Men's Co-op Quarters Scheduled To Open Spring Quarter

Committee Announces Tremendous Interest In Men's Dormitory At 603 South Third

At the Independent meeting last Tuesday noon, it was decided that a temporary manager and committee of the Men's Cooperative Housing Unit should be selected to take charge of the work of obtaining the house definitely, selecting the members, and making further arrangements necessary toward getting the plan off to a good start.

During the past few weeks, a committee has been working on the selection of a suitable house and in obtaining an experienced cook. Now the plans are completed and the interest in the new house is growing rapidly. Already more applications for membership have been received than the house will be able to accommodate.

The new house is located at 603 South Third, will accommodate 20 men for rooms, 40 men for board. These extra 20 men will be taken on the same basis as those staying in the house, and the organization will engage outside rooms for them.

Barton Hahn is to be the temporary manager. Under him is a group of five committee chairmen with their respective committees. These

Graham Expects Air Corps Applications

Qualifications Of Candidate For Appointment Given

Recent increases in the national defense budget have created a demand for college trained men as candidates for appointment as flying cadets of the Army Air Corps, according to Major Graham, professor of military science and tactics. It was announced that several applications from Montana State College students were expected. It is estimated by the Registrar's office that nearly a dozen former students have received training at the Air Corps Training Center in Texas.

Air training offered by the United States Army has long been recognized as being the finest and most thorough obtainable anywhere, many of the most competent figures in American aviation industry having had military training, according to government statements.

Candidates for appointment must have successfully completed two years of a recognized four-year college course, be unmarried, between the years of 20 and 27, of excellent character and of sound physique and in excellent health. Air Corps standards in the physical examinations are among the highest in he world, a very large percentage of candidates being disqualified for physical defects. Vision must be "perfect."

The grade "flying cadet" is that neither of an enlisted man nor an officer. A candidate for appointment is required to sign an agreement to enlist for three years, but he is subject to honorable discharge in case he is found temperamentally, physically or mentally unsuited to become a military flier. He is provided with a special uniform and receives the so-

Second Ensemble Concert Will Be Held In Gym

Classic, Romantic Music Presented on Feb. 27

Montana State College will present the college string orchestra conducted by Benjamin M. Goodsell in a concert at the college gymnasium on Sunday, February 27, at 3:00 p. m.

The string orchestra consists of the violin, viola, cello, and string bass sections of the regular concert orchestra and numbers twenty-two players. The ensemble was organized in the fall of 1936 and its initial concert in the Engineering assembly on February 14, 1937, was an interesting musical event which was pleasantly received. Last year's concert drew an audience that filled the Engineering assembly, and for this reason, it has been decided to hold it in the gymnasium this year.

The program to be presented on February 27 will consist of music of the classic and romantic periods. The

M. S. C. Again Awards Parson's Scholarship

Graduating Senior Will Be Given Paris Study

The honor has again been extended to the art department of Montana State College to give one of the Frank Alva Parson's Scholarships to a graduating senior. This scholarship is for a year's advanced study in Paris. The student to whom the scholarship will be awarded is to be selected later this year.

"Accidental" Sound Effects Please Whitehall Crowd

The play, "Journey's End" which was presented at Whitehall last Thursday night by Montana State College students as a preliminary showing, proved to be highly successful. There was a large attendance by the townspeople who displayed a great deal of enthusiasm throughout the entire play. During the performance an airplane passed overhead and the stage managers were highly commended by the audience for the realistic sound effects. Everyone is confident that the play will be just as successful, if not more so, when it is performed in Bozeman, at the Ellen Theatre on February 21 and 22.

An Open Letter

Dear Joe College:

Today I received the third letter addressed to me and signed Joe College. After reading the pointed statements and criticisms of the various subjects that you attempted to analyze, I was tempted to print your latest literary effort in spite of its anonymity. However, since it has been the policy of this paper not to print un-signed letters you will notice its omission from the pages. If you will make yourself known to the Exponent office so that we may know who you are, your future comments will be printed in full with or without a signature just so long as we know the author's name.

The Editor

The above remarks are aimed at a particular gentlemen who has repeatedly written intelligent letters for publication but who has carelessly neglected to sign his name as anything other than "Joe College". To the hundreds of other students who, I am sure, have similar comments and criticisms to make may I offer this suggestion. Your communications, is considered of sufficient merit to provide news, will be printed in the Exponent as written provided that they are not anonymous. So please feel free to crit.cize what and where you will.

W. E. Meyer, Of Washington Will Discuss Educational And Political Subjects

Five speakers have already been secured for High School Week, according to Mr. Schubert Dyche, faculty chairman of the program committee. Only two more speakers are needed to complete the program of addresses.

Those who have acknowledged their acceptance are Mr. Walter E. Myer, director of civic education service in Washington, D. C., who will speak on three topics, "The Virtues Democracy Requires," America's Place in a Troubled World," and "Neglected Objectives of Secondary Education."

Mr. Robert H. Fletcher, traffic engineer of the Montana State Highway Commission, and well known on Montana State College campus, will have as his subject, "Five Hundred Million Years in Forty-Five Minutes."

Women speakers with topics of their addresses will be Mrs. Olga Ross Hannon, professor of applied art at Montana State College, "Adapting the Beautiful," Mrs. Gladys E. Heinrich Knowles, president of the Montana Federation of Women's Clubs, "Girls, On Your Way!" and Mrs. Agnes Wiggenhorn, "Stand Up and Cheer."

'Little International' Set For May 19, Says Chairman Bill Otten

Pointing toward a bigger and better "Little International" the date of which has been tentatively set for May 19, Bill Otten, general committee chairman has announced the selection of his committee and is already making plans for a show that is yet almost three months off.

The committee chosen to stage the show is comprised of Kenneth Harmon, in charge of advertising; Dan O'Neill, in charge of the program; Hugh Paris, in charge of decorations; Merrill Miller, in charge of finances; Curtis Howard and George Severson, other members of the committee, have not been assigned to special duties as yet, according to Mr. Otten. Oswald Brownlee, president of the Ag Club will assist in the arrangements as will also Ralph McCall and F. M. Harrington, faculty advisers.

The "Little Intenational" livestock show, held each year is sponsored by the Ag Club. It provides an opportunity for all agricultural students to participate in the showing and fitting of livestock and to compete for valuable prizes. The most coveted prize, which is awarded each year to the student who is adjudged grand champion showman, is the Vinke memorial watch that is donated by Sarah Vinke, widow of Louis Vinke, former head of the animal husbandry department and the man who is recognized as the founder of the "Little International."

'Journey's End' Draws Capacity Crowd On Opening Performance

All-Male Cast Pleases Audience In Drama Of War Conditions; Stebbins Outstanding As Captain Stanhope; Play Well Cast

Montana State College players last night presented their winter quarter dramatic production to a full house at the Ellen Theater. "Journey's End," by R. C. Sheriff, is heralded by many critics to be one of the most effective and authentic of all war plays. Bozeman theater goers as well as students were very impressed by the methods in which Mr. Sheriff has expressed his point.

The author at no time expresses his opinion of war; he does not say that it is terrible and should be stopped, but rather presents to the audience a series of closely connected scenes which vary authentically to show conditions as they actually existed in the Great War.

There are no heroes or villains in the play. Captain Stanhope and his second in command, as well as the young Lieutenant Raleigh are in a sense heroes, but only because they are men of outstanding character that they can be classed as such. Hibbert, the weak and cowardly second lieutenant ,is not presented for us to scorn because of these qualities but to show the reaction of war upon different types of men. The part of Captain Stanhope is carried by Bill Stebbins, who is well known to Bozeman audiences for his athletic powress. He is well remembered by those who saw him as the gang leader in last year's major production, "Winterset." Lieutenant Raleigh was very successfully played by Jack Richardson of Bozeman. Richardson has been prominent in plays while in Gallatin County High School as well as in college. Also from Bozeman are Charles Paine and Bob Challender. Art Ward very ably carried the part of Lieutenant Osborne, the cool and level-headed second in commany. Art made his first appearance to Bozeman audiences in a vocal recital with Eddie Exum and Ernest Challender last quarter. Other parts were carried by Fritz Roll, Earl Geyer, Bill Holloway, Bob Willett, and Dave Cochran.

The action of "Journey's End" takes place in an officer's dugout only a few miles from the front line trenches in March, 1918. By the author's unique style, the audience was presented with situations as they occurred under these circumstances. A full house is also anticipated for Tuesday night's show.

SPRING STYLES FOR COEDS

Modeled By Mortar Board

Are you down in the dumps about this changing weather? Don't you think you can make your grades this quarter? Well forget it all for a few minutes and put your mind on spring and spring clothes. There's nothing like it to give you a great big boost.

Thursday the 24th Mortar Board is sponsoring one of the few all-campus style shows. Downtown stores, Chambers-Fisher, Riddles, Eileens, Wilsons, Wiltons and Bratens have cooperated in loaning their spring models to be shown by college students. The theme is campus styles and all the clothes will be highly appropriate for campus wear. It's a fine opportunity to lay plans for your Easter suit or complete spring wardrobe.

The show will be held in Herrick Hall at 7:30 and will last about one and one-half hours. Refreshments will be served. Tickets will be 25c and can be gotten from any Mortar Board member. Town girls, bring your mothers and convince them, too. We'll see you there.

Full Time and Division In M. S. C. Faculty

Because of increased interest in music and band work as a part of high school and college activities, the administration has arranged to have Lou Howard, band director on the campus, full time instead of part time as formerly. The change became effective at the beginning of the winter quarter.

This arrangement will accommodate the increasing number of high school students who have come to college desiring to play in the band. Also it will be an aid to a number of students on the campus having a fair working knowledge of a band instrument but to get further instruction in playing in a band.

Band work as a part of college activity has advanced so rapidly in late years that the necessity for the college to have a large and proficient band has become increasingly greater. A constantly growing demand for directors of high school bands will be met now by a greater number of graduates able to direct bands as a part of teaching requirements.

The above factors were taken into consideration in placing Mr. Howard on a full time basis instead of de-

Water Color Exhibits In Herrick Hall

An exhibit of aqua-chromatic water colors has been received by the art department. The pictures have been worked out so that each color which the artist has used is noted and may be studied. There are various techniques and subjects used.

The exhibit is hung in the art department for this week. The students are urged to attend.

Alpha Chi Sigma Plaque Returns To Chem Building

After an absence of nearly a year, the Alpha Chi Sigma Scholarship Plaque has returned to its place in the Chemistry building.

The two new names engraved on it are Joe Wm. Alexander and Robert L. Tichenor.

Joe Alexander of Butte is enrolled in the chemical engineering department. He was elected president of Phi Eta Sigma last spring. As president of Phi Eta Sigma he has instituted several new policies for the freshman honorary. He is a pledge of Alpha Chi Sigma.

Robert Tichenor of Belgrade is a junior in the chemistry department. He is a member of Phi Eta Sigma and is a pledge to Alpha Chi Sigma.

Both men have maintained very high scholastic ratings since their freshman year.

For the past several years the name of the sophomore who has had the highest scholastic record during the preceding year in the chemistry industrial chemistry, or chemical engineering division has been placed on the plaque.

The abence of the plaque during the past year was caused by the need of replacing the name plate which had become damaged.

Marsh And Tunnicliff Discover Important Control Vaccine

Dr. H. Marsh and Dr. E. A. Tunicliff of the Montana Veterinary Research Laboratory have made a vacine that will combat the dreaded Black disease of sheep.

This disease has long been known in the United States and causes a high mortality in death loss.

Australia has tried to combat the disease actively for 20 years with little success. It has been known in Australia that the disease existed in flocks for the past 60 years.

It is a disease caused by a spore and is associated with the sheep liver fluke. Apparently the immature fluke has to blaze the way for the Black disease bacillum. When the immature fluke sets up a irritation in the liver and gives the spore a chance to develop. A potent toxin is given off by the Black disease bacillum and death results in a short period of time.

The peculiar nature of the disease is that there is no apparent symptoms of the disease before death.

Delta Phi Delta Holds Luncheon Meeting

Wednesday noon, February 16, Phi chapter of Delta Phi Delta, national honorary for art and architectural students, held an informal luncheon meting in the craftsroom of the art department, Herrick Hall. Coffee was served to supplement the lunch which each member brought.

As their project for High School Week, the members of Delta Phi Delta plan to present a hand-puppet show in the lecture room in Herrick Hall during Open House. The stage, scenery and puppets will all be designed and built by the members of the fraternity. The story will be entirely original, written especially for

SENIOR SHOWS SHINER

Wayne Tretsven, prominent member of the senior class, men's chairman of high school week, and man of affairs about the dairy department has, this past week, been displaying one of the prettiest "shiners" seen on the campus in many a day.

According to reports, Wayne was making good time on the skiway in the intramural ski tournament at Karst's Kamp on the Gallatin when he struck a soft stretch of snow. It is said that this series of cart wheels through the air hasn't been equalled since the fat man stepped on the banna peeling. Anyway, Wayne made a perfect one-point landing, with his eye doing the leading. Copious quantities of raw beefsteak and perseverance have worked wonders and now Wayne is about as good as when he went up the mountain.

"Desert Song" Chosen For Spring Production

The annual musical comedy selected for this spring quarter will be "The Desert Song" by Romberg. This is the second Romberg musical show to have been produced on the campus in recent years, the other having been "The Student Prince" produced in the spring of 1933. "The Student Prince" was generally conceded to be the best liked of all musical shows to be produced at the college, and it is expected that the "Desert Song" will prove to be equally as popular.

Trials for this show will be held on Thursday evening, Feb. 24, in the Little Theatre at Main Hall. At that time principal men and women chorus groups and the dance chorus will be selected. There are also a number of non-singing parts which will be cast at that time or during the week.

Nelson Announces Annual Dairy Products Show

The sixth annual dairy industry short course and dairy products show will be held at Montana State College February 28 to March 5, 1938.

Dr. J. A. Nelson, head of dairy industry, states that there are to be 226 samples of milk in the show, which is an increase of 24 per cent over the high of last year. Samples of butter, entered in the show, are beginning to arrive from Minnesota, Iowa, California, Washington, Oregon and Montana.

The industry course attracts many students each year who are at the present employed in some field of the dairy industry. Dr. Nelson states there is an increase in enrollment over last year.

The judging contest and sample scoring will take place on Saturday, February 26. The contests in judging are to be on milk, butter, and ice cream. Prizes will be awarded to the individuals ranking high in each contest.

Stanford Coeds Stage Revolt Against Unfair Rushing

San Francisco. (ACP)—A "revolt" of Stanford freshmen coeds against the campus' sorority rushing system broke out recently. The girls threatened to refuse to accept bids to join sororities unless something were done to eliminate what they called "unfairness" of the system.

The threat brought announcement from Dean of Women Mary Yost that the university would "assume responsibility for housing women students" should the nine sororities be disbanded.

Under university regulations, only 118 first-year students, out of a class of 265 may belong to sororities. The Stanford Daily said, "There are two alternatives. Stanford must either increase the number of sororities or wipe them out entirely. The university has a regulation restricting the number to nine. Thus the plan to wipe them out is more feasible and would lead to . . . obliteration of the problem."

The revolt was said to have started in a talkfest of a few freshmen. It spread until almost the entire class was behind the movement. Students claimed the movment was not lead by girls who are likely to be left out of sororities but by coeds who have received rushing invitations and are almost certain to receive sorority bids.

Dean Yost said, "If this plan of the freshmen women for not accepting sorority bids is carried out, and the sororities' membership is curtailed, the university wil accept responsibility for housing the 118 women involved."

CONFORMITY

How many collegians really think on their own account? The ability to make Phi Beta Kappa or Phi Kappa Phi and other so-called honoraries by mere conformance to standardized requirements without ever doing any original or even independent thinking is more and more being pointed to as a serious indictment against our educational system, according to the Daily Nebraskan.

Professors with their grading systems and emphasis upon requirements tend to place the premium upon conformity and a penalty on individualism. The college "parrot" who hands back to his instructors whatever they give out is too frequently regarded as the student and scholar, while the individualistic student who thinks for himself is often penalized for his refusal to submit to rigid standards or to memorizing his way through college.

"The ideal student is always in revolt," says William Allen White. "A conforming student never learns anything new and never forgets anything old." College is the best place to learn conformity and be cast into the common mold. The ideal student is usually neither the best scholastically nor the most popular in extra-curricular activities. His individualism tends to destroy his popularity both with the professors and the students.

Progress is made through original thinking and initiative, not by "apple polishing" and mere conformance to the idea that everything a prof says is right and that everything he assigns must be done.

men are: Andrew Boyack, legal work; Joe Krall, finance; Lyle Hensleigh, social chairman; Lyle Miller, membership; and Wayne Adams, work schedule. The temporary secretary is James Hunt and the correlator is Thayer Landes. The general assistants to the above men are: Floyd Kennison, John McGimpsey, Nibert Majerus, Clifford Crane, Harry Hulsing, Adolph Henn, and Peter Wilkie. Within a few weeks after the opening of the house, elections will be held for house president, house secretary, and social director. At about the same time, a faculty committee will consider the applications for house manager and hou e treasurer.

From all indications, the house will prove quite popular with the boys. It must be understood that the house can only handle 40 boys this spring quarter. Undoubtedly more boys than that will apply and therefore elimination to the necessary number will be necessary. The desire of the group is to secure a congenial crowd of boys who will willingly work together for the betterment of the group, and, in accepting applications for membership, this factor will be one of the strong points of consideration.

Any boys desiring to apply for membership for the spring quarter must have their applications in the hands of the managing committee before March 1. After that time no applications will be considered, as it is esssential that all plans be made a good deal in advance of the actual opening of the house.

The plan of the co-op is to provide good board and room for college boys as cheaply as possible. This will be done by giving a small amount of work to each boy as a share of his house duties.

All preliminary preparations of the food, serving, dish-washing, cleaning, and other similar work of the house will be done by the boys. This naturally saves a good deal of expense. In addition to this, the two co-op houses will be enabled to buy together and in larger quantities and reduce food prices to a minimum.

cial and military privileges of a potential officer. His base pay is $75 a month, with a ration allowance of $1 per day.

The course of instruction requires two years, one of which is spent with a tactical unit. The first year's training at the Air Corps Training Center includes eight months primary instruction at Randolph Field and four months advanced training at Kelly Field. When graduated from the advanced course, the flying cadet is designated airplane pilot in the Regular Army, and assigned his post for his second year's training. Upon successful completion of the entire two year's training, he is discharged from the service and commissioned a second lieutenant, equipped with the finest aviation training obtainable.

Recent expansion of the armed forces of the United States, however, has resulted in an increase in vacancies of Regular Army officers in the Air Corps. Previously all such vacancies have been filled by graduates of the United States Military Academy at West Point, but at the present time an extra year's service on active duty is offered to Air Corps Reserve officers preparatory to competitive examinations for commissions in the Regular Army. Further increases in army appropriations which are expected will give graduate flying cadets an excellent chance of becoming Regular Army officers.

The show this year will be held in the livestock judging pavillion where the embryo showmen put their animals through pretty stiff competition before the judges. Interspersed throughout the competition will be specialty numbers that are being arranged by Dan O'Neill, the sheep shearing orator from the big flat country up north. Dan may be a little slow in fast company when it comes to using the shears, and a trifle weak as an orator, but when it comes to entertainment—why Dan just naturaly knows his entertainment and when "Endgate" Otten chose him for that important position it was guaranteed that the entertainment features alone would be worth the price of admission.

Shortly after the beginning of the spring quarter all Ag students will be given an opportunity to draw for the animals that they will fit and show.

JEST MUSIN'

Kitzbitzing at the Military Ball brought just lots of things to light. Seriously tho, the young ladies, and particularly the sponsors looked extraordinarily nice. Funny what a formal, hair wave, and war paint will do for a girl's appearance. All previous assertations to the contrary, I doubt very much whether any other school can boast a bevy of girls like those at the hop. There may be others more striking, but for all around attractiveness they'll hold their own in any crowd.

Instances such as President's Strand's informality, Katherine Border's graceful walk through the arch of sabers, the pride written on the officers' faces as they pinned the corsages on the ladies of their choice, the patroness in the balcony who swore because her stocking had developed a run, and the obvious attempts of several of the sponsors to prolong their moment of glory by taking short, mincing steps on their trip up the floor, made their way to the few molecules of gray matter that make up my brain and refused to leave.

Not the least of our worries now is to figure out adequate comebacks to those annoying letters a lot of us have been receiving regarding the outcome of the recent basketball game. When you've smoothed over the defeat we suffered in football by asserting that winter will find the Bobcats on the long end of the score at the end of "the" basketball game, gloating friends who backed the winning team don't help the morale any with their short derisive notes.

The way things stand now, it looks like we'll be lapping our milkshakes in the foundry. Herrick Hall has been discarded from the feasible locations for our student union substitute. People who should know say that the metal casters might have to vacate in favor of the bookstore, etc. The plans are still very, very hazy and anything may happen.

Why not an art exhibition for the masses? I'm thinking of one contemporary artist who is extremely popular with all undergraduates; having been "hung" in every fraternity house that boasted the name and whose works are so done that a person with a minimum of color education, knowledge of composition and such matters may enjoy the paintings themselves and not the technical work behind them. While it might be said that the gentleman overemphasizes proportion, the pictures are truly worthy of the praise given them. George Petty has contributed masterpieces that will rank along with those of Corot, Millet, D'Vinci and the other Old World geniuses. He is unique in that his subject matter is one with which we are all familiar but presented in a manner that does not grow boreing or tiresome, which seldom fails to interest the average art lover. I'll bet that this is one art exhibition few would miss, particularly the boys . . . .

Administrators Concede Need For Fraternities

Chicago, Ill. (ACP)—A statement defining fundamentals in the three-cornered relationship of colleges, fraternities and individuals was formally adopted by the Association of American Colleges here recently.

Intended as a "reasonable basis upon which fraternity group life may be organized and maintained," it is to be distributed to all national fraternities and to all colleges at which fraternities are maintained.

SIDELINES

The pressure is finally off. Now maybe the Cats can get down and play the kind of ball that they have played before this season. It seems that when you have fourteen games behind you that you have won, the psychological effect seems to be great and it is hard to play the ball that you can play. Now that the streak is over the Cats will make it very interesting for their remaining opponents.

We are at a loss for an explanation on our losing to the University. As an alibi, this publicity agent for the Cats (see Kaimin for explanation) can only say that the Cats must have had stage fright. They haven't played before a large crowd for so long that it seems strange for them to see the bleachers loaded. Our fans should remember this in ensuing games.

To quote the Kaimin, "Burly Bill Lazetich, smashing Cats right and left, paced the scorers with 14 points." According to some interested spectators, Lazetich did just this. Maybe the Pacific Coast conference doesn't have rules about fouls on a basketball court. Bill should save some of that football for the tough schedule that the University is going up against next fall.

Another excerpt from the Kaimin, "Chumrau fouled Exum but the hot shot failed to come through." We disagree heartily with the Kaimin publicity man. Exum couldn't be a hot shot or he would have swamped the Grizzlies. He is just a smart basketball player who knows enough when he is guarded to feed his fellow player and not try and make a lot of points.

And now to the Cats. You're a great team, fellows, and we haven't yet had a chance to congratulate you on your record. So far only two series blacken that record and we feel that will be all that will be there at the end of the season. You have four games left to play and our only remark is "Let the best team win and let it be the Cats."

To the students I might say, let's get a few holes in those activity tickets and all report to the gym this Friday and Saturday for the Mines games and also be there on March 4 and 5. These last two games are against the University and we are sure the Cats will be no disappointment. Let's be there 1200 strong.

FOUL SHOOTING CONTEST

Last Wednesday the S. A. E. sharpshooters won the Intramural Foul Shooting contest by a scant margin over the Sigma Chi's. Results of the contest are as follows:

Team	Points
1. S. A. E.	133
2. Sigma Chi	132
3. Pi Kappa Alpha	120
4. Kappa Sigma	113
5. Omega Beta	111
6. Lambda Chi	110
7. Alpha Gamma Rho	96
8. Independent	94

Individual honors go to Fjeld, O. B., with 22 points; Annin, S. X., with 20 points, and Bruce Wiley, S. A. E., with 19 points.

First, the statement approves of the fraternity system in its broadest aspects. "The college must recognize, as an essential feature of the educational process, a properly organized and maintained student group life."

The college should delegate to the groups as much responsibility for control of their own affairs as they can assume with profit to all concerned, the statement asserts.

Dean Buy Stanton Ford, acting president of the University of Minnesota, received $5.00 from a movie magazine for a letter sent in, under his name, to its fan mail column. He is still wondering who wrote the letter.

Intellectual Freedom Says Yale President

New Haven, Conn. —(APC)—Pledging Yale to absolute intellectual freedom, Dr. Charles Seymour last week formally accepted the presidency of the university."

"We may look across the seas and take warning," the 52-year-old historian said. "The Yale atmosphere must be so completely impregnated with the sense of freedom that our students going from here will serve naturally and universally as its apostles.

"Every student at Yale should be impressed with the conviction that only through the spread of the liberal attitude in life can the nation find protection from an obscurantist reaction on the one hand or a blind revolution on the other."

Dr. Seymour warned that "unless the complete spirit of academic freedom prevailed among students and scholars, freedom from external influence and internal pressure, we commit the unforgiveable sin against the first academic principles."

He asserted that the absence of the spirit of liberty would be an offense against the principles of education.

"It is not so difficult to achieve intellectual freedom in those fields of study that are somewhat remote from the prejudices and passions of daily life. But in the fields that touch our social, political and economic relationships the principle is much easier to enunciate than to maintain.

"Nevertheless our guarantee of complete liberty of speech must be absolute. In no other way can we discover the truth, correct the half-truth and destroy the lie. . "

A further duty of Yale, Dr. Seymour said is to maintain an atmosphere dominated by spiritual values.

Educators Experiment With New Teaching Theories

Hemstead, N. Y. (ACP)—U. S. educators are watching their pet educational theories being worked out on a real college campus—Horstra, on Long Island.

Here are some of the theories on which educators have been taking sides for the last five years:

There are no survey courses. Hofstra's guiding committee thinks survey courses are too general and "fadish," although plenty of independent work is permitted.

There are no required subjects save English and a language.

Students major not in one subject but in a field of related subjects.

Not only Hofstra's curriculum is unique but its entire set-up is unusual. The college functions under the protecting arm of New York University, though it is 30 miles away.

Hofstra students receive N. Y. U. degrees, if they do satisfactory work. And if they wish, they may transfer to any of the N. Y. U. professional schools after two or three years at Hofstra.

New Furnace

Cambridge, Mass. (ACP)—A new "electron bombardment" furnace permitting scientists to heat metals up to temperatures of 4500 degrees Fahrenheit, nearly half the temperature of the sun, has been perfected by a Harvard metallurgist.

Through the use of the new invention, scientists will be able to study most of the 40 rare metals

The most important feature of the new furnace is that contamination of the metal being studied, by carbon or other impurities, can be entirely eliminated.

In the furnace, such rare metals as vanadium, titanium, columbium and the platinum group, which have been alomst impossible to study because of their high melting points, can be melted into pure alloys.

Sorority League Teams "Give And Take"

The past two weeks have seen a very interesting series of basketball games by the staunch upholders of the campus sororities. Wins and losses were so prominent in every team. The P iPhi's launched a driving attack to come out on top against the determined and stubborn Alpha Gams. At the same time the fighting K. D.'s fell before the determined forward march of the freshmen. The Pi Phis then lost a fast game to those same unbeaten freshmen, but not to be stopped by one defeat, they came back to win an easy victory over the Chi Omegas. This was barely accomplished when the frosh reserves stepped into the picture and trampled the Pi Phis for their second loss to a freshmen squad. As a windup the K. D.'s surged forward to crush a victory out of the frosh reserves, and the Sorority League closed another week of conflict.

BETTY FALLON SAYS SHE WORE . . . .

This time I refuse to bear any responsibility for suggestions, ideas or forecasts. I'm passing the buck in fine style. I go around with a blank look, shrug my shoulders, and say, "I don't know. Go to the Mortar Board Fashion show 'n see for yourself." 'Twill simplify things no end. There you will have it. In the flesh, so to speak. The gals of Mortar Board are giving a Fashion Show Thursday evening and all the dope, data, information and stuff of new spring clothes will be in evidence.

The gals of the campus are modeling and will display everything from housecoats to formals with all the stops in between. There will be representatives of the bolero suit, the new suits with the lapelless (wotta word) jackets and any other inovations that have popped up.

They are planning on having this a really fine affair. All the touches—tea will be served and from all indications 'twould be worth quite a bit.

If any of the stronger sex would be interested they will be most welcome. At least it's an idea. I mean, are you or aren't you interested in gals' clothes? Thursday night will tell.
