ALPHA EP HAS LONG HISTORY

Founded in 1917 by Members of Literary Class of Energetic Coeds

MISS JESSIE DONALDSON, AND M. MOORE ASSISTED

Alphas Epsilon Theta Became Eta Chapter of Eurodelphian in 1926

Alpha Epsilon Theta was founded in 1917 by a group of girls, members of a college literature class, who wished to carry on further discussion of literary topics than the class hour permitted. These girls decided to form a discussion group and for this purpose, the following fall, banded themselves together under the name of Alpha Epsilon Theta.

The first meetings were literally fireside discussions. The girls met at sorority houses and discussed around the fireplace, topics of interest in art, music, and literature. Membership was limited to twenty-six. The next two years, however, there were so many applicants that the limit was doubled and fifty girls constituted the membership in the fall of 1921. With such a large group, informal discussions were impossible and programs were made out and followed, as they have been ever since. The type of meetings has been always the same, including programs of art, music and literature.

During the fourth year the society became affiliated with the literary section of the Bozeman Woman's Club, and started a series of mutual exchanges of programs once a quarter.

Between its founding and its installation into Eurodelphian, the society engaged in many activities which won it a high place among organizations on the campus. Plays were written for the girls' and boys' vocational congresses of 1920 and 1921, a three act play "Montana Wins Today," by Evelyn Seeley, Marjory Bohart, Marion Russell, and Dorothy Ann Holland, and a two act play, "The Swing of the Pendulum," by Marjory Bohart. The Dramatic Club of the college produced these plays.

From 1918 to 1921 Alpha Epsilon Theta edited a college literary magazine, "The Bobcat," in which appeared poems, articles and stories by the members and other students, both men and women.

Alpha Epsilon Theta petitioned Eurodelphian National Literary Society in November, 1925, and were accepted on January 12, 1926, and installed January 18. Four honorary members were initiated at this time: Mrs. I. E. O. Pace, president of the Montana Federation of Women's Clubs, Mrs. C. D. Wigenhorn, vice-president of the Bozeman Woman's Club, and Miss Jessie L. Donaldson, honorary faculty member. The active members who were initiated are: Mildred Bigelow, president; Thelma McNall, vice-president; Elva Budd, treasurer; Geneva Keller, secretary; Margaret Shaw, corresponding secretary; Lillian Barry, critic; Mercedes Staebler, Clara Dugan, Maude McNett, Lenore Sullivan, Grace Johnson, Joan Thompson, Mary Jo Stockton, Mae Walton, Elsbeth King, Reetha Foley, elen Solberg, Borghild Anderson, Esther Asbury, Irma Gill, Ruth Casey, Helen Fleming, Margaret Booth, Alberta Mitchell, Alma Albright, Lillian Marshall, Marie Bower, Kathryn Caldwell, June Burke, Marion Bates, Irene Davidson, Bernice Berthot, Ruby Gill, Eliza Megee, Martha Herlevi, Marjory Spaulding, Marion Shaw, Mildred Cameron, Dorothy Koger, Josephine Clack, Beatrice Tanner, Martha Maxey, Jo O'Connor and Virginia Freeman.

JESSIE L. DONALDSON
Faculty Advisor of the Eurodelphian Society. Miss Donaldson is an honorary member and one of the strongest workers in the organization.

BOBCAT BAND TO GO ON TOUR

Will Leave April 5 and Give Programs in Six Towns of State

Final preparations are now being made for the annual state tour of the Bobcat band from Montana State College, and rehearsals are being held every day this week. Thirty men will leave early next Monday morning on the special coaches which will carry them to the northern part of the state where six concerts will be given on successive nights, starting April 5. The towns to be visited are Cascade, Conrad, Choteau, Fort Benton, Big Sandy, and Havre.

An exceptionally fine program has been arranged this year by Director Lou Howard, and included in it are instrumental solos and duets, a trio, and a vocal solo. The band has been working for some time in anticipation of the concert tour, and one of the most entertaining and successful programs thus far is promised. Following is the program as it will be presented:

March, "Emblem of Freedom," Goldman
Overture, "Light Cavalry," VonSuppe
Vocal Solo by Henry Schwartz
Fox Trot, "Normandy," Britt
Euphonium Solo, "Old Home Down on the Farm," Harlow (with variations) by Louis G. True
March, "American Patrol," Meacham
Trio (violin, cello, piano) by L. True, S. Dyche, H. Reik.
Fox Trot "Smile A Little Bit," Shervin
"The Pals" (for cornet and trombone), Barnard
Kenneth Schwartz and Louis True
Overture, "Orpheus," Offenbach
March, "Great Lakes to the Sea," Romdonna

WESTINGHOUSE TAKES 2 MEN

Mr. Harley R. Miller and Mr. C. V. Franzman have been notified by the Westinghouse Company that their application has been accepted and that they are to report to the company plant at Pittsburgh soon after graduation.

This makes eight men that have been placed with the large eastern electrical companies out of a class of twenty. Three others are going to stay here in Montana and work for the Montana Power company, and several others have jobs already in sight.

Eurodelphian Society Hold Annual Meeting

MILDRED BIGLOW, PRESIDENT OF LOCAL CHAPTER ELECTED NATIONAL SECRETARY AT CONVENTION

California, Washington, Montana, Minnesota, Oklahoma, Indiana, Missouri, Kansas and Michigan Represented at Biennial Council Held at Kalamazoo

The Eurodelphian biennial council meeting was held at Kalamazoo, Michigan, March 4, 5 and 6. Each chapter was represented by one or more delegates. The following states were represented: California, Washington, Montana, Minnesota, Oklahoma, Indiana, Missouri, Kansas and Michigan.

Eurodelphian is new nationally but very old locally. The Gamma chapter at Kalamazoo College dates back to 1856. The Alpha chapter founded at Kansas State Agricultural College, Manhattan, Kansas in 1904 also had for its name, Eurodelphian. Purdue University in 1917 organized a literary society and called it Eurodelphian. It is said that these local societies did not know of the others bearing the same name until 1919 when Eurodelphian at Purdue wished to consolidate with the one at Kansas State College and form a national organization. It proved to be less complicated to start a national organization at Kansas and therefore Kansas has the alpha chapter.

These three local societies had different organization but similar purpose. Eurodelphian does not take in new chapters for the asking. Each petitioning chapter must prove itself worthy of becoming a part of the national organization.

The purpose of the biennial council meetings is to unite the chapters more closely and to acquaint each with the work of the others.

The third council meeting proved very inspiring to all the delegates. Against a background of rich hangings, rugs and furniture, and soft lights (for Gamma is a very old chapter and has her own room and luxurious furnishings) it was delightful to discuss the arts in the lives of college students, to compare programs and traditions, and to create visions for the promulgation of Eurodelphian ideals in the future. It was gratifying to Eta chapter (Montana State College) to learn that Martha Maxey received second place in the short story contest with her story, "Paloma," concerning Austrian life in Storrs, Montana.

Epsilon Chapter at Pullman, Washington won first place in the story contest and Alpha chapter at Kansas State Agricultural College won first in the song contest.

The delegate from Montana State College was also gratified when the conference accepted as a national policy Eta's plan of affiliation with the Federated Woman's Clubs. It was the opinion of the delegates that such contact with the Women's clubs by the members of the college groups would be useful preparation for leadership in club work after the girls graduate, especially in the departments of art, music, and literature.

Miss Mildred Bigelow, president of Eta chapter at Montana State College, was elected as national secretary and she is to have the responsibility of working out a plan of coordination between the chapters of Eurodelphian and the Women's clubs in the various communities.

The election of members constituting the National Board of Directors was held the third day of the convention with the following results:

President, Kathryn Fowler, Epsilon chapter, Washington State College, second term; vice-president, Pearl Sellars, Beta chapter, Purdue University, third term; secretary, Mildred Bigelow, Eta chapter, Montana State college, first term; treasurer, Edith Wilkins, Alpha chapter, Kansas Agricultural College; historian, Edna Buckley, Zeta Park College.

The third biennial council meeting adjourned after the formal banquet at the Columbia Hotel in Kalamazoo, attended by more than 100 members of Eurodelphian, when announcement was made that the hostess chapter for the fourth biennial council meeting in 1928 will be Zeta, at Park College, Parkville, Missouri.

Omar Khayyam As Seen By Eurodelphian Critic

Omar Khayyam was a philosopher and a fatalist; more than that, he was a poet.

His philosophy of life was perfect according to his creed, Reincarnation. His poetry is perfect according to all the standards by which we judge poetry—beauty of form, beauty of thought, uniformity of structure.

The seductive atmosphere of the Orient leads naturally to beautiful thoughts; if one were in ice-bound Siberia one would not write in any but a perverted manner of night-gales and roses, wine, women, and song.

Thus, necessarily, living in Persia, Omar would be unconsciously if not consciously influenced, for Eastern writers, try as they will to shut out that romantic ether, to write a stern moral book or treatise, can no more exclude it, or the shadow of it, from their writings than can the air itself exclude the fragrance of the rose.

We are all selfish, yet here is one who is not afraid to admit his selfishness and furthermore, to justify it. He had the courage of his convictions and his selfishness was after all not a personal selfishness. Selfishness is a form of fear, and Omar was afraid of nothing, least of all, Death—

"So when the angel of the darker Drink
At last shall find you by the river brink
And offering his cup, invite your soul
Forth to your lips to quaff—you shall not shrink.

Why, if the Soul can fling the dust aside
And naked on the Air of Heaven ride,
Wer't not a Shame—wer't not a shame for him
In this clay carcass crippled to abide?"

There are those who would say that Omar was a heathen, an unbeliever, that he had no faith in God, no fear of the Devil, no trust in the continuation of his being in an Afterlife. Being a fatalist, with Reincarnation for a creed he could hardly be expected to fear the Devil or to trust in an Afterlife. But he did have a divine faith in God, his God. In the tragi-comic conversation of the clay pots he brings forth all his beliefs, expresses all his hopes and fears, puts all his yearning wonder and doubt into "Who is the Potter, pray, and who the Pot?"

For Omar, like all the rest of us, wondered about the mysteries of this universe, and so impressed was he by the marvel and the power of the Creator that he could not forbear from using some of his own mystic power in an attempt to solve those mysteries.

That he was a fatalist we know by: "The moving finger writes, and, having writ,
Moves on: nor all your piety nor wit
Shall lure it back to cancel half a line
Nor all your Tears wash out a word of it";

that he believed devoutly and implicitly in Reincarnation by:

"Ah, my beloved, fill the cup that clears
Today of past regrets and future fears:
Tomorrow!—Why tomorrow I may be Myself with Yesterday's Sev'n Thousand Years!"

SENIORS!

There will be Senior meeting Tuesday evening at 4.00 in Room 304 of Lewis Hall. The question of Seniors wearing derbies, the Senior memorial fund, will be discussed. The buying of invitations will also be taken up. All Seniors be there!

Alice Barbour and Helen Solberg spent the week end in Big Timber.

MILDRED BIGELOW
President of local chapter of Eurodelphian, and elected Secretary of the national organization at the biennial Convention held in March, in Kalamazoo.

"FRIEND HANNAH" TO BE GIVEN HERE

Third Number of Marian Olsen Plays Held in Emerson Wednesday

The last of the series of plays given by the Moroni Olson players, "Friend Hannah" will be given Wednesday evening, March 31, at the Emerson auditorium.

"Friend Hannah" is a charming costume play of the Quaker period, the scenes of which are very beautiful, as well as the quaint costumes worn by the players. The entrancing romance of Friend Hannah and the young Prince of Wales is the main theme of the lovely story.

The Moroni Olson Players need no introduction to the people of Bozeman for their former appearances in "Pygmalion" and "The Ship" have proved their remarkable ability. Their last performance in "Friend Hannah" bids fair to surpass these other productions according to reports by those having seen all of the plays.

No one can afford to miss this last and most interesting play of the Moroni Olson Players, "Friend Hannah" on Wednesday, March 31 at the Emerson.

MONTANA STATE TO DEBATE WHEATON

William Benjamin and Lyle Roessler to Represent Montana State on Prohibition Question

Montana State debaters will meet Wheaton College, of Wheaton, Illinois, in a non-decision debate, Thursday evening, April 1, at the Y. M. C. A. building. William Benjamin and Lyle Roessler of Montana State will uphold the negative side of the question, "Resolved that the Eighteenth Amendment to the Constitution of the United States should be repealed."

One of the members of the Wheaton team is Mr. Paul Jackson of Wheaton, Montana, who won the State Extemporaneous Speaking Contest, held at Bozeman in 1922.

ESTES PARK TRIP

Ray Beatty and Ed Fuller left Saturday night for Estes Park, Colorado, where they will take part in the national debate and oratory contest, held under the auspices of Pi Kappa Delta, national honorary debating fraternity.

The question used in these debates will be the official Pi Kappa Delta question on the Child Labor Amendment. Fifty-six teams from all over the United States will be competing in these contests.

SATURDAY IN A SORORITY HOUSE

Familiar Scenes Re-enacted on Paper Give Men Glimpse of Inside Dope

DOES THIS SOUND FAMILIAR COEDS?

Holee Cow! Its Seven Fifteen and Ive Got An—Well, Read and See What

"Holee Cow! It's seven-fifteen and I've got an eight o'clock. Say, wake up! What time have you? Good night! Got an eight o'clock? You lucky devil. Come on, Ann, get up, or we'll be late as heck!"

Two befuddled figures rise from the coverings, yawn, and begin to grope futilely for bloomers, stockings, all of which have very maliciously concealed themselves in waste paper baskets and under chairs during the night. The third occupant of the room heaves a sigh of contentment and relief, pulls the covers closer, and drops back into a state of bliss.

"Gee, my feet hurt—what kind of a time did you have last night? I'll say he's a mean man. Darn classes on Saturdays! Did you see my shoe? I haven't got my history, so I'm expecting a quiz. Where's my pin? Say, get it off my black dress, will you please? Thanks. Where's the powder puff ramble to now? When I graduate I'm going to bequeath another one to the chapter. Step on it—it's twenty-five after."

The aforesaid figures, clutching books, galoshes, coats, and papers, hustle down the stairs, gulp a hasty breakfast, disagree over the merits of a campus hero, and rush madly out to catch the bus. It has just gone by. Murmuring vehement phrases about the inconsistency of bus-drivers, they start out for the Hill at a dog-trot. Few words are spoken during the journey, but those few are of a distinctly peevish nature.

The quiet that reigns for the rest of the morning in the house is unbroken, save by some late riser at her ablutions, or by some wise girl who is profitably spending her spare moments washing her stockings in the wash bowl.

"Hello kids, what have we got for lunch? I'm as hungry as a bear. Didn't have much time to eat breakfast. Phew! I had the awfulest time this morning. Ran into two quizzes—wish I'd cut. Who's going to the game? Taking your blankets? Aw, come on—you can go down town after the game. Are the pledges coming to clean house? How's for having them wax all the floors today? Pass the butter. Thanks. Wasn't that a knockout of a dance last night? You didn't have a good time? Oh, well, I always told you that he was beautiful but dumb. Oh, they're not so good—and that 'Charleston' isn't the correct one. I saw them dance it in Seattle. Sure, I'm through. Let's go up and push the dust under the radiator, and go to the game. Oh, say, I forgot, Mildred, Jim wants you to call him at the house. No, I don't know that number. C'mon, let's go."

Various Saturday tasks are performed in the interval between lunch and game. Clothes are picked up and hung away, hair is washed, letters are written, and eyebrows are tweezed. Finally, the members of the household leave for the football field, leaving a string of instructions for the cook in regard to prospective telephone calls.

The afternoon's peace is broken by the arrival of the pledges, who come to wash napkins, polish the silverware, and in general comport themselves befittingly. Much jazz is produced through the mediums of ukuleles, piano and phonograph. Great quantities of food are consumed.

Montana State Debaters Win Debate From Utah University

Ray Beatty and Gervais Davis Uphold Affirmative Side of Child Labor Question

Monana State College, represented by Ray Beatty of Helena and Gervais Davis of Forsyth, won a unanimous decision over the Utah University debaters in the contest held last Friday evening at the college auditorium.

Montana State upheld the affirmative side of the question, "Resolved that the United States Constitution should be so amended as to permit Congress to regulate child labor." Beatty, as first speaker, put forth facts proving that child labor is a serious problem. Davis concluded the affirmative case by proving that the national government can better regulate child labor.

The Utah University team represented by Joseph Jeppson and Junius Tribe attempted to prove that there is no serious child labor problem, but in order to remedy existing bad conditions we must alleviate poverty, which is the real root of the evil.

The judges of the debate were Professor A. C. Olson of Belgrade High school, Professor Dan Williams of Gallatin High, and Judge A. J. Horskoy of Helena. Professor Frank Ham presided.

The Eurodelphian edition of the Weekly Exponent makes its bow: This is the first time that an individual organization ever ventured the task, and it is to be hoped that the readers of this issue will be pleased with our attempt. Incidentally it is the first time that the coment of the campus ever edited the Exponent. The Eurodelphian Society, thru this work, hopes to bring its achievements and ideals before the student body. We stand for advancement of art, music, and literature, and since wt have become a national group, we feel that a definite step has been taken at Montana State College to include cultural training in our education, as well as the technical work in which we are registered.

Through the efforts of the Bozeman chapter of the American Federation of Art, Montana State students and the residents of Bozeman, are again enjoying the rare and exceptional opportunity of viewing some of the best contemporary oil paintings. To gain access to a high quality art exhibit of this kind for so small a price is indeed a rarity and an opportunity which should not be overlooked.

The exhibit this year is of unusual quality, the technique and workmanship especially displaying superior artistry over last year's exhibit. Mr. Kent's work, "Black Head; Monhegan Island," is a picture which attracts because of its fierce, dark waters and stern rocks, which seem almost magnetic in the forceful manner of the painting.

MY ROAD.

Oh there's a road to happiness
And this is where it goes.
Across the dreary inland plain
To where the sea wind blows.
And there's a place where high waves laugh
And water meets the sky
And there's a place where ships come in
And little tug boats ply.

For I have been too long away
From where the white capped waves
Go leaping on the water top
When loud the north wind raves.
And I have been too long inland
Where mountains close men in
Where cities are just cities
Without the wharves' gay din.

So I will find the high road
That leads down to the sea,
For there among the white sailed
ships
Is happiness for me.

titles of suggestions for the betterment of the active chapters are brought forth by the laboring freshmen. The cook rattles pans, and glares daggers at the pledge who dares to invade her sanctum, with the age-old plea, "Please, where can I find a dust rag?"

After the game, the "sisters" commence to straggle in in twos and threes. A great deal of giggling enthusiastic telephoning follows. More jazz is created, and the house is shaken by the combined efforts of all the girls to successfully perform the "Charleston." The dinner bell rings.

"I wish the kids would hurry! I'm starved. Aw, g'wan, you're not such a dainty eater yourself. Let's sit down. Wasn't that some game today? Old Cottam surely knocked them over. Sure, I'm going to Missoula if I can find a reliable road map and my shoes hold out. An awfully good gang is going. Someone, answer the phone. For me? Thanks. Hooray, I'm going with you and Ted tonight, Helen. I sure like to dance with your man. Who else is going? Aren't you Fanny? Oh sure, I'm glad I didn't pick a football man for mine. Can I wear your green dress then? Thanks. I'll have to take it in a little bit on the seams, though. Well, I'll just bet you a pair of stockings that you are bigger than I am. Alright, that's a bet. We'll haul out the family tape line when we go upstairs. I prefer gunmetal chiffon, size nine and a half."

Dinner over, those with dates scurry off to dress. Those without dates wind up the phonograph and begin again their strenuous dancing. Sounds from upstairs indicate that all will be beautifully, if somewhat hurriedly, attired, for the evening's amusement.

"Who the dickens used all the hot water? Hand me a towel, somebody, quick! Do I need a slip with this dress? Where's the nail file? You look just adorable! Oh, I'm too much in a hurry now—I'll have time to study that in the bus tomorrow—oh, what's the matter with me? I mean I can study it Monday morning. Say, they're hollering for us—guess our sheiks have arrived on their bicycles."

A clatter down the stairs, an extremely cordial greeting, much ban-tering of small talk, and the anticipatory couple rush off to the waiting taxi. In the parlor, the rest of the chapter try various reducing exercises and stunts. One girl sits down with a thud that rocks the house, and uproarious laughter follows.

"Hey, down there, is my man there yet? Well, if he thinks I'm going to get ready and then wait all night for him, he's crazy. Oh, there he comes! Hello, Frank, no, I haven't been waiting! A second—just came downstairs. Alright, let's go."

Comparative quiet follows for the rest of the evening, broken, perhaps, by muffled laughter, or the sound of some one rummaging in the pantry for cake. "Bull sessions" are in order, and generally they are unanimously attended. The house mother asks for quiet, and the racket only becomes more muffled. A window is opened, several "good-nights" are voiced, and the house settles down for its needed rest.

At twelve-fifteen there is another slight uproar as the dancers return, but it soon subsides. More windows are flung open, and several bed springs groan meaningly.

From that time on there is no sound but that of the water dripping from the faucet of the washbowl and the tick-tick of an alarm clock. A late returner opens the door noiselessly, slips off her shoes, and tiptoes up the stairs. Stealthy rustling proceeds from her room, but silence soon descends upon all the household.

The day is done.

The big or little company —which?

"YOU'LL surely be buried in the big company," say some. "Everything is red tape, and you'll end up in a groove in some little department."

"Your little company never gets you anywhere," others assert. "The bigger the company the bigger your opportunity."

Whether a plant covers a hundred acres or is only a dingy shop up three flights is not so important as whether the company is concerned with improving its product through the development of its men and their ideas.

There are ably managed and growing companies in growing, forward-looking industries which offer you a chance to grow with them.

BOBCAT SPORTS

SPORT GLEAMS FROM FAR AND NEAR

The University of Colorado took a step toward promotion of interest in swimming in the Rocky Mountain States by entertaining the crack Leland Stanford tank team at Boulder. Stanford furnished most of the interest and with great speed and endurance defeated the silver and gold mermen 44 to 14. All of the first places were captured by the Californians. New records were established in the 200 yard free style, 150 yard back stroke, and the 200 yard four man relay. Stanford defeated the University of Wyoming recently at Laramie in a like manner.—Denver Post.

George Wilson, all-American halfback of the University of Washington, will again enroll in school. He will attend school until next fall when he expects to follow Red Grange in the professional field.

Phil Barber, star sprinter and captain of the University of California track team, was declared eligible for athletic participation after having made up his deficiencies in his studies. The temporary loss of their captain sent glimmering, the hopes of the Golden Bears for track honors, but with the return of Barber the Californians expect to make a good showing against the University of Missouri on April 3.

As yet the University of Montana is without a gridiron mentor. Rumors are prevalent in the western part of the state that Major Milburn of the United States army and Lieutenant McQuarrie of Missoula, former Bruin grid star, will have charge of the university football squad next year. Jack Stewart of the University declined to make any statement while in Butte attending to the arrangement of details for the Bobcat-Bruin clash next October.

The University of Illinois is again showing marked superiority in track events. At the Southern relays held at the Rice institute last Saturday the Illinois men won first place in the meet with three firsts in relay events and a first in the 220 low hurdles.

Training for the X country run should be begun immediately according to Karl Johnson, manager of intramural athletics. The event will take place on Tuesday, May 4, and all the men students are invited and expected to take part in it. In order to be eligible for the run anyone must be in training at least three weeks before the date set. Training shall consist of going through regular workouts at least three times each week. These workouts should be reported. A sweater will be awarded to the winner provided that he has not won one in this event before. A news reel will be made of the race.

HERB WINNER B. B. CAPTAIN

Will Captain the Basketball Quint During the 1926-27 Season

At a recent meeting of the basketball letter men Herbert Winner of Great Falls was elected to lead the Bobcat court team for next season. Winner was forward on the 1926 basketball team which was the best in recent history of Bobcat athletics. As a scoring forward Winner gave a good account of himself, but showed up to best advantage on the defense. The brand of scrap showed by the Electric City lad won him the admiration of the fans. He played all over the floor, going at breakneck speed all the time. Winner is a three letter man at M. S. C., having won his "M" in football at quarterback, last year at forward on the basketball team, and at second base on the baseball team.

All indications point to a successful season for the basketball team next year. Glynn and Breeden will each be eligible as will Williams, Yandell, and Cummins from the star 1925 team. Captain Hartwig and Cottam will leave holes at offense while McGuinn will leave a guard position open. There will be available a bunch of good material from the freshman team which will greatly strengthen the squad.

NOTICE.

There will be a meeting of all the intramural representatives tonight at 5:10 in the gymnasium. Please be there.

KARL JOHNSON.

THREE BOBCATS ALL CONFERENCE

Breeden Placed as All-Conference Guard, Hartwig Second Center and Glynn Third Guard

Breeden, freshman varsity guard, was selected for the All Rocky Mountain Conference basketball team picked by C. L. Parsons of the Denver Post sports staff. This is the first time in the history of the institution that a freshman has made an All-Conference team. Hartwig, second high scorer in the western division, was selected for center on the second team and Glynn was given a guard position on the third conference selection. Cottam and Winner were accorded honorable mention as forwards. Although the Bobcats placed low in the divisional standings the number of men selected on the all-conference fives indicates the relative strength of the team.

Breeden is following in the footsteps of Frank Hatfield on the all-conference selections. This is the second season that the Bobcats have landed a guard on the conference team. Breeden has an enviable record as an athlete, having made the all-state team for two years while playing on the Gallatin high school team. He has three years ahead of him, and in that time should develop into one of the best basketball players Montana State has produced for some time. The defensive work of this tall, red-headed guard has won for him the admiration of fans and sport writers wherever the Bobcats have played and finally culminated in the selection on the official all-conference team.

NOTICE.

Have you handed your name in for intramural sports? The list for this quarter includes baseball, water basketball, track, cross country and handball. All participants must be in training at least three weeks before the respective events.
