Sabol blasts Burlington Northern, Montana Power

By Joe Nistler

"The Butte copper kings exploited and consumed Butte’s resources and then left the city to die. Now we are faced to deal with coal, timber and water kings in Montana the likes of which Butte never saw," said state senate candidate Joseph Sabol Wednesday night in the SUB.

Sabol said the two major threats to the resources in Montana come from Montana Power and Burlington Northern.

"They have the manpower, assets and possible court help in getting these resources," he said. "Everyday we see Montana Power television ads designed to mesmerize the public. Yet they are developing power plants in Eastern Montana without telling the public," said Sabol.

Moving to the subject of Burlington Northern, Sabol said, "It probably has the longest track length in the country, plus billions of tons of recoverable coal and thousands of acres of timberlands."

Sabol said that it is BN's plan, under executive Norton Simon, to develop satellite cities in Montana situated next to the BN tracks in an effort to increase their railroad sales and service and bring "progress" to Montana.

Taking yet another swipe at BN, Sabol said, "BN now wants a rate increase, yet they were able to trade 1800 acres of land to Chet Huntley to buy 5.9 percent of Big Sky."

"If they have money problems, they should concentrate on improving their operation rather than getting into the Big Sky program."

"Burlington Northern officially values their land at $1 an acre, and put no value on the mineral rights to that land. They cannot be as poor as they say," he stated.

Sabol also said he was in favor of a timber bill which would require Montana Power to notify the state legislature how much timber they planned to cut before the bill is passed.

Expanding on this, Dorothy Bradley, candidate for the state house, said, "With the coal development in eastern Montana, they are developing power plants in Eastern Montana to mesmerize the public. Yet they are developing power plants in Eastern Montana for assistance."

Optional eats coming

The optional meal ticket plan for students living in dormitories will not go into effect this fall quarter, but perhaps this winter quarter according to Glenn Lewis, head of On Campus Living.

Lewis explained that a statement from On Campus Living must be presented to the students followed by a survey before further action can be taken. One of the cafeterias may be forced to close as a result of less food consumed.

On Campus Living has monetary commitments of 18 million dollars in bonds to meet. It receives income from residences, married student housing, and food. No state or federal money is given at all for assistance.

MontPIRG having problems

Organization seems to be the major difficulty with MontPIRG this fall quarter according to Alan Stoops and Tom Schmidt, both members of the group.

MontPIRG, the Washington state student action group, folded. Will MontPIRG do the same? Not necessarily, according to Stoops and Schmidt, if the current need for elections and directors are met. A meeting Wednesday evening brought a twelve member student group plus two faculty members.

Another MontPIRG meeting will be held Wednesday, October 25, at 7:00 pm in the SUB and interested students and faculty are encouraged to attend.

"Anyone who paid the voluntary $1.00 fee will be voting as a member," said Tom Schmidt. Last year over 50% of the MSU students signed cards to get the Board of Regents to review the MontPIRG petition for funding. The petition passed for voluntary funding only, but since it was passed last summer it was unable to be (Continued on page 3)

Classified personnel get chance to gripe

By Joe Nistler

Classified personnel, those employees at MSU who are neither faculty nor administration, will be given a chance November 2 to express their opinion on how they want to be represented on the university’s Personnel Board.

Throughout the past summer, a group of classified personnel (excluding the labor unions) had a number of meetings with C. C. Dye, director of personnel at MSU, to discuss a list of grievances they had — including an incomplete wage scale which did not allow for merit pay or longevity pay, and nonexistent representation on the Personnel Board.

Dye explained to them that the classified personnel system was set up as a pilot program by the Montana legislature in 1969 and instituted at MSU by then-acting President Bill Hamilton Hall, campus architect Andy van Teylingen stated that bids will be let sometime in December for the building, which will cover an approximate area of 250 feet by 250 feet.

Kennedy hits Nixon's avoidance of press

Senator Edward Kennedy, Kennedy was speaking to the State Democratic Committee Rally held in Butte last Saturday.

"Not since television invented the modern press conference have we had a president who tries so hard to avoid the scrutiny of the press...Richard Nixon is the man who must bear the responsibility, he is no where in the peoples sight. He won't debate George McGovern. He won't discuss the issues. He is keeping himself a secret."

Hibbard gets hot Variety of financial aid available

Henry S. Hibbard, Republican candidate for the United States Senate seat now held by Lee Metcalf, charged that his opponent is again using the same old tactics of slip, slide and duck on the issues of the campaign. His cry of foul play is nothing more than an ill conceived plan to play on the voters' sympathies. This, I am sure will not work. He knows he is not being maligned in any shape or form.

Hibbard continued, "I have discussed only his record as a United States Senator. My information on these issues came directly from the Congressional Record and his official voting record in the Senate. If these are lies, as he states, the official documents of the Senate are false."

In conclusion, Hibbard said, "I have tried to draw him out on his record as a United States Senator, but to date, I haven't even had a grunt out of him. It's his record I am discussing, he made it up. Why doesn't he defend it? Could it be he is ashamed of his record because it is dirty politics so be it. The people of Montana have a right to know and want some answers on his record. Accusing me of lying in the campaign is a new low for him."

"Financial aid is still available for students showing a financial need," said James Craig, Director of Financial Aid. "This is mostly in the form of loans and off-campus jobs. More funds will become available as some students withdraw from school, Craig added.

"The loans available are the National Direct Student Loans (NSDL), formerly called the National Defense Student Loans, and the Nursing Student loans. Under NSDL, undergraduates may now borrow up to $5,000 while graduates may borrow up to $2,500 to $10,000. The teacher cancellation clause has also been changed.

The new rate is 15% for the first two years, 20% for the next two years, and 30% for the fifth year, only for teachers in schools where students are predominantly from low income families, or in programs such as Headstart, or teachers of handicapped children.

Most of the jobs available to students are off-campus jobs. According to Paul Tone, Student Employment Coordinator, more outside interests are seeking student employees than in the past. There is also a greater variety of these jobs. Off-campus employment is much easier to find in the fall and spring.

On-campus job openings are filling up fast. These are mostly clerical workers, lab workers, food service workers. Pay ranges from $1.60 to $2.50 with the average pay being $1.80. The Financial Aid office also urges students to inquire at their departments for employment.

Last spring, the work-study funds for MSU was decreased 35%. Most of the decrease was absorbed in the summer work-study funds. A number of students on work-study last summer decreased by 233 students or 13.6%. This is a slight decrease in the work-study funds for the present academic year.

GREAT FALLS — With a forecast of purchasing about 100 million bushels of U.S. wheat this marketing year and about one-half of it from Montana, a seven-man Japanese government wheat mission starts a four-day tour in Montana Sunday.

Bob Brastrup, executive secretary of the Montana Wheat Research and Marketing Committee, and Glenn Moore, Willard, the committee chairman, will meet the Japanese group in Williston, N.D.

The first Montana stop will be a visit to Dr. Ray and Myrtle Barrington and Froid farmers and businessmen. Sunday evening the entourage goes to Wolf Point, where the chamber of commerce will host and Roger (Sweede) Johnson, a wheat commission grower member, will take Moore's place with the group for further travels.

Monday morning the team visits Craig, a grower in Wolf Point and then wheat farms and country elevators enroute to Havre, where the chamber of commerce will sponsor a dinner.

Ed Bell, Ledger, another grower member of the wheat commission, takes Johnson's escort role with the Japanese mission for the remainder of their Montana stay.

He emphasized the wheat commission was aware of concern expressed in recent months by the Japanese that the Russian wheat sales may have depleted U.S. supplies.

Brastrup also explained the Wheat Research and Marketing Committee's role in wheat promotion, saying Japanese executives are expected to be somewhat unhappy over the fact Japan has been the largest cash customer of U.S. wheat for many years but now finds itself paying 25 to 30 cents more than the domestic price for wheat as a result of the managed market.

Montana, we are facing a greater energy monopoly than Montana has ever faced before."

Of the six companies involved in the strip-mining operation in the state, at least three are subsidiaries of larger energy companies, she contended.

She said that Peabody is part of Kennebec Copper. Consolidation is a portion of Continental Oil and Western Energy is a subsidiary of Montana Power.

The other three companies involved are Knife River, Decker and Westmoreland.

"This energy monopoly, taken as a group nationally, are responsible for maintaining oil import quotas that cost consumers additional $5 billion more a year and makes strip-mining profitable. And then they pay about zero taxes because of oil depletion allowances," said Ms. Bradley.

Dan Yardley, another state candidate for Attorney General, said, "This administration says they are for tax reform -- they have a secret plan for tax reform. I think it just as secret as that plan to end the war, it just doesn't exist."

Kennedy went on to criticize the administration for corruption and favoritism of special interests. He used examples: the Russian wheat deal, the ITT incident, the Watergate burglary, and even the Montana Power Company's utility rate increase.

organized in time for Fall registration.

At least 40% of the student body is needed to pay the voluntary $1.00 fee in order to support organized investigations of laws and projects. Stoops and Schmidt revealed that MontPIRG would like to see mandatory payment of the $1.00 fund, but it would require another petition. "We'll see how this voluntary thing works first," Stoops explained.

During pre-registration this Winter quarter advisors will present a MontPIRG form along with your other forms. Students desiring to help finance MontPIRG are requested to return the form and one dollar along with their other forms to the Registrar. The one dollar will then be added to the sum of the student's fees.

Schmidt stated that there are "no obligations to Ralph Nader in any way, although he inspired the first pigr groups." Stoops added that MontPIRG is "student-run, student organized, and completely a student organization."

I have had a conversion experience, which will come as a shock to constant readers. I have seen positive proof of reincarnation. It occurred once before, but I rejected it then. But now the light has dawned. I now accept the rejection of New York, in a showing of 2001. So far in the creative, I am not the movie reviewer, but the Satirist, the death of the reincarnation of P.T. Barnum. And as proof of the mutability of nature, there is still one born every minute, or, with our modern, fast pace, every thirty-eight seconds. And they all go to college.

It is a put-ones and gentlemen, a pure put-on. But Burgess wrote grim irony. I'm told that version of the book. And the fact is a very watered-down revolve around how Kampf. The other concerns consequently heard conversation important a statement the gentlemen, a pure put-on . But so you won't be treated to I am not the movie reviewer, because, as they said, as the inability to dis­ tinguish between real ideas and symbols by which people live. To those who would restrict the meaning of ritual it might be pointed out that it is the failure to do these very things in the face of opportunism, a shabby human life has its ups and downs, its beat and rhythm. And the function of ritual is to respond to these changing lives, to reflect prevailing lifestyles, to highlight the uselessness of the universe, and symbols by which people live.

By Father C. J. Kelly

Catholic Chaplain — MSU

Some students once came to me that the shortest distance between people is a ritual of some sort. This weekend should then see people drawn closer together because it will provide a surfeit of ritual. This is the function of ritual — to bring the conveniences and the November election is already heavily due. Partly this weekend.

And now comes Homecoming '72 with a plethora of name entertainers, festivities and游戏性 activities that bring with bands and a coronation, parties and celebrations. And for the indefatigable there is the World Series and the pro-footbal weekend.

To cite the events of the weekend as examples of ritual, might appear as a type of opportunism, a shabby attempt. No one ever sees the religious to the mundane by making the latter say things that ring true .

Each of us has experienced the sense that things ring true. Perhaps we will share it again this weekend: music and dance, a shape, a color, a sound. And the function of ritual is to respond to these changing mores, to reflect prevailing life.

Guest Editorial

One of the oldest complaints at MSU is the housing situation. There isn't enough, and what's available costs too much. This is true not only of campus, but with housing owned and operated by the University.

This situation is perpetuated in two ways: the inability to provide adequate and affordable family dwellings. With the recent demise of the Legal Aid Services, the student tenant is even further up the proverbial creek.

But the fact remains that students do have rights as tenants and these rights are obtainable. The biggest stumbling block is lack of knowledge. Some landlords don't realize they are violating tenant's rights. If legal advice is too expensive for tenants, the same is often true for landlords.

The Tenant Action Project has been formed by a group of students to work on the housing problem in Bozeman.

Another goal is to highlight and expose some of the worst ripoffs taking place. Needed is to learn, anonymity is the rule in all cases.

In the next day or so, signs will appear around campus and in the news. Housing hassles will be asked to leave a phone number so they can be contacted by the Tenant Action Project. Bringing specific housing problems out into the open is the only way to learn something about the bigger hassles with keeping a roof over one's head, glory, and the landlords taking it upon themselves to act as surrogate parent.

The tradition animal explained

Traditions are very peculiar animal. The birth of a tradition, and its early childhood goes relatively unnoticed. But it's not until the tradition has reached full maturity that people give it any notice at all. By then it is too late.

The tradition is a heartless animal. It preys on the minds of people, making their minds until all that is left is the jello-soft shell of their individuality. Even though the tradition stumbles and falls in its final hours, it takes the bravest and most gallant of warriors to overcome it. While its victims look on helplessly, these heroic soldiers go marching off, uncertain whether they would return. This campus has its own tradition running loose. It is perhaps one of the most popular traditions, for it has brothers and sisters almost everywhere the campus in the nation.

One of these traditions, brothers and sisters, have already grown old and have given birth to brothers and sisters. Others are still running amuck, only they are not the countryside as they go.

For lack of a better name, we refer to our tradition as Homecoming.

Ours is not one of the youngest of the breed. It is something that will always go on to growing restlessly in anticipation of the battle before them. The battle is not far off. In the utter surprise of the multitudes, some citizens are outspokenly supporting this beast. It is said that there is no better way of sacrificing three young maidens to suffice this beast. It is further said that these unselfish young ladies volunteered, yes, I said volunteered, to be the beast.

With no other motive in mind, these heroic beauties will ride on to infamy the streets of this town with a smile on their lips and the knowledge that they have saved the heart of the earth and of human effort.

Emptiness and isolation can be overcome. And, the more each of us gets in touch with the full implications of our Christian heritage, the more readily we might develop affinities for these rituals. The source of genuinely Christian ritual is the victory of life over death accomplished once for all by a carpenter over 2,000 years ago. Because of that we are all free to live life fully, knowing that death does not have the last word.

And any time that this awareness is represented, I relate that with it and bring the fact of Jesus Christ into our awareness. It is not that there are times of Christian ritual. It is the ultimate story behind true ritual: life is for living. "... and they might have life and have it more abundantly." (John 10:10).
Lick ice cream prices

To the editors:

I realize that one's college days are spattered with traumatic and disheartening experiences, from receiving your monthly bank statements to bombing another test, but perhaps the most tragic incident that has happened to me in my four years at MSU occurred but a few days ago.

It was one of those sunny, everybody's smiling, "God, it's great to be alive" days. While strolling through the SUB, I dug into my pocket and found that I was the proud owner of one, single, solitary dime.

At once I made a mad dash for the cafeteria, my tongue hanging out in anticipation of a double-decker strawberry ice cream cone. WOW! Did it look good! I immediately began quaffing it down as I handed the lady the dime.

"That will be fifteen cents?" the girl said, "but that will be fifteen cents." I would have reached out and beat me to death with the "gold old days!" something about student government. Aha, he says. He becomes an MRA rep and on the second meeting finds out that the president of MRA did bring it up on the On-Campus living committee and was told that it was illegal to bring up the same rule change more than twice a year, but we'll let you this time.

However, it was a lost cause, for six were administrators and three were students. "Equal government."

The eager young freshman student looks through the propaganda every young freshman receives and gawks, for he reads that every student is given as much responsibility as is possible and then he reads the glowing lines about student government, where everybody is represented as fairly and equally as possible.

Wow, this is great! he thinks. At last I can live life as an adult!! Then he finds that he has worse hours than he did at home. Unless he wants to walk all over campus for some privacy, he might as well give up the ship at seven, besides she has to be in at twelve anyway.

So then he remembers something about student representation?" goes a little voice in our froshes mind.

The AWS representative said the girls would be angry if this went through so she voted against it. Later she found out that she was a sorority member.

One administrator voted for it. So our frosh with a heavy heart decided that it really wasn't that much different from high school after all.

Scholarship up for grabs

Each year the Montana CowBelles offer a $300 college scholarship to an unmarried girl from a Montana home. She must be attending an accredited Montana institution of higher education, either private or public. She must be entering her junior year of college to receive the scholarship although application is made as a sophomore. She must also be majoring in Home Economics or a field allied with agriculture and she must have a college grade average of 2.7 or better.

The deadline for submitting application to the chairman of the scholarship committee is February 1, 1973. Application blanks may be obtained from the Dean of Women Students or the Director of the School of Home Economics.

This is the eleventh year that this scholarship, which is in three installments, has been given. This year the scholarship is to be known as the Azile Garrison Memorial Scholarship. Mrs. Garrison was a past president of both the Montana CowBelles and the American National CowBelles.

The winner is selected by a committee of CowBelle members appointed by the President, Mrs. Harry Williams, of Alder. The recipient and her parents will be honored at a luncheon during the state CowBelle convention in May.

Any interested sophomore girl should contact her Home Economics department immediately or write Mrs. Warren H. Ross, State Scholarship Chairman, Chinook, Montana 59223.

Speech setting sights

The Yellowstone meet, hosted by Eastern Montana College, saw MSU take second place, sweeping honors behind the University of North Dakota. Sixteen schools were entered in competition.

Wayne Houston, a junior from Kalispell, took first place in oral interpretation.

Thomas and Ditton also made it to senior debate quarterfinals, winding up in third place overall.

In junior debate, MSU fielded "the strongest squad we've had in many years," according to Coach Les Lawrence of the MSU Speech Department. Nick Munson, sophomore, Jordan, and Ed Blazek, freshman, Big Sandy, made it to the eighth round with a 5-2 record that was among the best in the tourney.

Wayne Houston and Dick Thompson, sophomores, Eureka, took third place overall. And two sophomores, Ted Hudson, Butte, and Jim Waters, Crystal Lake, Ill., missed the quarter-finals by a few points.

Other MSU entrants were Bonnie Bottomeller and Kim Kradolfer, both of Bozeman. Miss Bottomeller reached the semi-finals in oral interpretation.

The Pocatello meet, hosted by Idaho State University, will be held the first weekend in November.

Early this week a Kool Aid stand popped up on campus. Rie Winking and Billy Wayne, the proprietors of the stand, when asked why they set it up answered that Bozeman is a really nice place, except that the people don't smile enough, so they set up the stand to get them to smile.

And you know what? It worked.

Ag Days slated

The Chaff and Dust Club, an undergraduate club of the Plant and Soil Science Department on the Montana State University campus, is sponsoring their second Ag Career Days program on November 8 and 9 in the Student Union Building on the MSU campus. The purpose of the program is not to provide placement, but simply a chance for all agricultural students to exchange information with potential agricultural employers from industry, government, and the voluntary services.

Over fifty possible employers are expected to be talking with agricultural students who are studying Animal Science, Recreation Area Management, Range Management, Pre-Veterinary Medicine, Agricultural Economics, Agricultural Business, Agricultural Education, Industrial Arts, Soil Science, Agronomy and Crops, Agricultural Engineering, Agricultural Mechanics and Pre-Forestry.

Indian identity to be stabilized

Maintaining Indian identity is the chief purpose of the MSU Indian Club, states one of its members. Thirty members now belong to the organization which is about a half of the Indian student population on campus. The group is headed by Robert LaFontaine and has been recognized by the university since 1961. It is also associated with the Council for American Indian Students.

Many projects are included in the group's activities. This year they will start off by organizing two booths at the International Bazaar which will be held on campus November 10th and 11th. A food booth will offer people a chance to taste such traditional American Indian dishes as fried bread and deer jerky, jewelry, moccasins, vents and pillows will be sold in the second booth. All articles sold are handmade by Indian students from MSU and other areas.

NOTICE

A magazine reading service will be provided in the waiting rooms of the eight dorms, Student Union, Health Center and Library again this year. This is a gift from local Bozeman businessmen. Please make use of this service but respect it as a valuable gift.

Nickle POW (prisoner-of-war) — MIA (missing-in-action) bracelets were on sale in the SUB lobby Monday, and will be on sale again in the near future, according to Sergeant Bill Pavlus of the campus ROTC department. They cost $2.50 apiece.

He explained that the money collected from the sales will go to efforts of concerned citizens to try to find out who and where our captured soldiers are.

He noted that the bracelet sale, conducted by student members of the Arnold Air Society and Angel Flight, was a partial success on campus and a flop in downtown Bozeman.

By 1:30 Monday afternoon, nearly 75 bracelets were sold on campus, while a meager ten were sold at two sites down the hill.

If public interest is sufficient, Pavlus said that copper bracelets could be shipped to Bozeman from Butte, the central office for "Montanans Do Care."

There are at least twelve Montanans in Vietnam who are unaccounted for.

Bracelet sales to aid POW search

The lack of agricultural employers coming to the MSU campus to interview agricultural students prompted the Chaff and Dust Club to organize some type of program such as an Ag Career Days. The club met with industry representatives from Hillings last spring and developed the first Ag Career Days Program. The program showed how an informal discussion atmosphere could provide students with contacts in industry and government even though jobs were scarce.

The program provides contacts for all students. Freshmen, sophomores and juniors can obtain information on summer jobs, applications and test required for employment, and even on elective course selection to better qualify them for employment after graduation. Seniors can talk to the representatives and find out where to look for possible jobs. If the upperclassmen have something to offer employers, they may just create themselves a position even though a job may not be available at the time.

Please feel free to contact the Chaff and Dust Club in the Plant and Soil Science Dept. and the College of Agriculture on the Montana State University campus for more information about the Ag Career Days Program scheduled for November 8 and 9.

For more information contact Pat Plantenberg, Ext. 4601.
"Big Nine" opens Tonight

Nine big name entertainers will perform in the Montana State University Fieldhouse Friday and Saturday evenings (Oct. 20-21). The concerts are in conjunction with the "Big Nine." The group has five members: Bob Hite, Henry Vestine, Adolfo De La Parra, Antonio De La Barreda and Joel Scott Hill. They have recorded such hits as "Time Was" and "On the Road Again."

Jackie DeShannon is best known for her million-seller, "What the World Needs Now Is Love," and "I Got a Little Love in Your Heart," a song she composed. She has written many others, including Marianne Faithfull's hit, "Come and Stay With Me."

Albert King is a bluesman. He gets his sounds across with what he calls "guitar blues." His most recent release is "Live Wire/Blues Power."

Jonathon Round is another blues singer, who selected his stage name because of his appearance. He voices blues and ballads and opts for dramatic effects.

Audiences at the shows, sponsored by the MUSI Campus Entertainment Committee, will also hear El Chicano, a Latin rock group, and Spirit, another rock group. Wishbone Ash, famous for English rock, and the Harvey Mandel Group, which specializes in jazz, round out the program.

Movie Review

By Ben Royland

In Anarene, Texas, 1951, life is divorced from its epic heritage. The high school football team is the worst in its history. Nearby oil fields, once a source of certain employment, are falling by the wayside. And television, with its aura of down-home intimacy, draws elders away from the business district.

Sonny Crawford (Timothy Bottoms) and Duane Jackson (Jeff Bridges) resign to the conventions of boredom (sexual exploration, pool, alcohol, cars, and movies), never grasping the futility of their efforts until it's too late.

With great skill and sensitivity, director Peter Bogdanovich tells their story in The Last Picture Show. By making two important artistic decisions — first, to film it entirely in black and white; second, to use a straightforward narrative technique — Bogdanovich is able to introduce new characters and events without straining our credulity. He captures the gritty texture of small town life: values, attitudes, and manners that hardly exist today.

Larry McMurtry's screenplay (based on his book) maintains a careful balance between light humor and bitter tragedy, and presents many memorable characters: Sam the Lion (Ben Johnson), proprietor of the pool hall and movie house; Ruth Popper (Clara Lee), a middle aged woman in search of affection; Jacy Farrow (Sybil Shepherd), an ambitious husband seeker; and, her equally ambitious mother, Lois (Eileen Bursyn).

Beneath its elegaic tale of the loss of innocence, The Last Picture Show is a movie about movies and how they have reinforced many of our cultural values. When the movies leave Anarene with the advent of television, the dreams and aspirations of their patrons go with them. Seeing the effects of hypocrisy, hard ambition, and ruthless competition upon the town's citizens causes us to consider whether films were simply a reflection of our cultural values or a rationalization for them.

Evans named prexy

Dr. Gary F. Evans, coordinator of graduate studies in the department of physical education at Montana State University, will assume the presidency of the Montana Association for Health, Physical Education and Recreation this week at Missoula.

The state group is holding its annual meeting this weekend and some 200 members are expected to attend. Included will be several physical educators from MSU. Dr. Evans is a graduate of both Utah State University and the University of Utah. He was chairman of the 1972 Montana State University Sports Administration Workshop.
Benway becomes head of MSNA

Spain re-elected

Louis A. Spain, Bozeman hardware dealer, was re-elected president at the annual meeting of the board of directors of the Endowment and Research Foundation at MSU.

ANNOUNCEMENT

Because of extended pre-game activities this Saturday, the actual Bobcat game will not begin until 2 pm. Therefore, the buses which will pick up students will not run until 12:45 and 1:15.

So now the Bobcats are 3-0 in conference play. I like the sound of that more than Sonny Holland likes peanuts and ice cream.

Tomorrow’s game features Boise State’s fine offense against the Bobcats’ rock-hard defense. Everyone should know that the defensive secondary has an especially tough job ahead of them, mainly because the receivers and quarterbacks for Boise State are fine athletes. I wonder though, looking at their season’s record to date, whether Sonny Holland likes peanuts and ice cream.

For today’s instant way of dressing an elasticized scoop neck and tiny puff sleeved body shirt by Kayse-Roth.

It’s just $6.00 in either Brite Green or White.

Max’s State Side Lites

To anybody who knows a little about football, watch the Boise State defensive stunts tomorrow. To those people less learned or superficial in their liquid ways, don’t be too concerned over bad offensive plays or fumbles. A stunting defensive team will be caught with, as the old saying goes, “its pants down” and then you’ll have something to tell about.

On the subject of fumbles, not so coincidentally, I think they are being overplayed this year. Last year fumbles actually could be cited as the main reason for a few losses. But this year the Bobcats are winning and still tumbling, in that order. It’s true that last week the Cats lost the ball eight or nine times, but they won, so who cares? An interesting sidelight to this topic is that last week the Arizona State Sun Devils, one of the top teams in the country, lost ten fumbles to the University of Utah. The score of their game was merely ASU 39, UU 48.

Hopefully the Bobcats will be healthy this week. I was going to elaborate on some injuries, but I think I’ll leave well enough alone. Superstition is the correct term. One thing is for sure though, if anybody has anything short of broken bones or torn cartilage, he’ll be on the field due to the tyranny of a man named Charles “Wily Coyote” Karnop.

This week, take notice of the guy down on the sidelines with the sideline pass bigger than he is. You can’t miss him, he’s the guy with the bald, do-it-yourself-head-reflector kit. His mod glasses fit him as if his optometrist was the one who was blind, and he possesses a temper second to none. Rumor has it that he started a lot of trouble down in Ogden, Utah towards the end of the Weber game. All in all, however, Chuck is a very good trainer and a good guy. Maybe he’ll be named head trainer at Ron Ueland’s alma mater, they had their first injury in 43 years last week. If you don’t hit anybody, you don’t get hurt.

With the homecoming show and three-day weekend, students of MSU can plan a big weekend. Don’t start too early and be at Van Winkle Stadium for a good football game.

10 - THE EXPONENT  Friday, Oct. 20, 1972
Sitting on top of the world

Montana State sits atop the Big Sky Conference football standings with a 3-0 record and to say the Bobcats are the surprise team of the league is an understatement.

In a pre-season poll of coaches and sports information directors, the Bobcats showed with a 3-0 victory over Weber State Saturday night at Ogden, Utah that they’re for real in 1972. Earlier, MSU had beaten Idaho in Idaho Falls 17-3 and Northern Missouri 23-9.

Boise State, which invades Van Winkle Stadium this Saturday afternoon, is now the league favorite but Coach Sonny Holland and his club are back, the MSU team will play a game against UM in Missoula tomorrow.

That contest will be followed by a possible match with EMC of Peice Field behind the Roskie dorm. Possible, that is, if Eastern decides to show October 25.

Andersen said the spring quarter season will begin as soon as the snow leaves the ground, hopefully right after registration.

Todd Trefts and Rudy Sinaga plan to continue as coaches of the blue-and-white-shirted players through the school year.

In the three year history of the soccer team, they have compiled a 5-1-1 record, losing only to UM in the fall of ’70.

Led by center forward Mustapha, Ghadhar, Thomason, and goalie Mary Mizher, the other MSU soccer team has an excellent chance to conquer UM’s team.

A splendid defense, which allowed only three shots on goal, complemented a relentless MSU offense as the Bozeman squad defeated Eastern Montana College 5-1 last Saturday during one of the most stunning soccer games in Montana history.

The defense, led by game captains Carl Thomason and Mark Kuhl at fullback, frustrated the EMCC attack all afternoon.

That contest will be followed by a possible match with EMC of Peice Field behind the Roskie dorm. Possible, that is, if Eastern decides to show October 25.

Led by center forward Mustapha, Ghadhar, Thomason, and goalie Mary Mizher, the other MSU soccer team has an excellent chance to conquer UM’s team.

They say "offense wins games and defense keeps you from losing," Holland said.

"The defense held them to two points and just refused to lose."

Several times Weber got the first three quarters. However, by recovering an MSU fumble, they would not put the game out of reach.

A good offensive effort was blunted by a severe case of fumbles. With the line dominating the Weber defensive front, the Bobcats rolled up 284 yards rushing and 52 yards passing as Zeonie McLean completed four-out-of-six passes.

MSU muffed several scoring opportunities because of lost fumbles, nine in all.

"We’re trying not to make a big thing of it in practice," Holland said of the fumbles. "There’s no question of how fumbles can affect the outcome of a game. But they’re a fact of life in football, though we’re going to continue to work on keeping them on hanging onto the ball."

Classified personnel

Johnstone

This plan called for regular wage increases for such personnel for the first three years of their employment, and then subsequent increase based on merit and number of years with MSU.

But, as Dye said to the Exponent, MSU is undergoing a dry financial situation during which the program cannot be adequately funded to allow for merit or longevity wage increases.

"Everybody is being squeezed down into the first or second year because we don’t have the money to pay them any more," Dye said. During fiscal 71-72, employees at step three were given a token increase of $100 a year.

Continuing, Dye noted, "We are preparing a study to determine how much it would cost to institute the longevity program, and a study of the program itself.

Meanwhile this summer, the unionized personnel at MSU maintained a two-week strike and negotiated a new contract separately. This only added to the frustration of the non-unionized personnel.

As Dr. Robert Swenson of the physics department said on August 31, "The only way a departmental secretary who has reached step three in her grade can receive a decent increment in salary would be to request promotion out of the department into a position higher than her present one."

The other major problem that the non-unionized classified personnel are dealing with is their post retirement representation on the Personnel Board.

Although Dye said this past summer that the PB had requested President McIntosh’s approval of placing a certain number of such personnel on the Board, they were given an entirely different response to this request.

According to spokeswoman Dee Strong and Joyce Forsgren, the Board submitted a proposal to form an advisory committee to the PB. This committee would consist of classified personnel who would advise the Board concerning wage and hiring policies, but could have no actual vote on such issues.

The personnel meeting, slated for November 2 at noon in the Ag Auditorium, will decide if they are satisfied with such a committee, or whether they want to amend the proposal, or whether they are willing to fight to get members on the PB itself.

Dye said, "I think the people will realize that, once the picture is presented to them that we are doing our very best what is available, there are no concessions to the present plan."

Other members on the Personnel Board besides Dye are Deans J.A. Asleson, Byron Bennett and Earl Ringo and business manager Tom Nopper.

Enrollment steadily decreases in Montana schools

An estimated seven percent decline in the total enrollment in the various units of the Montana University System was reported last week by a number of college presidents. They cited statistical drops of 20.6 percent at Eastern Montana College, 19 percent at Northern, 12.2 percent at Western, 11.5 percent at Montana Tech, four percent at MSU and two percent at UM.

MSU president Carl McIntosh reported that the Bozeman school has about 7,800 students enrolled, about 310 fewer than last fall's total. According to a number of the president's, the dearth of summer jobs is a major factor for the decline.

MSU's Irving Dayton, vice-president for academic affairs, listed other reasons as well. "Many kids are no longer pressured to attend college because of the military situation. Instead a number of them will go to v-tc schools or try to find a job."

"With the bad economic situation, many high school students don't think it's worth their time to go to college if they can't get a job with their degree," he said.

Dayton noted that a survey of the two largest high schools in the state discovered that 15 percent fewer graduates of those schools plan on going to college in comparison to last year's grades.

Another negative factor influencing university enrollment is the declining birth rate in the state.

"There will be many empty grade school classrooms the next few years, and this trend will continue through the high schools and colleges in Montana," noted Dayton.

However, he mentioned one potentially hopeful prospect - "The kids may come back to the universities in their mid 20's if the economy gets straightened out. Also, older people may want to obtain more education if they find time for it."

Dayton said one major fact working in MSU's favor is getting ex-students back on campus.

"They may have an easy in - easy out policy which does not penalize a student for dropping out. If a student drops out at another school, he may not be allowed to catch up with his old program of studies when he leaves."

"My advice to students who don't want to stay in school is to get out and come back when you're ready for us."
Martins keep on truckin'

Mrs. Florence Martin is continuing a tradition established by her children — attending Montana State.

In 1967, her son Fred graduated from this school with a general engineering degree and is now a data analyst for Lockheed.

When she saw how much her older children liked MSU, she decided to move with the rest of her family to Bozeman, and enroll herself.

Young voters elect Bell

MISSOULA — William M. Bell, III has been named Montana Young Voters for the President Chairman by G. W. "Pore" Deschamps, Montana Re-elect the President Chairman.

Bill graduated from Great Falls High School in 1963. After graduation he served as a U.S. Army helicopter crew chief in the Republic of Vietnam.

Bill graduated from MSU this year in microbiology and is currently working for the Republican Party in Helena. While at MSU, Bill was elected Commissioner of the MSU Bookstore, vice-president of Wesley House, and vice-president of the College Republicans.

Bill said of his appointment, "I am pleased to be able to work for President Nixon’s re-election in this capacity. I feel that McGovern’s implications that he is in favor of peace while President Nixon favors war are grossly unfair. President Nixon favors ending the war without delay. The real choice in 1972 is between Senator McGovern’s ill-conceived, unilateral retreat and the President’s carefully planned, systematic withdrawal from Vietnam.

Busing relieves traffic congestion

Buses ran again, transporting students from the dorms to the game between the MSU Bobcats and Northern Arizona University. Results of an evaluation done showed an estimated 33 per cent of the total capacity of the buses was used.

According to ASMSU Student Body President Bill Warden the buses will again be running this weekend. Warden felt they had not been used extensively due to nice weather and the fact that few people knew about their existence.

The buses were originally put into operation as a service to the students and to relieve traffic congestion to the games. Ten buses are provided now for the students at a total cost of $350 each trip. Students pay this whether anyone rides the buses or not.

ATTENTION
Student buses will be leaving for the game at 12:15 and 12:45 from Harmon, Hapner, Lewis & Clark and the SUB.

Veterans in colleges and universities rose by 36 percent over the previous year - from 917,000 to 1,061,000. Below college level enrolment rose by 22 percent - from 522,000 to 638,000.

On-the-job training, through which most trainees are preparing for trade and industrial occupations, rose by 12 percent - from 146,000 to 162,000.

Vocational rehabilitation training for service disabled veterans rose by 14 percent - from 20,000 to 23,000.

During fiscal year 1972, 18 veteran training programs served 4,500 disabled veterans. The number of veterans receiving training in the first six years of the G.I. Bill was 20,100,000.

There exists on this campus a magazine called the Free Quarter. It was a literary-art magazine. It will now be whatever you choose to make it. It is up to you because if you don't turn in writing, art and photos, there won't be a magazine. Any material from any source will be considered. Our deadline for submission is November 1st. Turn in your copy to the Free Quarter Office in the SUB Lair or put it in the mailbox at the SUB desk. The magazine will come out December 4th.

We have at least 20 more pages to fill. Give us something to fill them with.

John E. Johnson pointed out that 3.4 million trainees had used their benefits as of the end of July.

"During the first six years of the Bill, the number of trainees had exceeded the 13 year total for the Korean Conflict G.I. Bill by almost a million," John pointed out.

During 12 years of the World War II G.I. Bill, 7.8 million of the 13.2 million World War II veterans, or 54.5 percent, received some form of training. About 13.8 percent attended college compared to 21.9 percent in the Vietnam Era veterans and 20.1 percent for Korean Conflict veterans. Nurses skills enhanced

Montana State's family nurse practitioner's training program, designed to bring improved health care to smaller communities, where doctors' services are at a premium, is underway with II nurses from Idaho, Minnesota, Montana and Wyoming enrolled in the initial class. The registered nurses, some 10 to 15 years out of school, have been brought to the MSU campus for three quarters of study of the latest nursing techniques and medical developments.

Upon "graduation" they will return to their home communities to put their new skills and knowledge to work. The project, financed by a grant from the National Institutes of Health, should help provide better health care and relieve hard-pressed doctors of some of their heavy workloads.

Co-directors of the program are Dr. John Mest, M.D. of Manhattan, Mont., and Susan Dowell of the MSU School of Nursing.

Northern Ireland is the topic of tonight’s KGLT Pacifica program. With special emphasis on the intercommunal policy re-instituted on August 9, 1971, “The Special Powers Bill” is the topic of the permanent law governing the people of Northern Ireland. A documentary, it explores who is being poisoned dead at this time and the affect it has had on the Catholic minority in Ireland. Air time is 8 pm.

Architectural historian Robert Craig will give the first of five talks tonight at 8 pm, Room 301, Gaines Hall. His subject will be the works of architect Frank Lloyd Wright.

Those interested in observing the process of spending student activity funds are invited to the ASMSU’s Finance Board meeting tonight at the Bighorn - Yellowstone Room of the SUB.

The Independent Students' Association— billed by Student Affairs and Activities as the “non-greek campus” — has election of officers at 6 pm in Room 305 of the SUB.

The International Folk Dance Club invites newcomers to their regular Tuesday night dance from 8-10 pm at the Beef Barn.

For the greater selection of new and used records, drop in to the place — corner Babcock & Wilson .
