In October of 1941 the ladies of the St. Paul English Lutheran Church gave their annual Fall Festival dinner. These dinners are very popular, and "everybody in town" goes, members of all denominations mingling with members of none in easy fellowship.

Long tables were set with mashed potatoes, gravy, salad, and relishes of many kinds. The meat course, mock chicken legs, brought the expected quips from the men. Dessert found favor with the latter, since it was pie. The ladies had made pumpkin pies, and bought apple pies of local bakeries, the latter eliciting jokes in comparisons with the pies "mother used to make."

The ladies are given opportunity to return with interest these sallies, when the Men's Brotherhood gives their annual dinner. (See interview with Rev. E. R. Jacobson.) The price asked for each of these dinners is 50¢. The ladies clear more money by doing their own cooking, but the amusement value of the men's dinner is greater.

The guild also puts on ice cream socials, especially during election years, when candidates can be counted upon to attend all such affairs.

On Ladies' Night, the guild serves a banquet to the Men's Brotherhood. It is the big social affair of the year, with 150 seated, and an outstanding speaker engaged.

The guild also serves a Fathers and Sons banquet annually.
