

JEST MUSIN'

Come the complaint from a student (I hereby disclaim all responsibility) that the student body is developing into drudges, concerned only with the pursuit of knowledge. It seems as tho this problem goes hand in hand with the various discussions that have been going on about student unions and related matters, in other words, it's a sheep in wolf's clothing. Regardless of what light you look at the matter, the fact still remains that we are here primarily to get an education and all social activities should be incidental to this purpose. But right at this point there's quite a difference of opinion. Some hold that every waking hour should be devoted to studies and play should come when perfection has been achieved in this respect. Others believe that they are here to get an education but not at the expense of the curtailment of all activities.

The time spent on studies is time well used, but time wasted in dawdling here and there is of no value to anyone. The advantages to be gotten from a well rounded social life are to obvious to be ignored.

A bunch of the boys were whooping it up at the Pi Phi Saturday tea, The kid who played the music box wore the pin of an S. A. E. Back in the den on a davenport sat a dangerous Sigma Nu (Missoula) And luring him on with her blue grey eyes was the Pi Phi known as Lou.

When off of the streets that were muddy as hell and onto the clean rugs there, Stumbled a frosh from the Phi Delt (also Missoula) house with Nujol in his hair.

He looked like a man who had danced his last dance, with scarcely the strength of a flea, But he straightened his tie with a steady eye and called for a cup of tea;

There was none who placed that Phi Delt face, though we searched ourselves for a clue.

But we drank to his health and the last to drink was the dangerous Sigma Nu.

His eyes went rubbering round the room, he seemed in sort of a daze, Till at last the blaring Wurlitzer fell in the way of his startled gaze.

The S. A. E. was filing his nails and there was no one else at the vic, So the cross roads frosh stumbled cross the room and stood there like a hick.

In a hand carved shirt of a hue that hurt he stopped and I saw him choose,

From the buttons there, his one best bet, "If It's the Last Think I Do." The record scratched, the needle slipped, the music burst like a flood. And it seemed to say, "We're crabbed, We're licked" and the air was filled with mud;

Then the thought came back of the broken date and it stung like a paddle's whack, And the lust arose to dance, to dance! when the record broke with a crack. The Phi Delt turned and his sad eyes yearned for the girl with the blue-grey eyes.

With his pin of gold and face grown old he stood and I heard him swear; His lips went out in a kind of pout and his phiz was as sad as a crutch. "Now girls," says he "you won't know me, cause I never stepped out with you much,

But I wish to assert thru the words I say, and I'll bet a wafer they're true, That some guy here has done me wrong —he's a blasted Sigma Nu.

I grabbed my watch as the lights went out—two pins flashed in the dark, A woman screamed and the lights went up, sweet shades of Yellowstone Park!

The Phi Delt's crest was pinned to the heaving breast of the Pi Phi known as Lou, While the Pi Phi mother wore a startled look and the pin of a Sigma Nu.

Now this is the low-down on the case —I was there and I ought to know; Some say that the Phi Delt was crazed with tea and I'm not denying it's so—

I'm not so wise as those low school guys but strictly between us two, The woman who doused the glims and picked his pin was the Pi Phi known as Lou.

Dean J. M. Hamilton

Oil Portrait Of Dean Hamilton Will Hang In Herrick Hall

At last the dream and hope of the Alumni has become a reality and Montana State college has been presented with a beautiful portrait of Dean Hamilton. This has been solely a project of the alumni, brought about by individual contributions, and they have been working on it for several years. Last summer after having definitely been decided upon, plans were made to carry out the idea.

The works of a number of artists were under consideration, but it was finally decided to invite Mr. Paul Trebilcock of Chicago and New York.

It was thought when Mr. Trebilcock began painting that he would make a small portrait of Dean Hamilton, but when he started working on it in his studio in New York, he became so interested in Dean Hamilton that he finally decided to paint a large three-quarter length figure. Thus giving to Montana a most distinguished portrait of one of her most prominent men.

"Brick" Breeden

Hubert And Dilling Well Received

The third in the series of community concerts, a joint recital by Marcel Hubert, 'cellist and Mildred Dilling, harpist, was enthusiastically accepted by a near capacity crowd in the gymnasium Tuesday evening.

The celebrated artists were called back for several encores at the end of each of the six divisions in their program, and the Bozeman community enjoyed their selection immensely.

Professor Thaler, Head of Department Of Electrical Engineering, Nationally Known For His Outstanding Work, Dies In Billings Hospital Friday

Joseph A. Thaler, 73, head of the department of electrical engineering at Montana State college for the past 35 years and personal friend of more than 360 graduates of the electrical department, died at Billings at 2:30 p. m., Friday.

Professor Thaler met his classes until two weeks ago when he entered a Billings hospital for treatment.

Men's Co-op House Will Open March 23 With Full Quota

Forty-two Men Will Receive Board And Room From New Organization

The faculty committee selected to choose the appointive officers of the men's cooperative organization gave out the names of the men selected last Saturday. The manager for the spring quarter is to be Barton Hahn; the secretary-treasurer is to be Lyle Miller. These men start their work immediately in preparation for the spring quarter. The house will open on March 23 and will supply 42 boys with board and room. All men whose applications were received before Wednesday, Feb. 23, were accepted for membership. For the benefit of those boys who did not attend the last co-op meeting, each man is required to pay his one dollar membership fee into the office of the alumni secretary, and a $10 advance payment into the treasurer's office.

This latter goes into a fund with which food, etc., necessary to opening the house will be bought. Five dollars of this will be deducted from the first month's expenses and the other five serves as a breakage deposit. Please see that these are paid before the end of this quarter. Further details will be discussed at the close of the regular independent meeting tonight, March 8. Everyone be there.

One of Professor Thaler's teachers at Minnesota was J. H. Gill who had left Minnesota to become assistant professor of mechanical engineering at Montana State college. When an opening occurred in his department he recommended Thaler. Thaler accepted and served until the department was discontinued.

He returned to Minnesota university as an instructor of engineering drawing. After a year he resigned to accept a similar position at Purdue university. He was re-appointed but resigned to become head of the electrical engineering department at Montana State college, the position he now holds.

Palmer, Davidson, Cowley Attend FFA Banquet

State President Bill Davidson of the Future Farmers, Dr. R. H. Palmer and Bill Cowley attended a parent and son banquet given in Townsend Friday the 4th.

President Davidson brought out the importance of vocational education in the modern community and touched on the work of the boys in different schools. He also gave a brief summary of this trip to Kansas City early last fall to attend the National Future Farmer convention.

The Townsend chapter quartet sang several vocal numbers in the line of entertainment.

Spurs Hold Annual Frosh Banquet

The annual Spur Banquet was held at the Presbyterian church Wednesday evening, March 2. This dinner is given for the freshmen girls under the sponsorship of the local Spur chapter. With 128 guests present, the dinner was one of the largest of its kind held on this campus. The main speaker of the evening was Miss Martha Hawksworth, an alumnus from the Spur chapter at Puget Sound, Washington, who gave an interesting account of the early history of this national organization.

Other entertainment was comprised of two readings by Jean Duncan, songs by Carolyn Gay and impromptu speeches by active Spurs and freshmen women. During the course of the dinner both college and Spur songs were sung by the group.

Montana State chapter of Spurs is the mother chapter and faculty adviser is Miss Mildred Leigh, who spoke on the ideals of Spur, thus giving the freshmen women an idea of Spurs as a service group.

Professor Thaler was born in Kitzbuhel, Austria in the shadow of the Tyrolean Alps. Dissatisfied with the locksmith trade, his first engineering experience, he emigrated to the United States at an early age and satisfied his first longing for the west.

He landed in the United States in 1886 eventually reaching Springfield, Mo., where he worked for six months in a machine shop. The west called him again and he moved to Gunnison, Colo. His position as a locksmith there disappeared with the depression and he joined the 6th U. S. Infantry.

When Professor Thaler embarked for the United States, he knew no English. He picked up a smattering of it on the ship, took to it avidly in his first two positions. By the time he joined the army he could read and write reasonably well and received a job of clerk.

He was discharged from the army in 1892 and moved to Minneapolis where he worked in the business of a transit company. Called upon to aid college students in making reports, while on the job, gave him a desire to acquire a college education.

He registered in electrical engineering at the University of Minnesota in 1896 with no other educational training than the equivalent of a grade school education in Austria and what he had picked up of English in 10 years.

One of Professor Thaler's teachers at Minnesota was J. H. Gill who had left Minnesota to become assistant professor of mechanical engineering at Montana State college. When an opening occurred in his department he recommended Thaler. Thaler accepted and served until the department was discontinued.

He returned to Minnesota university as an instructor of engineering drawing. After a year he resigned to accept a similar position at Purdue university. He was re-appointed but resigned to become head of the electrical engineering department at Montana State college, the position he now holds.

At Montana State college he served under Presidents J. M. Hamilton, Dr. Alfred Atkinson and Dr. A. L. Strand. All three have the highest praise for him as a co-worker, regard him highly as a leader among the faculty, and attribute to him a sympathetic understanding of youth.

"In his long career at Montana State college, Professor Thaler has never forgotten the human element in dealing with students," says President Strand. "A wise counsellor, he smoothed the way for many who found the transition from high school to college difficult. At the same time he demanded that his students be well prepared before they left his department. Every graduate of Thaler's department who returns to Montana State college seeks out their former teacher first."

Spartanians Redecorate Gym Lounge Room

As a part of their yearly project Spartanian, local athletic honorary for junior and senior women, has completed the redecorating of the women's organization room in the gymnasium. Linoleum in a pattern of orange and dark brown to harmonize with the color scheme of the furniture in the room has been laid over the former red cement floor, and a coat rack with hangers has been supplied for the use of Montana State college girls, which should detract from the general confusion which formerly prevailed in the room on the nights of dances in the gymnasium. The completion of the project has made the room much more attractive and useable, and should prove its worth to the girls of the college.

Reporter Ferrets History Of 'Looters And Tormentors'

Several years ago "The Loot," an original play written by Mr. Jason Boles, was the principle for a dramatic club which gave much entertainment to this educational institution. The play, a musical show, was very successful. The group which presented the play was inspired on and decided to continue to present plays every year. However there was no local talent to produce plays, so a great number of rather unconsensual productions were given. The musical in these plays was sometimes substituted by popular music of the day. This group of dramatic enthusiasts organized into the "Looters" club the name originating from the first successful play they gave.

One person could not hold membership to both of these clubs. "The Tormentors" were great rivals of the "Looters." The two organizations had no business dealings with each other until Mr. Bert Hansen joined the faculty on this campus. Both of the clubs wanted Mr. Hansen to work with them. Thus it was necessary for the "Looters" and "Tormentors" to become one organization.

Frances Smith Returns From Graduate Work At Cornell

C. Taylor, extension director, announced today.

During Miss Smith's absence the home demonstration program has been carried on under the direction of Mrs. Doris I. Anderson, Yellowstone county home demonstration agent, who became acting state leader.

JOSEPH A. THALER

Coming to Montana State college when the institution was yet in its swaddling clothes, Professor Joseph A. Thaler has been actively identified, not only with the growth of the electrical engineering department of which he was the head, but with the growth of the entire institution as well.

Buildings were few and equipment meagre when Professor Thaler met his first classes on the hill in 1901. His first engagement at Montana State was of short duration, for after one year's service he went to Purdue University. However, he was recalled to Montana State in 1903 to head the department of electrical engineering, a position he held until his death.

His success is measured by the success of his graduates who are holding positions of responsibility and trust throughout North and South America.

A wise counsellor who appreciated the difficulties of his beginners, he nevertheless was an exacting task master; a fact that in no small way accounted for his success and the esteem in which he was held.

He valued the friendship of his students as they valued his counsel. It was his custom each year to write a personal letter of holiday greetings to each of his graduates. By so doing his mailing list of his own graduates is perhaps more accurate than any other on the hill and the response was always a source of satisfaction to him.

Born in a foreign country, handicapped by lack of an early education, Professor Thaler demonstrated that the will to do was the prime qualification in reaching the top.

Hundreds of former students are better citizens because of his friendly help and encouragement and his example of clean living.

As this is written the flag hangs at half mast as a symbol of respect and as the word goes out of his passing, graduates on two continents will pause to pay homage to the man whose learning placed them where they are.

He has earned his place among Montana's State immortals. His chair will be hard to fill but his family may rest secure in the knowledge that the success of his students is the greatest reward that can come to anyone whose life has been devoted to education.

TO SELF-STYLED JOURNALISM PROFESSORS

Frequent reports have come to this office concerning the criticism of the EXPONENT made by various professors on the campus. A confirmation of these reports and some of the remarks that have been made have prompted this open challenge to the unnamed educators who make it their business to tell uninterested listeners of our mistakes rather than carrying the information to the places where it may be used to an advantage.

We do not contend that we are professional journalists of any sort, in fact the majority of the staff has had little training outside the meager experience of their work on the paper here. We welcome this criticism of the paper but we do not feel that the self-styled critics who do profess some knowledge of journalistic practice are justified in using their classrooms as a vent for their personal opinions.

The office is always open, mail is delivered twice daily, and the editor and staff may be found about the campus at any time. If these professors feel that their opinions are valuable enough and

PASTE POT AND SCISSORS

Yea, Bobcats! We're so upset from the weekend of yelling—but it was well worth it. Have lost our voices, we're practically beaten black and blue by the people sitting next to us—we feel like we'd been pulled through a knothole—but are we ever exuberant with it all! Oh boy! We must get back to the things at hand though—and so to the column:

"Hey, you guys! Where are you carrying that fellow? Is he drunk?"

"No."

"Sick, maybe?"

"No."

"Oh, just a gag, huh?"

"No, no gag."

"I know, he has dizzy spells."

"Nope, been healthy all of his life."

"Very tired, I guess."

"No."

"Well, what the devil is the matter with him?"

"He's dead."

Russ Neil has invented a new game which he plays with anyone who will play with him and it is called "Mississippi." Here are the rules of playing the game, given to us directly by ye editor. First you take a long tall glass and fill it up with some delightful mixture, like 90 proof coffee. Then you get a partner. This partner is your opponent. How can a partner be an opponent? Russ invented this game and he made his own rules as he went along. Then you and your partner-opponent start playing the game called "Mississippi." First you take a sip. Then your partner takes a sip. And so on. And the first one to Mississippi is a sissy.

Professor Grieder: "You missed my class yesterday, didn't you?"

Betty Watson: "Not in the least, sir, not in the least."

accurate enough to be worth our use, why don't they bring them in rather than beating around the academic bush and expect us to receive them second-hand from the student whom they try to impress with their critical brick-bats.

The EXPONENT is a student organ and does not ordinarily support faculty control. However the above mentioned criticisms would not be in the category of control but would only be received as constructive suggestions which we could use to produce a better paper for the student body.

BOBCATS OUTSCORE GRIZZLIES FOR CROWN

Exum, Ogle, Feldman And Berg Shine In "U" Series

Montana State's gold-plated Bobcats pulled out of their three weeks' slump and gave the University Grizzlies two 24-carat beatings. The two-game series was packed as full of thrills as any basketball games could be.

Ogle and Exum were the outstanding players of the series, but two Bobcat substitutes, Berg and Feldman, were the sparking power of the second game. Feldman chalked up 17 points to take second high score honors for the Bobcats in his final collegiate game.

The Grizzlies started strong and ran up an 8-4 lead before the Bobcats began hitting. Ogle and Exum poured in 5 points to give the Cats a 10-9 lead which they maintained throughout the game, although twice the Grizzlies closed up within three points.

Corbin was pulled out of the game early in the first half with three fouls, but despite his loss, the team continued to burn the net to pile up a 36-28 lead at half time.

The "U" boys came back strong in the second half to close the gap at 39-36 before the Bobcat regulars opened up to run out a 51-38 lead.

With almost four minutes of play remaining, the Grizzly defense cracked and Ogle slipped in to put the game on ice with two of the "prettiest" shots of the game.

Sparked by the brilliant playing of two substitutes, the Bobcats displayed their championship form in winning an overtime game to trounce the Grizzlies 64 to 60 in the second of a two game series.

The lead changed hands five times during the regular period with the Grizzlies out in front for most of the playing time. With seven minutes of play remaining in the second half the Grizzlies built up a 51-41 lead, which the Bobcats quickly overcame to end the game 59-59.

The Cats went into the second half on the short end of a 34-30 score, which they built up to a 38-41 tie. The U. pulled ahead and stayed in front until the closing minutes when the Cats again pulled up.

Feldman and Berg stood out in the overtime period, with swift passes and well-timed interceptions. Feldman stole the ball from University dribblers several times and Berg controlled most of the backboard play at both ends.

Ogle put the Cats ahead with an easy tip in shot at the start of the overtime and Berg sank a free throw to bring the count to 62-59. Seyler narrowed the lead to 62-60 before leaving the game with the limit in personal fouls. Feldman and Corbin scored gift shots to bring the lead to 64-60 a few seconds before the game ended.

The box score:

"QUOTABLE QUOTES"

"Civilization has advanced, in my opinion, not because of any improvement of mental quality in the masses but rather because the realization of the material advantages to be gained from the toleration of genius has slowly percolated into the minds of the majority of our species." Dr. Earnest A. Hooton, professor of anthropology and curator of Peabody Museum at Harvard, argues that social, material and intellectual progress are always the results of the effort of the gifted individual.

SIDELINES

"It is always darkest before the dawn." This old axiom came to be true Saturday evening when the Cats pulled from behind with but several seconds to play and then went out in front. In fact, in my opinion, the Grizzlies were very lucky to tie it up.

"A team that won't be beat, can't be beat." This also proved to be so as the more determined Cats downed the Pacific Coast boys. It took a lot of guts to win that ball game and the final score shows that the Bobcats had most of them.

Hot, those Grizzlies were sizzling Saturday night. We wish hereafter when the Fangs are showing visiting teams the campus, they wouldn't let them play around the horse barns.

Two of those forgotten men came through Saturday night. "Tuffy" Feldman, long forgotten forward, saved the Cats the game as he stopped Grizzly plays time and again at the center line and took the ball away from the great backboard men of the "U" to tip in rebounds. The other was Jean Berg, stellar defensive man, playing a truly inspired game he was also a leader in that late two minute rally.

As usual Bill Ogle played his stellar game. Easily the smoothest player on the court, not discounting the presence of the great "Lazo" and Seyler, he was one of the high scorers the first night and led in scoring the second night. He's the best center seen in these parts since the days of Frank Ward.

A peculiar incident last fall came to my mind last Saturday when I watched Jiggs Dahlberg, the Missoula coach. During a time out for one of the players who was suffering injuries in the Bobcat-Grizzly game, Jack Croft came on the field. At once there was nothing but beefs from Missoula players. Until the coach stepped outside the line, the air was blue with their retorts. However, nothing was said about Jiggs Dahlberg wearing out a spot in front of the bench, incidentally being part of the playing floor, and minding the scorer's job and also playing sore-head.

Montana State has high regard for visiting teams, students and coaching staffs but they held little of this after Saturday night. "Dirty Bill" of poetry fame, lived up to his name both nights as he got thrown out the first night and fouled out the second. "Big Shot" Nugent also forgot he was playing basketball and wanted to show his pugilistic powers. He should have stayed in Missoula for the minor sports meet. Seyler, Sundquist and other Grizzly players also showed their hot-headedness when Mike or Westfall called a close one. The Bobcats at least beefed through their legal mouthpieces, the co-captains of the team.

To Joe Marianna can go a lot of credit. "Tiger" Joe played great ball and showed very little interest in the Grizzly mixups with the Cats and officials. He seemed also disgusted with several University "M" men for their razz section. He seemed to realize he was in Bozeman to play basketball.

Nick Yovetich and Bill Holloway led very capable "M" club razz section. We prefer Bill's style of leading to Nick's however, he puts his heart and soul into those dances.

W. A. A. Picks All-Star Women Basketballers

The great event of the winter quarter in the line of sports has happened! The girls' "Varsity team" in basketball was chosen last Wednesday night at 5:00. This is an all-star team picked from all the participants in basketball this quarter. The choice is based on the keeping of training rules, membership in W. A. A., ability in the game, and good sportsmanship. The stars of the 1933 season are Elsie Ellingson, "Mickey" Green, Daisy Flick, Dorothy Bunker, Mary Barlow, Evelyn Haigh, and Virginia Hall.

This week the telegraphic swimming meet with Missoula takes place. It promises to be novel, entertaining and exciting, for all the swimmers are experts. Monday and Wednesday evenings at 7:30 everyone is invited to gather at the pool.

The basketball tournament is rapidly drawing to a close with the Independent Reds leading, the Alpha Gams in second place, and the Pi Phi's following in third place. This week will determine the final ratings.

Exum, Ogle And Cosner Are Chosen All-Conference, All-Montana Players

Emphasis was placed on offensive ability in the Associated Press All-Rocky Mountain Conference basketball team for 1933.

The saying that "the best defense is a good offense" as four of the selections were better known for scoring feats. Montana State monopolized first string selections with three spots filled.

Here's the team: Forwards—Eddie Exum, Montana State, and Marshall Seraphine, Western State; center—Bill Ogle, Montana State; guards—Don Cosner, Montana State and Leroy Mueller, Western State.

All of the players but Cosner topped the 100-point mark. Exum with 228 points, Ogle 170, Seraphine 147, Mueller 127.

The other two members of the 1933 Cat team, Dick Little and Jody Corbin were placed on the second and third teams respectively.

Cat Minor Sports Men Nosed By Grizzlies

Montana University won the Minor Sports meet staged in Missoula, last Friday and Saturday night, with a 55½ point lead topping Montana State College's 45½ points.

A lone fall in seven wrestling matches gave the U a two point advantage which added to the eight-point lead gained in swimming proved the deciding factor.

Each team won two decisions in boxing, with no knockouts for a 6 to 6 split. Both teams scored three wins in wrestling with one draw, but Ryffel's victory over Allen, Bobcat, proved the turning point.

Boxing results: Kenneth Lewis, 167, University, outpointed Bill Holloway, 183, College, in three rounds.

John Schwartz, College, 160, punched Frank Pipeil, 157, University, for a three-round decision.

Joe McLaughlin, 177, University, won an easy decision from Dean Lillis, College, sending Lillis to his knees with a first round wallop.

Shirley Shinn, 136, College, drove three hard rights in the first and another in the second to gain from Ernie Reed, 136, University.

The wrestling results: Joe Crisafulli, who appeared twice during the evening, took his 146 pounds into the ring to win decisively by Hal Steese, 145, College, in nine minutes.

George Ryffel, 177, University, threw Don Allen, Cat, with an arm bar and half Nelson in 7 minutes 42 seconds.

George Konsmo, 118, Bobcat, won a decision from Leland Yates, 118, University, on a first minute headlock.

Art Kennedy, 126, university, gave the best exhibition of the evening in winning a decision from Bob Balhiser, 124, College, in nine minutes.

Roy Tokerud, 163, College, won a decision from Bob Paeyre, 166, University in nine minutes.

A draw was the decision after two overtime periods between Joe Crisafulli, 146, University, and Ted Witrak, 153, College.

Swimming: 160-yard free style relay—University (Krell, Blumfield, Olson, Lowery), first, one minute 25.4 seconds.

40-yard free style Lowery, University, first; McBain, College, second; Schaffer, College, third, 20.6 seconds.

100-yard backstroke—Van Winkle, College, first; Burgess, University, second; Forsyth, College, third; 1 minute 16.4 seconds.

100-yard free style—Krell, University, first; Roberts, College, second;

The all-star team for the state of Montana this year is being selected from players on the three major squads in the state. They are picked as a result of all season performances and not as a result of any game or series of games against each other.

On the first team, the five outstanding men of the state, all stellar ball handlers and outstanding in their respective conferences have been picked. Bill, Ogle, of Montana State, is easily the outstanding candidate for this center position. A terror on offense and a bulwark of defense, Bill is the best ball handler in the State. Ed Exum, Montana, and Bill Lazetich, Montana U., are outstanding forwards. Exum was a leading scorer for the Cats all season while Lazetich was the spear head of the Grizzly attack. In the guard positions, outstanding men are Cosner, Bobcat, and Miller, Grizzly. One of the best defensive guards seen hereabouts for a long time, Cosner proved to be invaluable as a pillar of defense. Miller was outstanding in defense as well as being a leading scorer for the Grizzlies.

The second team is composed of Seyler, Montana, center; Little, Montana State, and Worsdell, Montana Mines, forwards; Chamberlain, Montana Mines, and Corbin, Montana State, guards. Worsdell and Chamberlain although playing few teams with reputations have proved their right to positions by consistent scoring and iron man defensive and floor work. Seyler was chosen for his consistent backboard work while Corbin and Little were both outstanding players for the Cats.

Fire In Montana Hall Causes Little Damage

Yesterday afternoon during the final dress rehearsal of one of the one-act plays presented last night, a small fire broke out on the stage of the Little Theater in Montana Hall.

The blaze was started when a candle used on the set was overturned and set fire to a sofa. The costume worn by Phyllis McKeever a member of the cast, also caught fire but serious injury was avoided by prompt extinguishing of the burning dress.

Damage other than to the sofa and costume was reduced to a minimum by the action of the rest of the cast in smothering and trampling the flames until they were under control. The College fire department which arrived soon after found its services unnecessary in saving the building.

and; Blumfield, University, third, 1 minute 5.5 seconds.

100-yard breast stroke—Chichester, University, Bruce, College, second; Hurdle, College, third; 1 minute 18.9 seconds.

220-yard free style—Olson, University, first; Dana, College, second, Briggs, College, third, 2 minutes 56.7 seconds.

Diving—Frisbee, College, first, 97.35 points; Roberts, College, second, 86.45 points; Shaw, University, third, 85 points. In winning Frisbee, gave a very clever and artistic demonstration of skill in the different dives.

180-yard medley relay—University (Bruggess, Chichester, Lowery), first, 1 minute 59.7 seconds.

Best time was that made in the backstroke by Van Winkle, according to records. James King, University freshman, swam a 200-yard breast-stroke exhibition in 2 minutes 40 seconds, two seconds slower than the coast conference record. Don Shawhill, University freshman, swam a 220-yard free style exhibition of 2 minutes 38.6 seconds.
