nutritious meals each noon here.

The prices, twenty cents for grade students and twenty-five for high school and faculty members, are made possible by the gifts of surplus commodities from the federal government.

A new $550 mixer and a disposal have been added to the kitchen equipment.

Coach Jerry McCarthy led the Panthers through a good year with a record of three wins and four losses. Two of those losses were within one point. It was our first victory in class "B" play. He gave them lots of spirit and know-how and has increased the interest in football in our town and school. They are all looking forward to next year, which should be a good year because they have an experienced line coming back.

Music

Under the direction of Mr. Strueber, the musical organizations have entertained at concerts in Valier and entered many music meets away from home.

Last year the band, chorus, Valatones, a cornet duet, a clarinet trio, and two clarinet solos were entered at the District Music Meet in Conrad. Because they received either superior or excellent rating, the Valatones, the cornet duet, the clarinet trio, and the two clarinet solos went on to the state Meet in Missoula.

The band played at the Harvest Festival in Cut Bank and a Music Meet in Havre. There, four members were selected to play in the Feature Band.

This year the band, Valatones, a cornet duet, a clarinet duet, two clarinet solos, and a cornet solo will attend the District Meet in Great Falls on March 30. If either superior or excellent rating is achieved, these groups will go on to the State Meet at Missoula.

BILL VAN DEN BOS

In Memory

We, the Class of '57, wish to dedicate this page to express our sorrow at the death of Billy Van den Bos, who was killed in a truck accident February 1, 1957 a few miles from his home. Bill had his serious side of life as a farmer, which he did with his dad and brothers. As we remember Bill, he was a little quiet, but a happy-go-lucky fellow. Bill always got along well with both boys and girls.

Last Will and Testament

We, the Class of '57, being of uncertain mind and weary body due to the completion of four (4) years in the institution known as Valier High School, do hereby acknowledge the below stated facts to be true and to our specifications.

I, Wayne Arnst, leave, feeling the world owes me a living.

I, Nona Beaudry, leave my quick temper and various dark moods to Ann Kay in hope that she can conquer them.

I, Denis Bonnet, leave this stepping stone of knowledge to go on to higher learning and my first million.

I, Barbara Bowman, leave, breathing a sigh of relief.

I, betty Brown, leave, thanking the teachers for their untiring patience.

We, Lucille Brophy and Janice Christiaens, leave with tears in our eyes as we go on to our chosen vocations and the hot stove.

I, Glenn Collins, leave my ability to get along with the teachers to my little brother if he's foolish enough to accept it.

I, Ivan Doig, leave, knowing the teachers to be further enriched from my vast knowledge.

I, Arlene Jacobson, leave my various slings, casts, and bandages to next year's football team.

I, Butch Lauffer, leave my ability to talk my way out of trouble to Jesse Kibbee, who will need it.

I, Vern Monroe, leave to Little Joe anything he needs as I have it all.

We, Gloria DeVinney, Sandra Lightner, and Annalee Sheble leave our ability to be strangely absent on the same days to Mary Wheeler, Jackie Taylor and Sandra Snortland.

I, Patti Palin, leave my ability to make the girls cry in speech class to Sylvia Johnson.

I, Billy Rappold, leave some of my newly acquired height to Ronny Lindseth, providing he needs it.

I, Fay Stokes, leave, knowing full well where those gray hairs in the teachers' heads came from.

I, Sam Stokes, leave this school, because it's just moving too fast for me.

I, Dewey Swank, decide I can't leave with all these girlies here.

I, Antoinette Widhalm leave my pull with all the teachers to Jim Fitz, who no doubt will need it.

We, Wayne Arnst, Denis Bonnet, Glenn Collins, and Ivan Doig, comprising the main body of the "Filthy Four," leave, wondering if the world will survive our genius.

Signed this 24th day of May, Nineteen Hundred and Fifty-Seven, Anno Domino, by each hand of this exalted Class of '57, who are:

Class Prophecy

On board ship,
May 24, 1977

Dear Bill,

Twenty years ago today we received our diplomas and left to follow our various paths. Right now I'm looking through the annual of that most glorious of classes - The Class of '57. I remember how full of fun those four years were. I'll never forget my first day of school at Valier. It was the day of the big sneak, celebrating the wining of the divisional trophy in football. Our junior year was our first year in class "B" activities. Our play, "In Spring The Sap," was a smash hit. I think our biggest thrill that year was receiving our class rings. Our senior year brought forth the bustle and hurry of making up this yearbook, the excitement of senior sneak day, and best of all, graduation.

Now, twenty years later, Dewey Swank, (I've kept in touch with him over the years) owner of the Swank Casino over on the island, writes that he is giving a class reunion. He's made quite a pile fleecing the poor unsuspecting fishermen. He sent me all the latest information of all our old classmates, and as editor of our yearbook, I thought that you would like to hear it.

The class as a whole has prospered. Do you remember Wayne Arnst? He was true to his word. He said that if he didn't approve of the world situation when he graduated he was becoming a hermit. He didn't; so he did. Nona Beaudry has made good use of her extensive vocabulary and has become the best muleskinner in the desert. In my opinion, Vern Monroe has found the career of careers. He is the physical education instructor at Vassar College. I feel I should elaborate a bit on his accomplishments, but that fact in itself is quite an accomplishment. Annalee Sheble Abdula will have to come from abroad. She is married to Sheik Abdul Abdula, the Arabian oil tycoon.

Betty Brown, who started as an amateur bug collector, is now one of the world's foremost entomologists. Hers is the largest and most varied collection.

Antoinette Widhalm is still teaching English at Valier. You'll remember she took up where Mrs. Tidyman left off. The president of Harvard University will be there too. You remember Sam Stokes, don't you? Barbara Bowman has liked the merchandise at Sears Roebuck and Co. so well that she has worked up to managing a branch of it. Shortly after graduation Fay Stokes went to Hollywood. A recent popularity poll has named him the greatest of all lovers.

To go to the other sex, Arlene Jacobson has won again. This makes the seventh year in a row she has been crowned Miss Galaxy. Sandra Lightner has turned her artistic hands into money by becoming a top dress designer. She recently designed a chic little number for Mrs. Bonnet. Mrs. Bonnet, the former Janice Christiaens, and her husband Denis are leaving their twelve children in charge of their 3,000 acre dairy farm while they attend the reunion. (The Bonnets, incidentally, are producing all the milk that the state of Kansas can use.)

Speaking of Kansas reminds me of Patti Palin Ekhooff. She is manager and co-owner of the Sharon Springs Honeymoon Resort. Newlyweds from all over the world come to her for advice and a good time.

Ivan Doig has lived up to all expectations people had of him. He has become the top nuclear physicist in the world. There is only one minor difficulty. They say that genius is bordering on insanity. Ivan's brilliant mind snapped recently while trying to find out why the chicken crossed the road.

Another of the class that has made good is Butch Lauffer. He bought Arizona and New Mexico. He says it's amazing what a little irrigation will do.

Lucille Brophy has become the one and only woman to conquer Mount Everest. In a recent interview she stated that since she has conquered the highest point, she will don a diving suit and go to the Pacific to conquer the deepest.

By the way Bill, you must be doing all right. I read of your latest venture of buying Texas and Alaska for winter and summer range for your cattle.

As for me, I am an admiral, and was recently appointed commander-in-chief of all the naval forces of America. I believe I'll have my engineers build a canal from the Pacific to Valier, so I can bring my ship. That's all; so I'll be seeing you all in about a week.

Glenn Collins
Admiral, USN.

The Belgian Colony

By Antoinette Widhalm

The Valier Montana Land and Water Co. began in 1909 and still had thousands of acres of irrigated virgin land for sale. The Valier Townsite Co. had planned a town of 3,000 on the banks of Lake Frances and set aside land for a Protestant and a Catholic church, but when Monsignor Victor Day of the Helena Diocese came in to investigate establishing a Catholic Church, he found there were not enough Catholics to support one. He saw rich land crying for settlers and remembered his own home in Belgium, where his old friends were becoming terrified by the growing power of Kaiser Wilhelm's armies and where land and room to live in was becoming scarce. With the help received from the church and the water company he returned to Belgium to organize a colony of settlers.

Hearing of these opportunities from Father Day, Goemar Christiaens, Alphonse VanBougaaert, Peter Demaat, and Alphonse Colpaert came over to Valier, June 12, 1912, and settled about nine miles from Valier. Later VanBougaaert and Demaat sold their forty acres to Goemar Christiaens and left to work for a lumber company across the mountains. Alphonse Colpaert sold his forty acres to Henry Dekettle.

Monsignor Day made a second trip to Belgium, where he organized a colony to come to settle near Valier. The families who made up this group were: Peter DeClerke, Henry VanDoorne, Roman Christiaens, Jules Sabbe, Cyrille Ghekiere, Peter Habets, Christian Raemaker, Remi Christiaens, Emil Vandebulke, and Albert Jochem. Single members of the settlement were: Maurice Tack, Emile Verstraete, Henry Dekettle, Reni Vandepoplier, William Vustaeke, and Charles Vanderyusth.

Peter Habets had had apple, cherry, and pear orchards in Holland. The Christiaens had raised Belgian Percheron Horses. The Ghekiere's owned a flax factory in Belgium. Mr. VanDoorne, a farmer, also bought and processed chicory, while hops made up the chief crop of Mr. VanDaele's farm.

This was to be the first of a number of groups to come. One more group was allowed to come before World War I closed the borders.

These Families sold their property in Holland and Belgium and set out on the S. S. Vanderland from Antwerp February, 1913.

The crossing took eleven days and was very rough, and many were seasick. Something happened to spoil all the milk supply in the ship, and only the nursing babies had milk.

When they landed in New York on February 15, 1913, the group made up of thirteen families numbering about sixty-nine persons was met by Mr. Blondel, a representative of the Great Northern Railway Company. On the way to the Pennsylvania station the members were taken to a grocery store, where he had them buy supplies for the trip such as bread, butter, cold meat, cheese, fruit, etc. Coffee tins, tin cups, spoons, forks, and knives were also purchases at this time. Three times each day Mr. Blondel telegraphed ahead an order for milk and coffee for the next meal.

The colonists traveled in a "special" day coach from New York to Valier. Louis Hill joined the train with his special car at St. Paul, visited with the passengers through Father Day, who acted as interpreter, and gave them instructions on the importance of using building paper in the construction of their homes.

They were welcomed at Valier by Father Shevlin, the pastor. Some of the families were lodged with Emile Monroe, a Belgian who had brought his family to Valier in March 1911. At first a few stayed at the Valier Hotel, but soon most of them were lodged at the Big C Ranch in Father Carroll's two-story farm house. Mr. Christiaens recalls the Roman Christiaens family had the northwest room; the Jules Sabbe family, the front room; and the Peter Habets family was upstairs. One cook stove served all thirteen families and mattresses were laid close together on the floor. It was two or three months before they were all able to move to their own houses.

The first Mass after they arrived was held in Goemar Christiaens' farm house, which was twenty by sixteen feet. They were pressed in like sardines. After that the Mass was held in Father Carroll's house until the church was built. Since in the days of poor roads nine miles was too far away from a church, they soon began plans to build one. With help of $500 from the Extension magazine, they built a church in the fall of 1913, and in 1914, July 7, the Church of the Sacred Heart was blessed by Bishop John Carroll from Helena. Other priests present at the dedication of the church were Father Day, Father Coapmans from Anaconda, Father Shevlin, the pastor, Father Desiere, Father Hanna, Father Connolly, and Father Carroll.

Ever since Father VandenElson, a Norbertine Father from DuPere, Wisconsin came in the fall of 1914, Norbertine priests have served these people in the mission. An agreement was made with the Diocese of Helena that the Sacred Heart Church will remain open as long as the people pay expenses.

Because the land closer to Valier, which they preferred, had already been sold, they were grouped together at the foot of a hill about 10 miles east of Valier so that they could help one another, thus making it possible for one church to serve them all. This land cost them $1.50 an acre, which was paid to the state, and $40. an irrigable acre, which was to be paid to the construction company over a period of 14 years. Monsignor Day and Emile Monroe had purchased 160 acres for Mr. Ghekiere and built a two-room house on it before he came. However, most of the men bought the land after they arrived from W. L. Campbell, W. M. Wayman, and Richard Sauer, who could speak German. Mr. Tack bought 80 acres and was able to add 140 acres by homesteading. However, the homestead land was good only for pasture. Most of these early settlers started with 40 acres.

Some hired carpenters to build their houses, but most of them helped each other. They bought lumber from Williams, the nearest market. For his barn Mr. Habets hauled logs fifty miles from the mountains.

"We suffered that first year," says Goemar Christiaens, recalling that he picked 105 wagonloads of rock including 75 Indian circles off his 40 acres. They had to buy horses and farm machinery. They had to learn to irrigate and to farm under conditions that were new and strange. During that first year they used up most of the money that they had brought with them, and it took two years to get back on their feet.

Monsignor Day and Father M. S. Vanderloop

When death first struck these people in a strange land, they were poor. they had not mastered the language. There was no money for an undertaker. Goemar Christiaens, farmer and former horseman, became, for the time being, an undertaker. He built the casket for Peter DeClerke's nephew and laid out the corpse. Though it was far from his chosen vocation, when his friends needed his services, he supplied them. The boy was buried where they had first planned to build the church.

Then death struck again in the form of spinal meningitis claiming Maurice Sabbe. Although by this time Mr. Christiaens was married and had children of his own, he again helped out with his services. For this burial Peter Habets built the casket, and Mr. Christiaens was assisted by Ann Crabtree.

The first weddings were Marie Vandepoplier and Henry Dekettle, and Pharilda Sabe and Goemar Christiaens. When they arrived at the church, they discovered that the marriage licenses, which had been sent by mail from Choteau, the county seat at that time, had not arrived. They celebrated the wedding feast anyway, and the two couples were married a few days later. At another time the license did not show up at all, and the bride and groom were forced to drive sixty miles to Choteau by horse and buggy to get it.

The first fall they celebrated St. Loue, who is the patron of farmers in Belgium, instead of Thanksgiving at Father Carroll's house.

Mrs. Fox, a kindly lady who lived in the neighborhood, taught the mothers what clothes to put on their girls and boys for school. The first school taught by Mr. Ransom Tone was situated near the Habets farm. Later it was moved to where it now stands east of the church. Other early teachers were: Miss O'Brian, Mrs. Harry Rideout (then Miss Sanderson), Miss Anderson, Miss Marion Rideout (now Mrs. August Demert), and Mrs. C. P. Smith.

After a hard day's work in the field the men often gathered to attack another difficult problem--the English language--which was taught at Mr. Boone's evening classes in Belgian School No. 2.

Miss Sestake instructed them for their first citizen papers. They had to take exams for citizenship in Choteau at that time.

Even buying groceries became a major operation by the time they had made their wants known by pointing, sign language, and finding the articles for themselves in the store. One of the stories which have been told of these early shoppers is that Mr. Tack, having decided that he wished to buy a bag of oranges and being very certain he knew how to say it in English, found out when he arrived home he had only onions. A woman who wished to purchase some eggs finally convinced the grocer what she wanted by sitting down and cackling like a hen. Why, when other people were having troubles making their wants known, Peter Habets could get his orders filled easily perplexed many until it was learned that he had taken the list of groceries to the priest who had written an English translation for him.

Maurice Tack

March 1, 1938, Twenty-fifth Anniversary of their arrival

In 1914 Father Vemaat brought the next group: Roman Houben, Joe Houben, Oscar VanDaele, Theophil Bealeart, and Remi Huyghe. Remi Nollet had gone back to bring his bride, Marie Valleys, to this country.

In 1919 Reni Vandepoplier, Jules Sabbe, Maurice Tack, and Rufin VanDoorne went back to Belgium for their brides and brought them back with them in 1920.

Peter DeClerke and his family returned to their home in the old country.

1938 Twenty-Fifth Jubilee

The schoolhouse was used as a social center for many parties and especially for wedding dances. Christmas Eve parties, which were attended by all members of the families, were held in Williams.

Big dances in Machinery Hall and the project fair in the fall at Williams with the great potluck dinners, speeches, exhibits of produce were yearly affairs.

On March 1, 1938, after they had been in this country for twenty-five years, a High Mass was said in honor of the silver jubilee by Rt. Rev. Msgr. Victor Day, who had brought the first settlers. The remainder of the day was spent in celebration.

By this time the number of families had more than doubled, as new ones had come over and others were married. They were considered by the leaders of the Valier Irrigation Project to be hard, honest workers and as a class to be the best farmers on the project. They were prosperous; most of them by this time having eighty acres.

Now in 1957 only four of the original adult settlers are living in this vicinity. They are Maurice Tack and Emile Vertraete, who live in the colony, and Goemar Christiaens and Mrs. Albert Jochem, who live in Conrad. The Three remaining adult settlers who have moved away from the colony are: Mrs. Cyrille Ghekiere, Mrs. Joe Houben, and Helena Christiaens.

Just to show how these original settlers have grown and prospered since that early March day in 1913 a peek into Valier schools today will reveal at least one and sometimes three and four descendants of these colonists in every class from the first grade on up through the senior class.

Threshing on Tack Farm

The Class of '57 expresses sincere thanks to the following people for patiently supplying both information and pictures: Goemar Christiaens, Maurice Tack, Osymo VanDoorne, Maurice A. Christiaens, Mrs. Margaret Miller, Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Habets, Mrs. Emile Habets, Mrs. George Widhalm, Miss Paula Ghekiere, and to Mr. Tone for his letter on the school.

A Teacher Remembers

I wish you could have been with me; but of course some of you were, and it is mostly to you that I write.

It was the fall of 1913 we got the school going. Somewhere packed away in my belongings is a snap shot of us and that first school taken one sunny day by a friend from Valier who visited us, played baseball with us, and called us one Big, Happy, Family.

But that wasn't the day of Mary's accident, when the baseball struck her in the face. Mary was badly hurt. We took her over to Mrs. Fox, our nearest neighbor, who did all she could to help while Maurice wrote a letter to be sent immediately to Mary's father telling him of the accident and urging him to take Mary to Conrad or Valier to the doctor.

Studious, dependable Goemar, our translator and helper in general, was, if you remember, your teacher's only means of communication with most of you.

My poorer German and poor French helped, but Goemar was nearly always able to get the right word to all of us. How we needed that man! And how well he served us all, those who spoke the Belgian, the French, the Dutch, and the English - now all Americans. Goemar, where and how did you learn so much so quickly, even though you did come to America a year sooner than the others? Gus and Gene also helped a very great deal for I could help them better with my German.

We learned and sang twice daily many songs, for we knew this was a quick and sure way to the vocabulary so earnestly wanted. For a time we learned at least one new song every week. We had large and good blackboards, which we kept well covered with these songs. When we sang we didn't omit any of our songs, but did the entire repertoire.

Goemar Christiaens

Once little Mary Fox, smallest among us, and about five years old told me in an aside that I sang too loud. Her sister Hazel agreed. From that time we often practiced singing softly, careful of every note. This pleased the girls especially. It didn't make a hit with the boys, but they listened attentively polite and smiled with pretended pleasure. Well, Mary, I have learned many times since how much the youngest can teach. How well we all liked those open-door, open-window song fests! One thing we neglected and it was important. We should have learned some of the songs you boys and girls must have brought with you from Europe. Our mistake and our loss.

Peter was a live wire, not bad, but full of the "Old Harry," and such a scrapper! He could give Gus or Gene or anyone else a tussle any time. Once I spanked him when he had run the gamut. Asked if he could do better now, he said with a condescending smile, "Yes, of course." But when I put an arm around him I saw there were tears. He didn't pull anybody's hair again for several days. You had to like Peter. I know he just couldn't be good.

Paul and Albrecht were, like Maurice and Gus, very studious and Paul and Albrecht were so well coached by their sisters that I could hardly keep ahead of them. Often they came to class with the entire lesson committed to memory. You wouldn't expect an old fossil like me to remember quite so much in detail, but I do remember each and every one of you quite clearly, even Gig Gene from around the Trunk, who attended a short time. I remember even the desk each occupied.

Pearl, did you become a teacher? I thought you would. There were Magdalena, Evona, and Maggie. I can see you girls now helping me prepare lessons for later. Paula was there, too giving orders, no doubt. I probably was wishing I knew better how to arrange recreational work for you girls. A mere man is pretty dumb in some ways.

There was timid, little Mary Sabbe and her brother. Is it all right to remind you, Mary, how you recited best leaning against my knee? But your timidity did not prevent your coming up with good lessons. I remember how well all seemed to like you. In fact, I remember the almost total absence of quarreling in the school.

It was a severe winter. Storms often threatened and sometimes came. School attendance was nearly perfect.

I think I wasn't much of a teacher, but we made some progress. In later years, I was told, some excellent teachers came. The results I have seen in the successful, happy homes and schooling you have provided for your families. It was something to have even a small part in it, to help build that school house and help you a little with your school work. I have gotten more pleasure out of it than any of you. Regards to all.

Sincerely,
Ransom Tone
