

Fifteen per cent voter turnout in senate election

By Joe Nistler

Approximately 1,075 students voted, about 15 percent of all eligible ASMSU members.

Pat Pomeroy, a sophomore woman in pre-med studies, was the leading vote-getter in yesterday's senate election. Pomeroy garnered 566 votes, while incumbents Dan Brooks and Sally Johnson followed with 525 and 524 respectively.

Two more female neophytes placed fourth and fifth — Debbie Urlick with 520 and Jane Campbell with 491. Campbell is best remembered as one of the few A.W.S. hell-raisers last year.

Senate vets Richard Parks and Sid Thomas (425 and 417) had a bit of trouble in the dorm halls, but came out strong in the SB balloting.

Gerry Carpenter edged ahead of Dan Guettler and incumbent Rosemary Olson to finish eighth. Carpenter received 338 marks of approval, while Guettler and Olson tied for ninth at 332 each.

Finally, David MacMillan finished in the precarious eleventh spot with 288 votes, tied with Kirk Jones.

It will take a counting of the approximately 30 absentee ballots Monday to determine whether Jones or MacMillan will be sworn into the august body of student representatives next week.

Also, there is an outside possibility that Jerry Williams, who finished thirteenth, will upset both Jones and MacMillan. Williams concluded with 280 tallies, 16 more than Doug Borst.

Other losers were Free Quarter editor Andy Towe (263), Bob Lupo (255), Billye Bonefield (232), and Monty Podva (196).

Pat Pomeroy became known on the Bozeman campus after working as co-chairperson for Big Ed Smith's gubernatorial campaign at MSU. In addition, she is involved with band and Spurs.

According to her, these social contacts are just as important as campaign posters when running for office.

Yet she was one of only three females who appeared to receive solid support in the dorms, the others being Debbie Urlick and Jane Campbell.

Other surprises were the low finish of Rosemary Olson and the overwhelming defeat of incumbent Monty Podva.

Some twenty write-in candidates were named, including Dan Hicks, an entertainer who will appear at MSU December 6.

Students gave tremendous support to the other three issues on the ballot.

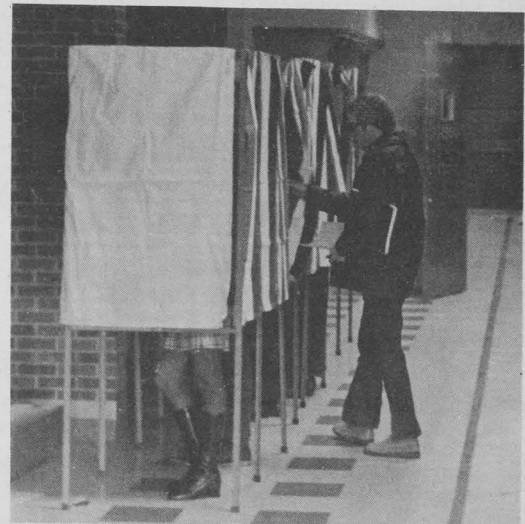

The bookstore bylaw change passed 764 to 123.

The ASMSU constitutional convention was authorized by a vote of 794 to 184.

And the constitutional amendment (to change the amending law to a necessary two-thirds majority) passed 755 to 236.

Delegate selection for the constitutional convention will be held winter quarter, and the infant constitution will be voted on by students during regular spring quarter elections.

There was a student election yesterday. About 15% of the students decided for the rest of the students about the election of 11 senators and constitutional revisions for the student owned bookstore.

McIntosh promotes funding

By Joe Nistler

MSU President Carl McIntosh yesterday asked faculty members to contact their state representatives in an effort to obtain more funding from the legislature.

According to McIntosh, all units of the university system are being forced to comply with artificial budget demands from state budget director Ben Johns.

Administrative Vice-president William Johnstone explained that MSU asked for $973-75 budget of $29,523,000 from the legislature. Johns is now favoring a sum of $29,962,000.

One reason for this proposed financial cutback, according to McIntosh, is the belief that the administration is padding its budget request. He said that the personal integrity of college administrators is no longer a factor in budget presentations.

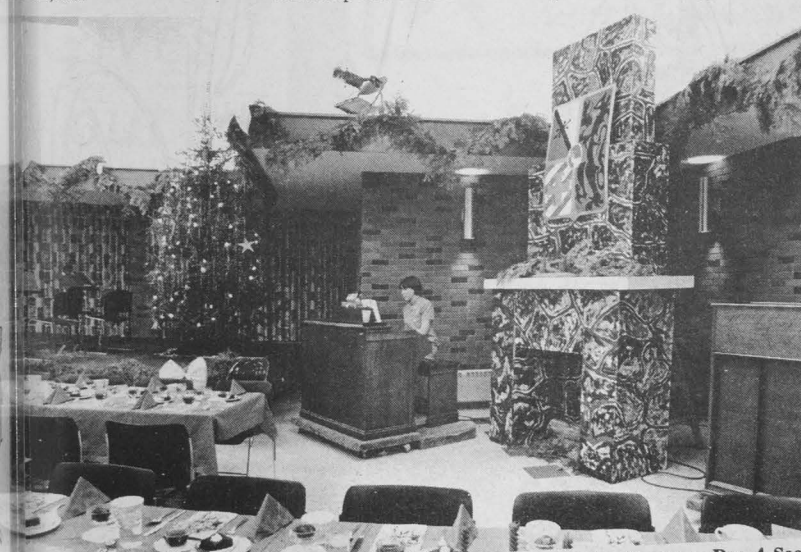

McIntosh said that the state priorities have changed, also. More adequate funding of state hospitals and the prison are aspects of this change.

Therefore, McIntosh said that MSU needs all the friends it can get, including legislators from "Two Dot and Roundup and Circle."

He said that a faculty lobbyist in Helena would not be too effective. Instead, he said a student lobbyist might be effective because of the "client" position of students at colleges.

"With a standstill budget, we still need a five percent increase in salaries plus increases in funds for maintenance and utilities," said McIntosh.

"I don't know what the climate will be in the legislature. But if there is any way to change it, we need to do it. Sometimes between now and April, any help you can provide will be appreciated."

Clap, Clap, Clap

By Dr. Edward Purdey
Director of Student Health Service

In my last article to the students on Gonorrhea (Exponent, Nov. 3rd), I tried to set forth, in some detail, a general description of this disease.

Since that time we have had several students come to the Health Center asking for a "blood test". These students have probably been told by one of the staff physicians that the only blood test available for venereal disease diagnosis is a blood test for syphilis, not gonorrhea. This is still an accurate statement.

"The Venereal Disease Research Lab of the C.D.C. (Center for Disease Control at Atlanta, Georgia) has been diligently working for the past three years to develop a serological test for gonorrhea. They report that results to date have definitely established that female carriers of the gonococcus have a strong antibody response to the infection. The major problem with the serological tests, at present, is the number of apparent false positive reactions encountered with sera from presumably noninfected individuals". Thus reports Dr. David Lackman, Administrator of the Laboratory Division of the Montana State Department of Health and Environmental Sciences. He goes on to say that "there is no practical serological blood test for gonorrhea at this time."

Recent articles in the "Bozeman Chronicle" and the "Independent Record" of Helena, Montana refer to "Silent Gonorrhea found in Viet Vets." These articles are condensations of an Associated Press release from Atlantic City, N.J., where Drs.

Bids let for new building

Bids on the proposed Classroom-Office Building at Montana State University will be let Jan. 24, according to Andy van Teylingen, campus architect.

The decision was made at a meeting in Billings Tuesday. Attending were van Teylingen, Martin Whalen and Jim Kelley of the MSU Physical plant; representatives from the Department of Health, Education and Welfare; the state architect's office and the contract architect's office.

The two-story building is scheduled for completion in the fall of 1974. It will house the departments of mathematics, sociology, English, speech, and history, government and philosophy.

Construction will begin in the spring.

Vegetarians label meat a health hazard

American Vegetarians have called on the Federal Trade Commission to label all meat hazardous to the health. Here are some reasons why.

1. According to the American Public Health Association meat can contain two billion putrefactive bacteria per ounce which are especially in summer conducive to food poisoning, causing ptomaine, salmonella, toxoplasmosis etc. 97% of food poisoning fatalities each year are caused by meat, and even the deadly botulism bacteria from green beans grows much more rapidly in the intestinal tract of meat eaters.

2. The AMA has declared meat the number one cause of coronary occlusions and thromboembolic or blood clot disease.

3. Heart disease ratios are highest in the three biggest meat eating countries: the U.S., Australia, and Canada.

4. In the Journal of the AMA the noted Dane, Hindehede, reported on a forced wartime vegetarian diet, which resulted in a death rate drop of 34%. When the meat diet resumed after the war there was a dramatic rise in the death rate.

5. Beef Broth is biochemically almost identical to urea. Beef broth is a dilution of waste products in animal cells... in meat cells... which had the animal not been killed would have been excreted. Animals fed solely on beef broth die more quickly than animals fed solely on water in hospital labs.

6. Cows are fed wastelage, a product advertised in the Farm Journal and composed of 50% grain and 50% manure.

7. 21 countries have banned the use of female hormones called diethylstilbestrol in meat. These hormones cause vaginal cancer in women, according to testimony given by Senator Kennedy, and according to Proxmire they cause gynecomastia, or partial swelling of the breasts in men. Even the DES has been banned after January, ear implants are still allowed. Ear implants are generally considered to be more carcinogenic than the estrogens in feed.

8. The sodium nitrate in meat is also used in embalming fluid because of its anticoagulant effect. It seriously retards necessary blood clotting.

9. Animals when frightened during butchering secrete adrenalin, a fear hormone not entirely broken down in cooking. Ingestion of these animals creates biochemical equivalents to hostility, fright, and anger.

10. Another meat by-product creating stress is histamine, produced in the intestinal tract by the amino acid breakdown. Histamines irritate nervous system linings.

11. Meat causes a stomach secretion of hydrochloric acid, which in excess causes lesions in the stomach walls bleeding ulcers.

12. British life insurance companies give 20% discount to non meat eaters, based on statistical surveys showing correlation between meat eating and lowered life spans.

13. Studies by Dr. Fisher at Yale have shown reduced endurance with meat diet. Tests for deep knee bends and holding arms perpendicular to the body, non meat eaters selected at random were able to record time lengths from 9 to 9 times longer than the meat eaters.

14. Current theory on schizophrenia is that it is caused by the body's inability to break down adrenalin. The massive amounts of adrenalin in meat tissue are a definite factor.

15. Cows are dipped weekly into an arsenic wash to destroy ticks. How much arsenic is absorbed into the tissues is still open to question.

16. A USDA meat inspector was recently fired, as reported in Science Magazine for wishing to expose the practices which lead to disease. For instance, cows with cancerous tumors are being passed, high level antibiotics are given, hands are often unwashed. Even without corruption, the law allows for no microscopic inspection of animal cadavers.

Hunter Handsfield and Capt. Timothy Lipman, S.M.C., et al, presented a study entitled "Prevalence and Natural History of asymptomatic Urethral gonococcal infection in the male" to a meeting of scientists.

The importance of the report involves the fact that physicians and epidemiologists have always been concerned about the large reservoir of asymptomatic gonorrhea in women, but symptomatic gonorrhea in the male has been thought to be quite uncommon. These newspaper articles report that the case study by Drs. Handsfield and Lipman, et al, showed 2 1/2% of the 2,148 enlisted men studied had symptomatic gonorrhea. That report is incorrect. Of the 13 men that were found to have gonorrhea "by a special diagnostic test" only 18 of them were asymptomatic (1.4%).

Incidentally, the "special diagnostic test" was a urethral culture on Thayer-Martin media which has been practiced at our MSU Health Center for the past two years. One more point worth mentioning about the above study. The newspaper release did not point out that the study also involved 479 sexually active men stationed at Fort Lewis who were not part of the 2,148 enlisted men being discharged.

Of this latter group (479) 9 were asymptomatic and had gonorrhea (1.9%). The difference between these two groups is probably not statistically significant.

The value of this study, I believe, lies in the fact that asymptomatic gonorrhea does occur in the sexually active young male and is by no means rare (probably about 1.5%). We do have the diagnostic tools to seek out and treat these people, and it will require the patience and cooperation of our entire society if we are to control the spread of this progressively resistant venereal disease.

Gives out award

Dr. Max Amberson, head of the Department of Agricultural and Industrial Education at Montana State University, will present the Distinguished Service Award at a Chicago meeting.

The meeting is the annual gathering of the American Association of Teacher Educators in Agriculture of which Amberson is vice president for the Pacific Region. The award will go to the outstanding teacher educator in the nation.

The convention begins Friday in Chicago.

Voted down--but going up

By Dale A. Newby
MSU Student

With the coming of a new year, people tend to put what happened last year in the back of their minds. The new football stadium is something that happened last year which is now in the back of most minds.

Since the Bobcats had a winning season this year, it seems like you read more articles on the stadium and for the stadium. The whole campus is proud of the fact that the football team won the Big Sky title. Because of this, we see numerous articles (three in the past two weeks) on progress in the new stadium. Supporters of the new stadium see the perfect opportunity to push what a "good" idea the stadium is on the rest of us. Are the students against the stadium now changing their minds and supporting the building? If so, feelings have changed one hundred and eighty degrees since last year.

Some people welcomed the building of the new P.E.

Complex. Whether they welcomed the building of the complex on Gatton Field is questionable. Since the P.E. Complex is fairly large and since it is located on the main part of the old football field, there becomes a need for a new stadium. Although the campus voted the new stadium down, we see construction beginning on the new home for the Cats. The small cost for this stadium is only $750,000.

Now a group of people are discussing the possibility of lighting for the night games. The idea of artificial turf has come up, at another small cost of only $250,000! These ideas are only in the talk stage so there really isn't any reason to get alarmed. Or is this enough to get alarmed? After all, didn't the stadium start in the "idea stage?"

Next time you're sitting in English on the third floor of Montana Hall, or taking notes on history over in Hapner, think about the Bobcats playing on their new field. It's something to think about.

The Mustard Seed

They came from far to see the sight — the frivolous, the bored, the hopeful. Pilgrims, of sorts. No more gas. They abandoned their cars. The roads were littered: the shiny chrome faded, pipes silent. Roads cracked, bridges washed away by flood.

It was said to be up the valley, in the steepest canyon, the ever shaded one. There was snow on the slopes, some grass, some rocks. And the wind. And they came in droves, bringing their dead in plastic bags. The women wept. . . . It was the war. . . . The men said it was their duty. . . .

Dressed in furs, the women shivered; Clothed in down, the men shivered.

They called each other "chick" and "stud," but they were cold. And there, at the end of the canyon, it stood: scraggly, bent, brown. A tree, the last Christmas tree.

By the tree there stood a man. He wasn't tall and he wasn't short. He had sores on his hands. Not much to write home about — either the tree or the man. The people pushed in for a closer look and the man spoke to them.

"You have come to see the last Christmas tree. It is the last because you have cut down all others. What you have squandered is irreplaceable, and what you have not spent is never-ending. You have been given rivers and forests, coal and oil, plants and animals. What remains of these but one dying tree?

You may return from this cold canyon one way. You may receive your lives again. Or you may. I have loved you from the ends of the earth. The sun grows cold because you do not exchange that same love. As you learn again to love, you will be given back to yourselves. As you love me, so the tree will again grow green.

_____? Besides, this dude is on the basketball team. Yeah, he's okay. We gonna invite him to a kegger soon.

Hey, what about the way the pigs shot those dudes in Louisiana? Man, I'm gonna join the revolution soon I get out of college and make me a little bread. Yeah, man, we gonna take over. You better believe I'm gonna be right up front. Ain't gonna do nothin' yet, except lay quiet. You can't do nothin' with these local dudes. They're back in the dark ages.

Man, that was some time up in the Norris Hot Springs the other night. Yeah, man, I really dig nature. Nothin' I like better than ridin' my bike through the woods. But that damn Huntley. All that money, all that land. I'd stop him if I could. He ain't got no right to do that kind of thing. But you can't do nothin'. No. I couldn't make the hearing. You know, things to do.

Hey, we had those two broads from the other dorm out there with us. Yeah, groovy. Naw, we didn't bring her. She don't like to ball. I real snot. Yeah, a drag. Man, I'm in favor of women's lib, but those broads are too much. Man, they call me a pig, and I treat my broads right. Hey, you know that Judy puts out. Man, my old lady was really mad when I was with her at that party.

Hey, you dig that honey? Yeah, man, organic. Yeah, man, if everybody just ate organic, there wouldn't be no problems. If those dudes would just stop puttin' all that chemical crap on our stuff, man no one in the world would starve. Yeah, man.

My old man? He's okay, guess. He's an old fascist though. He ain't concerned like I am with all the problems we got. He just drinks, and farms.

Yeah, it's a shame about Bill. Man if those fascists will just legalize pot, man we won't have no more problems. Yeah.

Parking is a problem

To the Editors:

Vehicle parking at MSU has become a problem for the students who live off campus. Oftentimes the Fieldhouse parking lot and the parking lot south of the SUB are full by 10:00 am and sometimes by 9:00 am. This causes a problem for students who come to campus later and must spend extra time looking for a parking place.

Because of the full parking lots students are forced to park in the residential areas several blocks away, which causes a problem for the people who live in these areas, or they are forced to park along the intramural fields behind the Fieldhouse.

Parking in the residential areas takes away the parking spaces which the residents might need. It's ridiculous that students pay a fee to park in a campus area and then are unable to do so.

Another major complaint of students living off campus is that the staff has all the prime parking areas. These areas are all close to the buildings on campus and students are not allowed to park there. Oftentimes I have had to pass up open spaces in staff parking areas and park several blocks away.

A couple of improvements could be made which probably wouldn't solve the problem entirely, but would help the situation. The standing lot south of the SUB could be increased in size. The staff and the students should be put on an equal basis by making the parking areas first come first serve with the staff and students paying equal fees.

Parking on campus is a problem and improvements are in order.

Letter to the editor

To the Editor:

Just a note of thanks to all those senators that promised us last year that they would make sure the student body would know what was going on at all times; thanks especially to the senators that promised representation of their constituencies. May I ask who the hell they perceive is their constituency?

Few students seemed to know there was even an election, let alone the people running. I tire of this apathy being blamed on the students at large. It's a function of the senate, through informational board, to make sure the students are interested in what goes on.

Apparently the aloofness and distance of national political hacks is being copied on a smaller scale here at MSU. If last year's Senate is to be characterized as a circus, then this year's is about as exciting as an Exlax commercial on a Diarrhea ward.

Car coverage puzzles consumers

Career placement for Montana State University graduates in agricultural education has been 100 per cent since 1960.

This trend is expected to continue, according to Dr. Max Amberson, head of the Department of Agricultural and Industrial Education.

Nationally there is a shortage of agricultural education teachers, according to Dr. Amberson. In 1971, 1,743 graduates were qualified to teach and only 496 entered teaching. A turnover rate of 9.7 per cent also contributed to the teacher shortage.

More than 65 vocational agricultural teachers in Montana and 10,000 in the United States prepare students to work in this field. Nearly 1,100 teachers are needed annually to replace those who retire or enter other fields. In Montana about 10 vocational agricultural teachers are needed each year to fill positions. Salaries range from $8,939 for the first four years of teaching to a peak of about $16,372.

Those graduates who do not enter teaching can be found throughout the state working as county agents, soil conservation officers, bank representatives or as farmers and ranchers.

"Because of the variety of potential careers, agricultural education graduates have excellent employment opportunities," Dr. Amberson said. "This will continue since agriculture is Montana's prime industry."

More people in the United States have questions relating to automobile insurance than any other form of coverage.

That probably comes as no big surprise, but it is backed up by proof from the records of the Office of Consumer Information of The Travelers Insurance Company.

For the past 18 months, the Consumer Information Office has been receiving questions over its toll-free telephone lines from concerned consumers all across the country. And, while life insurance, accident and health, homeowners and group insurance all get their share of attention, about half of all the inquiries relate to the automobile. The requests for information ranged from "What is No-Fault insurance?" to "Is there some way I can cut my insurance expenses?"

The Consumer Information Office has prepared a booklet which includes the 18 most frequently asked questions (with their answers). Although it may not include everything you've always wanted to know about insurance (but were afraid to ask), it does provide brief answers to a wide range of personal insurance subjects.

The booklet is available from the Office of Consumer Information, The Travelers, Hartford, Conn. 06116.

Jacobsen named theatre vice

The chairman of theatre arts at Montana State University, Dr. Bruce C. Jacobsen, has been elected first vice-president of the Rocky Mountain Theatre Conference of the American Theatre Association (ATA). Jacobsen, named at the group's recent meeting in Ogden, Utah, will serve one year, then become conference president for 1973-74. As president he will sit on the national board of directors of the ATA. He was previously a member of the conference board of directors.

At the annual meeting, Jacobsen conducted several sessions for the conference on theatre administration and the American College Theatre Festival.

MSU hosts data meet

Montana State will host the 11th annual meeting of the Montana Data Processing Association. The event will be Dec. 2 in the Student Union.

Registration begins at 8 a.m. Included in activities is a panel on personnel management of data processing centers. Panel members are: Jack Geary, Anaconda Co.; Jack Holt, Montana State Department of Highways, Helena; Dan Wagon, Montana Power Co.; Ed Watsworth, Montana State Department of Administration, Helena, and moderator Frank Greenwood, University of Montana, Missoula.

An afternoon panel will be on computers in secondary and vo-tech education. On this will be Bruce Moyer, Missoula Vo-Tech Center; Ben Murphy, Butte Vo-Tech Center; Floyd Nobbs, Great Falls Vo-Tech Center; Jim Phillips, Helena Vo-Tech Center, and Keith Clawson, moderator, Northern Montana College, Havre.

What's up? -- A return to screwball comedy

Opinions, Anyone?

It is a very well-known fact that the college campus is a place where opinions are readily expressed, whether it be by a professor on philosophical thinking or a student concerning sports. In recent years, it has been possible for college students to express their religious opinions and beliefs through the National Collegiate Religious Survey, which is administered nationwide by staff and student members of Campus Crusade for Christ. The results of the previous year's surveys are then published in the school paper as general information about current religious thinking on campus.

Last year, here at Montana State, nearly 1000 people were surveyed, two thirds of whom were freshmen. Results of the survey show that Jesus Christ is the most well known religious founder in history, but it was interesting to note that only 67% of the students surveyed believed Him to be the Son of God. The other 33% were divided between saying that He was either a man, founder of a church, or prophet. Then 30% of the students said that it is necessary for a person to believe in Jesus Christ as personal Savior in order to become a Christian. When 53% said they had a need for a more personal religious faith in their lives, world problems and personal insecurity were cited as creating this need.

The survey is being administered on campus again this year, and the staff and student members of Campus Crusade for Christ would like to express their appreciation to those students who have taken the survey, and also to those who will be taking the survey sometime this year.

I, for one, have never seen Bringing Up Baby, a 1930's screwball comedy which Peter Bogdanovich's newest film, What's Up, Doc?, is based on. Judging from the affectionate translation, it must have been very good indeed.

Certain audiences may flinch at the rapid pace of Doc, with its frantic attempts at comedy. But here, as in films like Bonnie and Clyde and Owl and the Pussycat, writers Buck Henry, David Newman, and Robert Benton have provided a hilarious script. The complicated plot, which centers around five identical handbags, milks more laughs from confusion than most comedies do from jokes.

What's Up, Doc? opens with the fumbling efforts of a spy; a homely woman's attempts to grab a daffy musicologist for her husband; a rich lady's diamonds and . . . well, much more. Ryan O'Neal and Barbra Streisand are functional in making this nonsense entertaining, but the supporting stars (particularly Kenneth Mars and Madeline Kahn) steal the show. The final chase scene is so marvelously staged that the audience is likely to be laughing long after the movie ends.

Short Notices: The Godfather is undeniably the greatest movie of 1972 (financially) and those unfamiliar with the Corleone family should see complex, yet fascinating story of the evolution of organized crime. The Cowboys is enjoyable western yarn that pays tribute to classic Western virtues of authenticity in equal parts. Although John Wayne's The Cowboys can scarcely be called his film by virtue of his departure from his typical screen character. I didn't like the film's violent climax which is totally out of character with the rest of the film, but John Wayne's usual, proves to be the enduring of film institution. THE movie star.

Vojnovich composition wins honors

A symphonic band composition written by Bozo Vojnovich, brother of Dushan Vojnovich, assistant professor of music at MSU, has been picked for top national honors by the College Band Directors National Association (CBDNA).

The association has selected the work, titled "Triptihon," one of six national division winners in competition, representing the northwest division.

The work will be performed Jan. 11 in the Great Hall of Krannert Center at the University of Illinois, for the CBDNA annual convention.

The work was written in 1968 while he was studying his brother. It was given its premiere performance by the MSU Wind Ensemble under the direction of Larry Sowell, associate professor of music. Professor Vojnovich describes his brother's work as filled with the music of his native Yugoslavia, with a strong and interesting nationalistic character.

Bozo Vojnovich is retired and living in Belgrade, Yugoslavia. For years he was a music director and composer, and he has written many works for symphonic band, orchestra, chamber groups and choirs.

"Triptihon" will again be performed by the MSU Wind Ensemble next summer, for a European tour now being planned.

Another Bozo Vojnovich has an ounce of performance is worth more than a pound of attachment.

work, "The Spur Dance," will be given next spring by the Billings West High School orchestra and the MSU Symphonette on their spring tour.

If you think the Seminary is a place of study and meditation, you're right. But there is so much more.

As a Paulist you become involved from the start.

We were founded with the belief that each man has a place. Each man has a job. Sometimes, many jobs. And each contributes his own unique talents and is given the freedom and the support he needs to achieve his goals.

The Paulist is a man on the move. His mission is to people, particularly the people of North America. The issues and problems we face today—injustice, poverty, peace, war—must be the concern of the Church.

Wherever the Paulist student serves the Christian Community—in a parish or an inner city school, a youth center or a campus, or in communications, he is concerned. Involved. Right now.

When you commit yourself to the Paulists, it isn't a someday thing. It's today.

For more information write: Father Donald C. Campbell, Room 102.

Truth comes out

For a quick bite to eat most of us stop at a drive-inn for a hamburger, coke and fries. A recent survey discovered that the prices varied between five and twenty-five cents on the most commonly bought foods at four of the drive-inns in Bozeman.

Of the four drive-inns surveyed, the A&W and the Butcher Boy provided the only service where the food was brought to the car.

Russ's Roost and the Arctic Circle are self-service oriented, but also are the least expensive.

SURVEY RESULTS:

	A&W	Butcher Boy	Russ's Roost	Arctic Circle
Hamburger	$.50	$.45	$.40	$.29
Coke	.15	.10	.10	.10

Students sell their art work

Art students at MSU offer their works for Friday from 9 am to 5 pm.

The art sale will be at Herrick Hall and is open to the public.

Work ranges from posters and other crafts to oils and water colors. A collection of student prints also is for sale.

Service wants land

MISSOULA, MT — Forest Service Chief John R. McGuire has approved a request from two Regional Foresters that certain private lands along the Snake River be sought through condemnation proceedings, if future negotiations at the appraised market value fail.

If condemnation becomes necessary, the Forest Service will seek approximately 7,000 acres of land, or interest in land, in twenty parcels through a recommendation to the Secretary of Agriculture and Department of Justice. The parcels in the Snake River Canyon are between Hells Canyon Dam and Pittsburgh Landing.

Northern Regional Forester Steve Yurich, Missoula, and Pacific Northwest Regional

Forester Theodore Schlapfer, Portland, landowners have been asked to sell the waterfront along the Oregon and Idaho border, but not at an appraised price. In some small key parcels recently been subdivided and sold to private parties, prevent loss to the public of scarce river frontage and of high public recreation value, the Regional Forester asked to take the condemnation route.

Amicable negotiations based on updated appraisal will be carried out when owners are notified of intent to take the matter to court. If negotiations fail, courts would decide what just compensation to present owners.

All things come to him who waits, but they come sooner if he goes out to see what's wrong.

The plight of wild dogs, cats, and other "Feral Animals in the City" is reported on by noted naturalist Roger Caras in the October issue of Ranger Rick's Nature Magazine, published by the National Wildlife Federation. The word "feral" refers to domestic animals, such as cats and

As with exotic pets which are released to the wild, domesticated animals have difficulty in caring for themselves, engaging in activities which are not only harmful to themselves, but to man as well. By tipping over garbage cans, they make dirty cities dirtier, and aid rats in their quest for food. They can spread diseases to other animals, often valuable pets, and when roaming wild, will bite people, including children who are intrigued by the familiar appearance of the dog or cat.

Aside from staving off starvation, these animals must also beware of the death traps which are congested city streets. And, unlike a pampered pet, roaming "wild" dogs and cats do not get the benefit of treatment by a veterinarian for any illness they contract. Thus, the average life span of the domestic pet, 14 to 15 years, is reduced to about one year for these animals when running wild.

Caras offers some solutions for the problems he recounts. First, "no dog or cat should be allowed freedom to wander in or near a city." Secondly, "unwanted pets should not be abandoned, but taken to an animal shelter for the SPCA." And lastly, animals not being used for breeding purposes should be "fixed" to prevent them from having young, which might go homeless.

FRIDAY, DECEMBER 1

Varsity basketball debuts for the season at 7:30 pm tonight in the Fieldhouse. The Bobcats will meet Western Washington at 7:30, followed by a frosh contest with Malmstrom AFB. There will be no admission charged to MSU students with ID's.

MSU art students will be selling their works from 8 until 5 pm. The sale will be held in Herrick Hall. Items offered for sale will include pottery, paintings and a collection of prints.

SATURDAY, DECEMBER 2

More basketball tonight as the Bobcats meet Morningside College at 7:30. MSU students with valid ID's will be charged $1.00 admission and $1.50 without. Season tickets are also available from the Fieldhouse.

Arnold Air Society and Angel Flight will hold their annual "Hunter's Feast" from 5 to 7 pm. Many types of game including duck, deer, and elk will be offered. The feast will be held in the Bozeman Masonic Temple and donations of $2 for adults and $1 for children under 12 are requested. Tickets will be available at the door or from AFROTC at 994-4021.

The SUB's Cinema Circuit offers Bullitt tonight at 7:30 pm. The widely acclaimed movie stars Steve McQueen and Jacqueline Bisset. Cops and robbers at their best. Admission is $.75 at the door.

SUNDAY, DECEMBER 3

"Bullitt" plays its last night in the SUB Theatre at 7:30 pm. See above for details.

KGLT has "Under the Gun #13" lined up for 9 pm. This weird series never fails to surprise. Tonight's selection covers everything from sexual synonyms for salacious short stories to acupuncture. Whew!

MONDAY, DECEMBER 4

The 6th annual Madrigal Dinner has been set for 6:30 pm tonight. The event is sponsored by Mu Sigma Alpha and the Student Union. Tickets are by reservation from the SUB desk at $4 for adults and $3.75 for students.

The Outdoor Club is offering a program along with their regular meeting tonight at 7:30 pm in Room 139 of the SUB. Dr. McPheeters will talk on the problems of winter camping and travel. Everyone welcome.

With election returns compiled, Student Senate should prove to be of interest to all. The circus will convene in the SUB at 6 pm. It is rumored that the chair is still in doubt.

KGLT and Pacifica present the second Cuban Lecture Series entitled "The Press in Rebellion" at 9 pm. Jorge Enrique Mendoza, director of Granma, the official organ of the Central Committee of Cuba's Communist Party, will discuss the history of the underground press. An informative and enlightening program.

TUESDAY, DECEMBER 5

The student directed Shoestring Theatre presents Max Frish's "The Firebugs" in the SUB Theatre at 8 pm. Performances will be nightly from 5-9 December. "The Firebugs" is described as an allegory about a careless Everyman.

Perry Bruskin reminisces about his friend, Brendan Behan, tonight on KGLT's Pacifica. Bruskin tells of the IRA leader who "... was lost in the shadow of the time because he was such a brief time on the horizon." Air time is 9 pm.

WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 6

Dan Hicks and his Hot Licks appear in the SUB Ballroom at 8 pm. Reportedly bringing his own decor with him of potted palms and a moon-over-Wiamea-Bay backdrop. Hicks is rated by Cash Box as 75% ahead of his competition. Admission is $1.49. It should be worth that to see what Montana weather does to potted palms.

With the fanfare (?) of elections out of the way, KGLT will discuss campus politics with the Legislative Research Committee of ASMSU. Meet the people behind the impressive title at 9 pm. Telephoned questions are welcome.

THURSDAY, DECEMBER 7

There will be a meeting of the Philosophy Group at 7:30 pm in Room 310, SUB. The group will discuss B. F. Skinner's "Beyond Freedom and Dignity." Philosopher and psychologists, behaviorists and anti-behaviorists, and combinations and permutations thereof will participate. The meeting will be open to all who find themselves either irritated or excited by Skinner's work and a representative sample — a true cross section — of students is anticipated. Bring a date; or your favorite rat.

"The Happiness Boys," a KPFA-Pacifica production, will be aired at 9 pm on KGLT. The program explores the success of the TV "News Gang" and image-making in commercial TV news. Eloquently stated by Pacifica, "The focus is local — the implications are not."

AA tournament leaves

By Joe Nistler

Now that high school basketball has begun again in Montana, Bozeman merchants are sorrowfully reminded that there will be no AA tournament in town this year.

According to Guy Sperry, manager of the Bozeman Chamber of Commerce, there were at least two reasons for the adverse decision by the Montana High School Association Board.

In his May letter to other chamber members, Sperry said: "The Missoula bid was slightly lower than Bozeman's but it is felt that this had no bearing on the results. The University of Montana is enlarging their Fieldhouse to accommodate the crowds, and Missoula wanted the Class AA tournament."

Apparently Missoula had more political clout with the MHSAA Board and were awarded the tournament.

"Further, Bozeman has been the site of this sports event for the past several years (having won it away from Butte) and it is felt the town has grown complacent.

Each year it has become more difficult for the Chamber to obtain the enthusiastic cooperation necessary to successfully support this tournament to the satisfaction of the teams and fans. Maybe after a short period of fasting our appetite will return.

MSU Fieldhouse manager Bud Purdy, who aided Sperry in the Bozeman presentation to the MHSAA Board in Helena last April, said the Board was attracted to the remodeled UM Fieldhouse because of a new seating and the possibility of a Tartan surface playing floor.

Yet Purdy said, "There's a maximum potential of 9,300 seats in Missoula, while we can seat 10,000 in Bozeman."

Meanwhile, Bozeman's economy will be minus something like $100,000 this spring — via bars, restaurants, motels and hotels, gas station and decreased employment in the Fieldhouse.

Sperry also said a major difference between Bozeman's and Missoula's sponsorship of the tournament is that the two Missoula high schools are responsible for the latter. The Sentinel and Hellgate representatives are renting the UM Fieldhouse.

Ouch!

Eleven teams will compete in the second annual Montana State Invitational Wrestling tournament Friday and Saturday, said MSU coach F. Emsick.

Preliminaries will begin noon Friday in the Fieldhouse arena. The semi-finals are scheduled at noon Saturday and the finals will be held following Saturday night basketball game between MSU and Morningside College.

Defending champion Rice College and MSU, which won second last year, each will enter two full teams in the tourney.

Schools which entered the team each are Northern Montana College, Western Montana College, Eastern Montana College, Rocky Mountain College, Eastern Washington State College, North Idaho Junior College and Northwest Community College.

Emsick, beginning his third year at MSU, has nine letters men on the squad and believes the Bobcats will be a stronger team than last season when they finished with an dual meet record.

For the first time in several seasons it appears the Bobcats will have depth at every position but heavyweight.

Gals to bounce

Kathy Argo, coach of women's basketball at MSU, has released the practice schedule for her team. There will be practice sessions both Tuesday, December 5, and Thursday, December 7, between 5:30 and 7 in the Old Gym.

Once winter quarter begins, practice will be from 5 til 7 Monday-Thursday.

Those females interested in roundball are encouraged to attend these practices.

Below is a list of tournaments the team will compete in during winter quarter:

January 13 — at University of Montana.

January 20 — at Western Montana College.

January 27 — MSU hosts other Montana college teams.

February 2-3 — at University of Montana.

February 17 — at Eastern Montana College.

February 28 — district finals at Central Washington State.

March 3 — at Rocky Mountain College.

Ms. Argo noted that those girls who do not compete on the A squad will be able to compete on a junior varsity team.

Sanks heads water board

Dr. Robert L. Sanks, professor of civil engineering and engineering mechanics at Montana State University, has been elected chairman of the Montana State Board of Certification of Water and Waste Water Operators.

Sanks was appointed to the six-member board three years ago by Gov. Forrest Anderson. Function of the board is to administer examinations to and certify water plant operators and sewage plant operators.

At MSU, Sanks directs the environmental engineering area in civil engineering and engineering mechanics including teaching and research at undergraduate, master's, and doctorate levels.

Student presents paper

A critique of the Broadwater-Missouri Irrigation Project in Montana's Broadwater County will be discussed at the International Symposium on Water Resources Planning scheduled Dec. 4-8 in Mexico City.

G.V.V. Rao, graduate student in the Montana State University Department of Civil Engineering and Engineering Mechanics, will present a paper on this topic. It is based on his work last summer for the State Department of Natural Resources and Conservation.

Rao will present a second paper at the same symposium on "Systems Analysis for Water Resources Planners."

Following the Mexico meeting he will attend the International Symposium on Uncertainties in Hydrologic and Water Resources Systems, scheduled at the University of Arizona in Tucson. He was awarded a travel grant for this meeting by the National Science Foundation.

Campus cops go to the dogs

The city ordinance states that there is a Leash Law in existence to the effect that all dogs not on owners property must be on a leash.

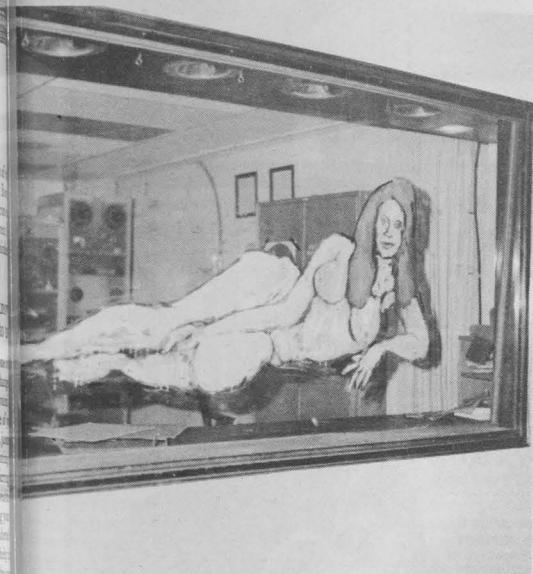

Because this is a city ordinance and since the campus is within city limits, any dogs without a leash and causing a nuisance on campus will be impounded by the city dog catcher. They will then be taken to the veterinary clinic where the necessary fees for licensing and board and room are paid for the animals release.

The campus cops will take action on nuisance dogs in the university's buildings otherwise the city police have the duty to impound dogs creating a nuisance, running at large, or are without a license.

"Owners, remember it is also unlawful to have dogs tied to trees or posts on campus," said Sgt. Pettys of the Campus Police.

There was a short art display in the window of KGLT. We don't know who did it, why it was done, but we do know that it was washed off last night, so if you didn't see it, it's too late.
