'Fraternity Ball' a smash!

Many of MSU's fraternity brothers and sisters got together for a raucous party last Saturday night. The "get-together" was both a fund-raiser for beer money for future parties and a "welcome back" to the fine brothers and sisters of MSU's Greek system. The event, sponsored jointly by Delta Sigma, Pi Kappa Alpha, and Pi Beta Phi, began to get out of hand as the participants became more and more intoxicated, as is usually the case with fraternities. The fraternity brother and sister pictured here are from the Delta Sigma and Alpha Omichron Pi houses, respectively. They have opted to remain analogous.

second half of the Montana legislative session has resulted in the introduction of controversial bills. The current university funding crisis is the topic of heated debate among lawmakers and has resulted in the "Moral Reform Revenue Enhancement" bill. Terms of this bill, proposed by several Missoula-area representatives, call for mandatory reorganization of the Ag program on the campus accompanied by specific operating procedures. The bill would require the Plant Growth Institute at MSU to produce marijuana which would be sold for additional university funding. The measure also requires MSU to cease trade deficit expenditure agricultural reorganization in order to direct more resources to marijuana production. The measure is supported by the Missoula faculty and administration, and opposed by the majority of Bozeman constituents.

When the Excrement questioned the authors of the bill about the long-term impacts of such a measure, one Missoula-area lawmaker responded by saying, "Hey man, if you had been at the Grateful Dead show in 'Frisco in '72, you'd know how it fits into the cosmos of things man!"

On a related note, there was a rider attached to the "Moral Reform Revenue Enhancement" bill which is supported by the Board of Regents and the gambling lobby. This rider is a service user tax, which calls for legalized prostitution in all licensed gambling establishments in the state. The terms of this commerce clause acknowledge affirmative action and equal opportunity by requiring both male and female employees on staff at all times.

The measure would raise revenue through an 11 percent condom sales tax, paid at the point of sale, along with a flat-rate bed tax. The House Speaker is reported to have said he would filibuster the proposal unless the rider also provides for expanding the number of gambling licenses in the state. The governor was unavailable for comment on the proposal.

April Fools!

Happy belated April Fools Day, kids!

As you can see, if your mind has been expanded past the rigors of everyday student life, we have chosen to treat you to some of the finest humor east of the Gallatin.

Yes, we have joined the legion of college newspapers who pay special tribute to April first in the form of a "parody issue." We give you the ASMSU Excrement!

We hope you will enjoy perusing the Excrement as much as we enjoyed publishing it. We have carefully selected, for your reading delight, a list of well-known campus people, places, organizations, and happenings to spoof.

This issue has "PARODY" written all over it; to take it any other way would be downright foolish!

Please note that with the exception of those on pages 14 and part of 15, all advertisements in the Excrement were placed by hard-working business-people who genuinely want you to buy their products. These ads are not a laughing matter; they are serious. Please take them as such.

The Exponent will return Tuesday, so enjoy our little break from sanity while it lasts—and remember: if you have a complaint about this or any issue we publish, or if you just want to rap, please dial us up, at (406) 994-2341.

'Final Four' MSU prez candidates from a pool of bums

From soup line to interview line

by Bart Flossam

Excrement contract mudslinger

The final four candidates for president of MSU were bums, a senior university official revealed yesterday.

The candidates, Mike Malone, Rex Cottle, Harold Allen and V. Lane Rawlins, are reputed soup line inhabitants, said Jim Isch, MSU vice-president for administration and chairman of the presidential search committee.

"Malone is well known on the west coast for being a kiddie porn kingpin," Isch said.

Further, Allen has "made quite a name for himself in the soup kitchens and flop houses of his hometown of Toledo."

Rawlins, who recently withdrew his bid to take a higher-paying job elsewhere, has what Isch called a "record as long as my arm."

And Rex Cottle, who heralds from Oxford, Mississippi, was recognized last week by an alert TV viewer after an episode of "Unsolved Mysteries" exposed him as someone who has cheated "countless old ladies out of their money," Isch said with disgust.

"The rest of the pool of candidates were no better," Isch declared. "They consisted mostly of pig farmers from McAllen, the fourteenth-place winner of the Iditerod, and a couple of employed ruffians from the Westing oil fields."

Campus reaction to the findings is one of startled amazement.

"I can't believe we could have been so stupid," said Van Hamer, chairman of the faculty council.

"Maybe I can get that desperately sought-after promotion now," chimed a gleeful Reginald Frazier. "And to think, I almost had me talked into it!"

Malone has been fired by the board of regents almost before he even started, and a new, more expensive search will start immediately, Isch said.

Local terrorists attack Culligan Man's vehicle

by Phil McRevice

Excrement 'dregs of society' correspondent

A group of anti-establishment campus radicals attempted to terrorize a merchants van yesterday. Calling themselves the Affirmative Action Advisory Committee, they attacked the Culligan water treatment van bearing the companies slogan, "Hey, Culligan Man!"

Corky Bush, the terrorist groups outspoken leader, maintained that such a sexist organization should not be allowed to service or even enter any part of the campus. "The slogan those corporate sexist paint on their vans is appalling," Bush said. "The implication that no woman could perform the duties of a Culligan Man, is unforgivable."

In the attack, over 200 Affirmative Action members tried to stampede the van. None of the members were hurt, but several of the often-photographed campus ducks were crushed. The

SOTA flap rages on

by Polly Esther Fabrique

Excrement staff entomologist

SOTA leaders Tuesday announced plans to decrease the organization's age requirements in an attempt to bolster club membership.

SOTA, an acronym for 'Students Over Traditional Age', is a campus organization with only about a dozen members, despite the fact that anyone over the age of 25 is considered a SOTA, according to SOTA Advisor Bob Waters.

"People just don't care about these old people anymore."

So in an attempt to combat apathy and increase participation, SOTA is lowering its age requirement to 19.

"I think with that many new SOTAs, the organization might have a chance," Waters said.

The move has long been encouraged by university officials, who see a higher percentage of older students as a good marketing tactic. According to Marilyn Wessel, director of university relations, the decreased age limit will lead to increased enrollment.

"People will see that we are nice to old people,"

Wessel commented. "I think it will give that senior out there who has been long grappling with the benefits of going back to school the needed motivation."

"Besides, a more mature student populace will stimulate faculty. You can't go wrong with a 97 percent SOTA ratio," Wessel added.

But civic leaders disagree.

Last night, the Bozeman Area Chamber of Commerce met in closed session to discuss the proposal. They voted not to support the idea based on demographic figures which indicate most county support services will go out of business if a large number of elderly return to school.

"Nursing homes will be hardest hit, we fear," a report issued by the chamber states.

"This can conceivably lead to closure of such homes which would render any elderly folks who need such facilities homeless or an extreme burden to their children, which is of course why they place their loved ones in these homes in the first place."

SOTA leaders, however, contend the increased sales of coffee and cigarettes to the larger SOTA population will offset any shortfalls in the county's nursing home budgets.

Eastman, Stephens named Greek Woman and/or Man of the Year

Eastman, with roommate Rick Archuleta, won last April's election for coveted ASMSU executive position.

Stephens and partner Len Kolstad were miraculously elected in 1988.

Stan the Man

The 28-year-old Eastman, who is not even Greek, was taken aback by the award.

"I can't believe it," she exclaimed in her acceptance speech at the ceremony Wednesday. "As much as I detest Greeks, I am touched that they have bestowed this upon me."

Stephens' comments were guarded and smacked of Republican political jargon.

"My analysts are studying they chose Eastman as coveted Woman of the Year because of her extreme concern and care for MSU's population.

"She has paid utmost attention to us," the memo said. "Like when Tiffany brought nail she'd been grooming her quarter..."

"Nobody knows why I'm a large idiot (Stephens) was honored," the memo declared.

Say your sorry, Andrew

Dear Editor,
I am writing in response to your editorial of September 9, 1990 in which you addressed certain topics related to the university system and the students in general.

I think you are totally wrong in your opinions about the situation of which you speak. What can you be thinking? I know you are an intelligent person, but statements like these only serve to demean the reputation of the school, its faculty and students. Of course, they are your opinions to express as you will, but a person in your high position should be more careful with what you say and where you say it.

A formal apology on the incident should be in order.

Thank you for your time,

Greeks need more coverage

Editor,

I've been a student and member of the Pikes Fraternity at MSU for seven years and in the past the Exponent has provided me with a wealth of Greek news. In the last two years however, the amount of this important information has decreased steadily.

Recently, the annual Fake ID contest was held without any coverage what-so-ever from the Exponent. It's obvious that the Greeks are at the forefront of all academic, athletic, and most importantly, social functions at MSU. In essence, we are more important than any other group on campus, therefore we deserve prime media coverage.

This is a serious matter and both the Intra-Fraternity Council and the Panhellenic Council have discussed the problem and decided that appropriate measures will be taken if the situation is not resolved immediately.

Pissed,
Joe Hunt
Sigma Chi Extortion Specialist

We at the Excrement now realize the grievous injustice we have committed by not featuring the all-important Greek community. Forgive us and more importantly pray for us.

The Sports Editor is a nerd

Dear Scumbag Sports Editor,

Why isn't there ever any hockey, tennis or golf news in the Exponent?

As a devoted fan of the Portland Winterhawks, Boris Becker and Fuzzy Zoeller, I feel that I am missing something everytime I look in your publication. All you do is write stories about Spring Training and the stupid Bobcat basketball teams. I am sick of seeing pictures of Pete Rose and Jim Palmer's baseball cards when you could just as well use photos of real athletes like John McEnroe!

Sincerely ticked off,
Chad Reynolds

Sidewalks for bikes not people

Dear Editor:

We, the Mountain Bikers of Montana State University, feel that it is about time that pedestrians know their proper place.

When a mountain bike is approaching from the rear, pedestrians should immediately remove themselves from the sidewalk, and either jump into the street or onto the grass/snow.

We, the Mountain Bikers, are tired of the excuse that students-on-foot can't hear us coming from behind them. What do you expect us to do? Put baseball cards in our spokes so you can hear us?

Someday, since the odds are against us, an unlucky Mountain Bike Rider may injure himself, or even worse, his bike if he happens to run into a careless pedestrian. It is obvious that the cement paths set up around campus are ideal for bicyclists, not for pedestrians.

How can people expect us to ride in the street; we could become covered with mud, or worse yet, hit an oncoming automobile.

Unless this ultra-cheap university comes up with the funding to give the bicyclists of this campus the elevated 'Super-Bike trail', pedestrians are going to have to get the #1@* out of the way.

In a hurry,
Chester Erickson
President
Mountain Bikers for Total Access

I want my adult entertainment

Dear Editor:

It really ticks me off that a freshman like myself (forced to live on this cruddy campus) must venture all the way to the Hinky Dink to purchase 'adult' periodicals. By the time I get back to my dorm room, the 'moment' has been lost, and I'm no longer in the mood for hard-core fun.

Sure, I can buy Playboy or Penthouse (or Playgirl, I'm not gay; it's just for arguments sake) on campus, but you can't find real stimulating material like Mother Jugs, Lesbian Loin Lovers Weekly, or Cock-a-doodle-doo.

Condoms are sold in the Student Health Service, why not sell these fine magazines in the Bookstore, or even better, make them available at Renne Library (a new reading room would be mandatory)? Until this problem is resolved, I will be forced to patronize off-campus businesses.

Frustrated and unsatisfied,

Hey! Listen up, you apathetic masses!

The parking here is real crappy

by Ken Barley Wright
Excrement staff whiner

This university, in step with the entire state, is so pathetically behind the times that it makes my gut wrench to be here.

I mean, come on, guys! Don't you think that you could pave a couple of MSU's many, vast soccer fields, paint some lines, and call them parking lots. I am so sick of walking for ten minutes from my parking space to my first class that I could just puke!

It is ridiculous of this university to ask that we walk to school from home, no matter how close to campus we live. Who are they to tell me how to live my life!

I live in the Delta Sigma house, just off campus behind Hannon Hall, and I insist on driving my car to school most days for two reasons:

- Montana weather is unpredictable, and I may be forced to walk in the snow or rain and I value my leather jacket too much to do that.

- Since I'm a finance major, most of my classes are in Reid Hall. If they were in Roberts I might consider walking, but if I have to walk all the way to Reid, I would just as soon cut class.

And who are these administrators to tell me to walk or ride the ASMSU bus system? What a bunch of hypocrites! I would venture a guess that not a one of them walks to school, ever! The laziness of these people appalls me!

Get this: The other day, instead of arriving at school early enough to get a parking space in the SUB, as I usually do, I was forced to park in the lot north of the fieldhouse! Do you know what that entails?

Parking behind the fieldhouse means I have to walk at least ten minutes to get to my class. I rarely carry a comb and my hair gets wind-blown nine times out of ten when I park there. The only benefit is that I can cut through the fieldhouse if it's cold outside, but the fact remains that this campus doesn't have enough parking, no matter what anybody says.

The thought of leaving my car for a couple hours in such a remote parking lot as the one north of the fieldhouse also turns my stomach! If the staff of this university wasn't so selfish as to build two private parking lots (near Hamilton and Roberts Halls), I wouldn't have to risk a ding in my door or having my stereo stolen. If anything happens to my car while I'm parked in the fieldhouse (or any other remote) lot, I'm sending the bill to MSU.

Screw them! I pay fees here and they aren't giving me my money's worth. I have not been told yet to transfer to another school if I want to continue to complain, but I know that's the next word out of their stupid mouths. If that's the case, I'll simply inform them they can't treat me that way, and you should too!!

They said NO

...when we asked them to help find funding for our desperate University System. Local representatives Spring, Wallin, and Barnett recently voted against a 2% income tax surcharge which would give $15 million to the U. System. Now, it's up to US!!

Call your legislators today and urge them to support your future...007!

Resentment drives Gibson to brink

by Tye Paisley
Excrement slander specialist

MSU's Dean of Engineering Dave Gibson was committed to the State Hospital for the Mentally Imbalanced Wednesday after a bizarre plot to oust newly-elected permanent president Michael Malone backfired.

Gibson, who has spent 20-plus years at MSU, was "driven to the brink of sanity" after hearing his arch-nemesis had been hired, according to MSU Police Chief Don Wortman.

In a statement released by Wortman yesterday, Gibson's plan entailed wiring the president's office with speakers and piping in KGLT music.

"He hoped to drive Malone nuts so he (Gibson) could have one last shot at the job," Wortman said. "He just snapped in a fit of jealousy."

KGLT, the student radio station of MSU, plays music "only granola-eaters stuck in the 60s listen to" according to that station's General Manager

Phil Charles.

KGLT has long been suspect of causing students to flunk out or commit suicide, Wortman added. "Gibson's plan surely would have worked," he said.

But it backfired when a secretary in the president's office accidentally turned KGLT on when Gibson was detained in a "meeting of the minds" and couldn't leave the president's office, Wortman told the Excrement.

Gibson applied for the coveted presidency but did not make the third cut, said search committee chairman Jim Isch.

Malone, who, strangely, was not fazed by the music, ordered the speaker system removed and replaced with a giant-screen TV.

"He who laughs last laughs best," he told the Excrement in a phone interview yesterday. "I would rather watch home movies of my wife dancing naked around the kitchen."

Malone has also demanded an in-depth investigation of KGLT, "and those blasphemers who run it."

driver of the van, noticing the sound of oncoming terrorists, immediately accelerated and avoided any serious damage to the vehicle.

Bush promised that this attack would not be the last. "We are going to run those bastards out of this campus if it's the last thing we do!"

The Culligan Water Treatment Company had no official comment, but our Excrement sources have revealed that Culligan is thinking of discontinuing its service to MSU.

The company, famous for its "Hey Culligan Man" slogan from television advertisements, has served MSU's water heaters and purifiers since the late 1920's. Acting President Mike Malone, when asked what the effect would be on campus Culligan were to pull out, succinctly replied, "it would suck the big one. Those water dudes understood purifiers. We've got to get rid of that damned Bush!"

Lambda Alliance, in fit of desperation, changes name

BOZEMAN (PA)—The MSU chapter of the Lambda Alliance of Gay Men and Lesbians has announced plans to change its name in a move to bolster membership, members say.

The new name, voted on by the group, is to be the "Lambda Alliance of Strange Sexual Dancing."

The group's president, who wishes to remain anonymous, told the Public Address that due to declining membership, the measure was necessary, and the new name will conjure up images of Hedonism and fun, as does the dance itself. The move was engineered to attract more fraternity members.

"I don't know if there are fewer gays at MSU than last year, but our membership is declining rapidly."

"This is just a finger in the dike," the swami said, adding that further, "more drastic" re-organizational measures will have to be taken soon to ensure the club will survive in future years.

"We are planning many fund raising events for next year, including a campus tofu feed and Perrier festival."

The Lambda Alliance's membership has shrunk from 750 to only 18 in recent years, and unless the trend reverses, members say, they will have to rely on the largely insincere, unempathetic general public for support.

If you can provide MSU's gay community any aids, please call 994-4636 for an anonymous contact near you.

Spurs, Fangs to hold sit-in on controversial condom issue

The MSU chapters of Spurs and Fangs are planning a sit-in at the governor's office next Thursday in silent protest of the recently passed condom initiative, which calls for an 11 percent surtax on state condom sales.

"This is cruel and unusual punishment," said a statement issued by Spurs leaders yesterday. "They want us to be responsible, yet they make condoms harder for most students to get. What kind of statement is that?"

State leaders say the initiative narrowly passed the Senate and will move to the House floor next Friday. It is designed to provide funding for Montana's desperate higher education system, legislators say.

"College students use more condoms than any other group combined," argued Bozeman representative Dorothy Bradley, an author of the disputed initiative. "We feel they should reap the benefits of their actions, however sinful they may be."

Fang leaders attest the measure would force more students, particularly freshmen, to engage in unprotected intercourse, and hope their lobbying efforts will bring about its failure.

The two organizations will bus students to Helena to participate in the sit-in.

"It is vital that we get as much student support as possible," the statements said. "Our futures as tax- and fee-paying students of this state and university are in grave danger."

If the initiative passes, condom prices in MSU dormitories will increase to around 69 cents each.

For more information on the sit-in, call 994-2828.

Al Bertelsen, director of the Strand Union, anticipates an increased SOTA population will necessitate the expansion of the building and the installation of more smoking areas.

"These people smoke an awful lot of cigarettes," he said. "I think it's a requirement for membership to the (SOTA) organization."

It isn't, according to Waters.

The MSU foodservice, in anticipation of the measure, has ordered an additional 2,000 pounds of coffee to meet the SOTA demand. In addition, ten new sections of English 121 have been added to the curriculum.

"I will boycott any increase in funding for any purpose whatsoever no matter how reasonable the request is...lest I become known as being interested in Montana

—Gov. Stephen

Some at MSU are worried about the imminent influx of SOTA. "We might have to build another building to accommodate all the extra sections," Registrar Joe Frazier commented. "The regents are already in a conservative mood, and I'm not sure we're going to get the funding."

The board of regents, however, support the measure.

"If this works to increase MSU's enrollment to respectable levels, we will recommend funding be allotted," said Regent Chairman William Mathers.

Governor Stephens has other plans.

"As I have indicated in the past, I will boycott any increase in funding for any purpose whatsoever no matter how reasonable the request is," Stephens vowed. "I have had this policy since I was elected and I refuse to deviate from this policy, lest I become known as being interested in the best interests of the State of Montana."

"Montana State University doesn't need anything, no matter how large their enrollment grows; they are not, as they have indoctrinated their students to believe, in a crisis situation," he continued, "their president makes more money than I do and until their is some equality in our two salaries, MSU won't be crying dime from me!"

This issue, the topic of much statewide controversy, will be the topic of a public forum to be held in the SUB Ballrooms at 7:30 p.m. April 14. For more information, the public is encouraged to call Marilyn Wessel at 994-2341 or Bob Waters at 994-2824.

NITS releases student profile report

Ben Dover & Phil McRevice
ASMSU Faculty Council correspondents

The National Institute for Teaching Students (NITS) has published the results of a two-year national survey of college student attitudes about education.

The results are somewhat surprising, considering slumping SAT scores and the growing dumbification of American students," said Dr. I. DesPearre of American University, who headed the project.

Our survey would indicate that contrary to popular mythology and the convictions of most university professors, American students cherish the opportunity to learn and are profoundly committed to improving themselves as writers, thinkers and know-ers."

The massive report, which runs to over 1000 pages, reveals student attitudes about the importance of education in their personal lives. Students were asked to rate aspects of their formal education in relation to such activities as drinking beer, watching WrestleMania, having sex alone or with another, repairing pick-ups, attending monster tractor pulls, hunting, and "veging out."

Ninety-five percent of American students surveyed report that they love learning for its own sake or because it makes them a more complete person.

Only five percent said that jobs, earning more money, parental approval, or not knowing what else to do in life were primary motivations for their attending college.

Ninety percent reported they prefer reading to drinking beer.

Seventy five percent said they spend as much time preparing for classes as they do trying to have sex.

And only one percent agreed with the statement, "grades are more important than learning."

"The results of the NITS project are truly astounding," remarked Professor Ives Hattit, a therapist who specializes in counseling college teachers suffering from professional depression.

"These results," Hattit went on to say, "clearly indicate that professors may be in error in how they perceive American students."

Lamont Cranston, president of the American Society of Students, applauded the findings of the NITS report.

"Personally, I'm fed up with survey after survey saying that American students can't name the capital city of Jakarta or don't know that it was Franklin Roosevelt, not his brother Theodore, who began Reconstruction."

Cranston, a double major in basketball and track, said the findings of the NITS report should elevate the sagging self-esteem of American students.

Luxury "Cat Box" condos to grace top of Hedges dorms

by Melinda Dowell
Excrement Dorm Rat
Correspondent

One of the most common complaints among students who live on campus at Montana State University concerns the overcrowded conditions in the dorms.

Residence Life officials have known about the problem for many years, but have been unable to come up with an acceptable solution until recently. Last month a student committee from the Architecture Department submitted a proposal to build luxury high-rise penthouse suites on top of the Roskie and Hedges Dormitory buildings. The proposal was unanimously accepted by the MSU University Facilities Planning and Utilization Board (UFPUB) and construction on the 14 million dollar project is expected to begin in early June.

The "Cat Boxes", which will include such luxuries as large screen projection television sets, hot tubs, and complete wet bar and snack areas, will rent for between $3,500 and $5,000 a term. While standard double-single room and board rates at MSU are much cheaper, costing around $900 per term, Residence Life officials do not expect any problem with finding renters for the luxury suites. In fact, even though the doors are not expected to open until the fall of 1991, approximately 250 rental applications have already been received.

"The response has been fantastic," Cat Box Coordinator Linda Hunt said. "You always hear about how broke students are, but there is a certain select clientele on campus whose parents will send them a blank check at the drop of hat. That's our target group."

Students applying for residence in the new penthouse complexes will have to go through a Cat Box Housing Review Panel. Prospective renters must have acquired a 1.8 grade point average, be over 18 years of age, and be able to forge their parent's signature.

Despite some initial ill-reaction, student opinion has been overwhelmingly in support of the project.

"I think it's an awesome idea," Blake Goody, a junior from Teton, Montana, remarked. "I lived in the dorms for two years and my roommate did was lay around, read playboys, and pass gas. you know what it's like to miss some babe and bring her back to a place like that?"

"I can't wait to move upstairs," Goody continued. "I am just tired of all the sex and drinking and noise and other hedonistic things that go on in these bestos-laden fire traps."

touching story of a New Jersey gang member leaves his cultural roots and wanders the African continent working for the Corps where he eventually comes to live the family of Nelson Mandela. This epic is shot on location in both the South Bronx in the DeBeer's diamond mines of South

The action in this movie is spectacular. The where Mel Brooks chases a goat herd the Serengeti Plain on a vintage model bicycle is breathtaking. Leading lady prostate surgery.

The special effects for the operating room are brilliant. The unanesthetized sur-performed by a Zimbabwean gardener whose surgical tool is a weed wacker is not for the squeemish.

Dances With Hyenas has all the ingredients for a modern day Hollywood masterpiece; incest, violence, graphic sex, and a weak storyline.

Don't walk, run to your nearest theater to see this movie. This must see flick is controversial, touching and was given a two-thumbs-up-your-nose rating by the critics.

Who is this masked man?

by Chuck Foppes

Exponent idiot correspondent

This week's personality is a man we all know as the Village Idiot.

He came to Montana in 1966 from Alberta, Canada, and with only a high school diploma (or its equivalent—we're not sure). Since then, he has become a rich, uptight businessman, homeowner, and has been awarded by members of his adopted community of Have 'er.

For instance, last month, this 60-year-old, overweight, narrow-minded jerk was awarded the prestigious "Dan Quayle Award," for an outstanding job of cloning the nation's doltish second-incommand.

"The Republican party, of which I am a proud member, can really pick 'em," this mystery man commented candidly.

Our profiled guest had developed quite a reputation for being the man least interested in the important problems of the state of Montana, and bolsters this reputation with unfaltering stubbornness, according to members of the 52nd Legislative Assembly.

Mr. Bart's TV land

New TV season promises hours of family fun time!!

by Jack Bart

PA television writer

The networks are already hard at work preparing the entries for next season's ratings war. ABC, CBS, NBC & Fox recently held a joint press conference in Los Angeles to show off some of their new programs.

In an attempt to lure audiences away from the movie theatres and back to the small screen, the networks are pulling out all the stops and using as much sex and violence as possible. Some producers are banking on series based on popular movies with has-been actors in the starring roles.

The following is a network-by-network sampling of next season's fall schedule.

Doggie Hoser M.D. - The life and times of the world's smartest canine as he practices medicine in one of the world's worst hospitals.

More Growing Pangs - Mike loses a leg to an incurable case of athlete's foot and the family rallies around him. Hilarity ensues.

Lincoln Continental - Karate champion Chuck Norris stars as former President Abraham Lincoln who travels through time to the 1990's to fight crime in his souped up town car. Mr. T guest stars as Kunta Kintay, Lincoln's faithful sidekick. Another exciting action/adventure show from Steven J. Cannel, creator of The A-Team, Riptide, and BJ and the Bear.

Pretty Woman - Rosanne Barr is featured in a sitcom based on the smash-hit movie starring Julia Roberts.

Our Uncle Ernie - Guess what happens when a mental patient moves in with his nephew's family. Gary Busey stars as crazy Uncle Ernie, Jerry Mathers of Leave It to Beaver is the Nephew.

Beat the Rap - Teen music idol Vanilla Ice plays an unconventional attorney in this courtroom musical/drama. Donny Wahlberg of New Kids on the Block guest stars as an arsonist in the opening episode.

NBC
Twin Pits - From producer David Lynch. Follows the mysterious happenings in the tiny backwoods town where Right Guard underarm deodorant is manufactured.

You Can't Touch This - M.C. Hammer hosts this prime-time game show where contestants try to win fabulous prizes by attempting to touch various celebrities' body parts.

Different Crimes - Willis, Arnold and Kimberly are serving time in prison for murdering their father and burning down their Park Avenue penthouse for the insurance money.

FOX
America's Most Wanted High

School Students - Viewers help track down students with overdue library books, unexcused absences, and outstanding warrants for killing teachers.

The Quayles - A new cartoon show from the makers of The Simpsons about a golf pro in Washington D.C. who lands a job as Vice-President of the United States.

Chip Holman D.D.S. of the W.W.F. - The story of the world's youngest dentist who spends his days off in the ring as a professional wrestler.

Cats devise new secret tactics

Steve Longshot
Head Athletics logic analyst

After a less than successful 1990-91 season in which Montana State men's basketball team sputtered, stalled, and finally fizzled out towards the end of the season, the Bobcat coaching staff has come up with a game plan for next year.

It is a well-known fact to anyone who has watched the team in recent years, that they live and die by the three-shot. At times, this has caused problems, while at other times it has brought victory. Either way, it means three points instead of two when the ball goes through the hoop. It doesn't take a Math major to figure out that three is worth more than two.

And that's exactly the thinking behind the new game plan.

An anonymous source, just two doors down from Head Coach Mick Durham's office, revealed that this season the Bobcats will abandon half-court offense and just shoot the ball from wherever they have possession.

Why should we shoot for two when we can go for three? the source remarked. "We won't even dribble. We'll just get the ball first shoots. We don't care if he's at the top of the key or under the other team's basket. We're going to fly and cross our fingers."

It might sound stupid at first, but after closer examination it's really quite practical. Since they won't be wasting time with offensive plays and basketball fundamentals, the 'Cats can put up at least three times as many shot attempts as usual.

"Why should we shoot for two when we can go for three? We won't even dribble. Whoever gets the ball first shoots. We're going to let it fly and cross our fingers."

—Anonymous

Suppose they take 200 shots in the game and only hit 25 percent - they will still score an unprecedented 150 points! This is even more impressive when you consider that even the best basketball team in the country, UNLV, only averages around 100 points a

Boxer Shorts™

Tyson to take on the 'Donut Hole' in Vegas

LAS VEGAS, NV (PA) - Former Heavyweight boxing champion Mike Tyson will take another step toward regaining the title he lost to James "Buster" Douglas when he takes on Bob "The Donut Hole" Smith later this month in Las Vegas, Nevada.

Tyson has been quoted as saying that he would "hit Smith until his jewels fall out".

Smith is not worried about beating Tyson. "The Donut Hole" has never fought in a professional bout, although he knocked out Hector Rodriguez, a part-time Albertson's checker, last April in Bozeman, Montana.

"I was in the 10 item express lane, but that jerk said each roll of toilet paper counted as one item. . . so I cold-cocked him with a liter bottle of Cherry Coke."

Smith plans no real training schedule for his match-up with Iron Mike, but instead plans to use psychological tactics on him.

"The first thing I'm going to do after the bell rings is ask him his phone number. That should confuse him for the first round. If things get real bad I might ask him to do simple division. When he's dazed enough I'll probably just slip in a cheap shot below the belt. That seems to be his weak spot."

The winner is expected to take home a purse in excess of $4,000,000,000,000 while the loser will receive a life-time supply of Rice-A-Roni, the San Francisco treat.

Boxing promoter Don King has dubbed the contest "The Big Contest." The event will be televised in 3-D on Saturday morning between The Muppet Babies and Scooby Doo.

Iron Mike

The Donut Hole

game.

"It's not really a new idea," the source admitted. "We stole it from the Harlem Globetrotters. I don't know why somebody hasn't already thought of it. It makes perfect sense to our coaching staff."

The Montana State players like it too.

"It's an awesome idea!" redshirt freshman Howie Faring commented. "Just think, I won't have to run up and down the court and get sweaty and I can still put more points on the board than Micheal Jordan and Majic Johnson put together!"

The Bobcat coaching staff is already preparing for next season's long distance assault by putting the players through target practice with a weighted ball and by teaching them the classic "granny shot" for more distance and accuracy.

Durham has also allegedly sent his scouts to the far corners of the earth in hopes of finding some athletes whose skills fit into the new program. According to another anonymous source close to the department, the Bobcats are extremely interested in two players in particular.

On the top of the MSU recruiting list is Rauji Olormai, 5-4 defector from the Iraqi Army, who displayed tremendous grenade-throwing accuracy during the Persian Gulf conflict. The other outstanding prospect is Mike Jenkins, a 5-9 guard from Belgrade. There have also been rumors that Bobcat recruiters have recently visited with members of the Ringling Brothers-Barnum and Bailey Circus about joining the team, but those reports are yet unconfirmed.

Ultramurals

Pies win mud wrestling

The I-Eight-Pie sorority captured the ASMSU mud wrestling competition last week. Junior Jeniffer Holowell pinned senior Patricia Donybrock of the Cow-Omegas in a time of 10:25.8 to win the championship.

"It was really, really, really messy," Holowell remarked. "But I love rolling around in the muck."

In the Lime Jello Competition, Ronda Goldman of the Cows struggled through three tough rounds, but eventually pinned Tammy Tucas of the Slam-Bams for the victory. Kathrina Phulps of the Tow-Pigs placed third in the event, but was later disqualified after it was learned that she had used steroids.

Nearly 200 hundred wrestlers competed in the competition which drew a crowd of well over 20,000 to the Brick Breeden Fieldhouse.

Reynolds smash in derby

Sophomore Chad Reynolds turned in an impressive driving performance to win the ultramural destruction derby held in the Roskie parking lot. Reynolds drove his 1975 Dodge station Wagon to victory as he smashed into the other 25 cars and crippled three drivers. Mike Tounglash bashed his way to second place in a 1982 Plymouth Valiant. Senior Danny Walters, driving an orange and black Chevy Vega, placed third, but was pronounced dead on arrival at the Bozeman Deaconess Hospital.

The Sigma Pies won the fraternity portion of the event by successfully defeating the Delta-Fangs and Bi-Phocals. The Pies were arrested shortly after the competition when it was discovered that they had used vehicles stolen from the South Hedges parking lot.

Skeet finals cancelled

The finals of the ultramural skeet shooting competition held in the Lambert Memorial Field behind the Roskie dorm was cancelled last week after a number of near fatal accidents.

A number of the contestants received serious injuries when a gunfight erupted over a questionable ruling. Dozens of windows were also shot out of the Roskie and Hedges complexes on account of poor marksmanship.

Wipeout race scheduled for Bridger

Bridger Bowl is currently accepting entries for the 1991 Downhill Wipeout Competition to be on held April 22.

Contestants will start at the top of The Ridge and continue down through the chutes and cliffs as they try and knock off the other racers in a fight to the finish line. Competitors may use any means at their disposal to force the other skiers off the course, but automatic firearms are strictly forbidden.

The first-place finisher will receive an all expense paid trip to the Wipeout Grand Nationals at Oregon's Willamette Pass Ski Area. The local tournament is sponsored by Bozeman Deaconess Hospital, Soloman Skis, and Budweiser Breweries.

The race will be televised on ESPN later in the year at around 2:30 in the morning.

New Events planned for 92 Olympics

by Stu Rold
Excrement Olympic Correspondent

With the 1992 Summer Olympics in Barcelona, Spain just one year away, the Olympic Committee this week announced a list of exhibition sports to be included in the games.

Four new sports will make their premiere appearances at the 1992 competition. Along with the usual sports such as basketball and gymnastics will be croquette, lawn jarts, tractor pulling and synchronized hair styling. The inclusion of a best buns/wet T-shirt event is currently under consideration.

Tickets for the Lawn Jart competition were sold out within minutes of the announcement. The United States is expected to win the medal on account of the number of competitors from that country who have extensive experience in throwing hand grenades.

The United States is expected to win the medal on account of the number of competitors from that country who have extensive experience in throwing hand grenades. The U.S. Olympic Committee has received over 400 applications from residents of Georgia and Nebraska who are interested in competing in the tractor pulling and can supply their own overalls.

"You wouldn't believe the number of people who want to drive a tractor for Uncle Sam," an Olympic recruiter commented. "We're very surprised with the response."

45 year-old Bubba Crumbaker, a native of Slickwater, Nebraska, is currently the one to beat in the Tractor Pull. Crumbaker, known to his friends as "Tubby", made the regulation weight of 293 pounds and is currently in training at local bars and taverns to add about 40 more.

Although the croquette competition will no doubt prove to be a favorite with the British and senior citizens, the U.S. is looking to a different kind of athlete to take part in the event. The plan is to convert the shot putters and weight lifters, who fall out of contention at the preliminaries of their events, into croquette players.

"Some of them boys can really whap that ball," Head Croquette Coach Roger Walsh said.

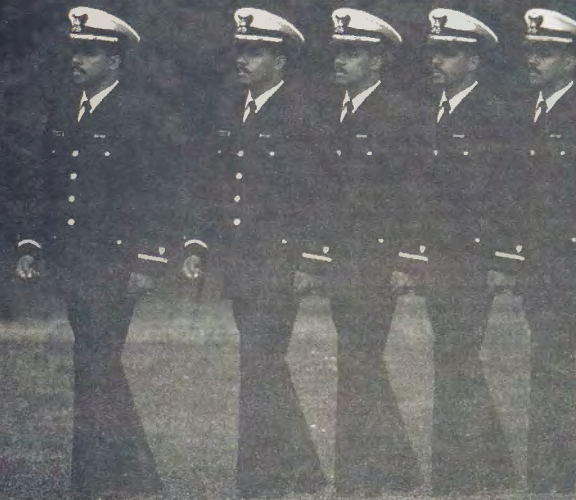

Synchronized Hair Styling is also proving controversial as protestors have been demonstrating outside Barbizon Beauty Colleges across the country, claiming that hair styling is not a sport. Earlier this month a protestor in Corruption, New Jersey was blinded by an angry beautician with a can of Rave hair spray.

Olympic officials have taken the recent unrest into consideration and are planning to post armed guards at the entrance to the wash and set competition area in case of emergency.

"We know that things don't always go as planned," Malimar commented. "There is always somebody out there who thinks they are better than everybody else."

"That's what the Olympics are all about."

Bozeman Bullies score goal with Gretzky

by Mike O'Malley
Excrement stud hockey writer

Bozeman moved one step closer to becoming Montana's first 'Major League City' this afternoon, when hockey star Wayne Gretzky verbally committed to signing on with the 'Bozeman Bullies' hockey club.

Mike "No Teeth" Eruizione, former Olympic hockey star, and coach of the Bullies, said that in an attempt to insure expansion status for the 1991-92 season, National Hockey League commissioner John Ziegler needed to be assured that the organization had to prove that it could compete with the other teams in the League.

Eruizione stated in a press conference at the posh SUB Ballroom C, that Gretzky would make the Bullies a legitimate contender. When asked about the rest of his team, Eruizione said, "It doesn't matter, Gretzky's been a winner everywhere he's gone, Bozeman won't be any different."

"It's obvious Bozeman is a hockey town," Eruizione went on to say, "there are over two places to play in town (in the winter) and I think that people are looking for a successful team to watch, especially with the dismal showing the Bobcats have had in recent years."

Gretzky, who has been an all-star center for the last 11 years with the Edmonton Oilers and Los Angeles Kings, could not be reached for comment. It is thought that his contract will be worth over 14 million dollars for the next two years. If the terms of this contract are accurate, Gretzky will be the highest paid sports performer in the world.

WANTED

Typical Montana Males

Out-of-state man wishes to acquire the finer qualities of the Montana Male. Through observation and imitation of characteristics of Real Men, I hope to swoon many a city woman with my newly acquired rustic attributes. Applicants must chew tobacco, drive a pickup equipped with gun rack, gun and dog, sport a pair of Wranglers without the patch, have at least one baseball cap with grease-laden ring, cowboy boots which have been re-soled more than twice, drink beer accompanied with appropriately timed belches, dance the two-step and the jitterbug with no sense of the beat of the music, know there is no better place to live than Montana and have never traveled out of state.

Only qualified Men need apply!
