

Contributors

Catherine Carmichael graduated from Furman University in Greenville, South Carolina, in May 2010 with a BA in Communications Studies and English. After spending the summer working in Colorado and a brief stint in Japan, she is currently interning in the administrative department of a local hospital. She plans to attend graduate school in the fall of 2011 to obtain her master's in Healthcare Administration.

Michaela Cullington is a sophomore at Marywood University in Scranton, Pennsylvania. She will obtain her bachelor's and master's degrees in Speech and Language Pathology in May 2014. She works as a consultant in the writing and tutoring center at Marywood. She will also obtain her teaching certificate and is interested in the use of technology in the treatment of speech impairments.

Chelsea Curtis will graduate from Furman University in May 2011 with a double major in Communication Studies and Psychology. She currently works as a teaching assistant in the Digital Communications class at Furman and as an associate at the Furman computer help desk. She plans to seek a job in the advertising industry after graduation.

Jonathan Doucette plans to graduate from Oberlin College in 2011 with a BA in Comparative American Studies and a minor in English. He has had the pleasure of working as a writing associate for the Oberlin writing center and as a TA for a writing-intensive first-year seminar, HIV/AIDS in America. Jonathan hopes to become a professor of American Studies.

Brett Feldman, a sophomore, is a Presidential Scholar at the Boston University School of Education and a writing fellow at the Boston University writing center. He will graduate in the spring of 2013 with degrees in History and in Social Sciences Education and History. Brett intends to teach history and is considering a career in politics or the law.

Rachael Furman will graduate in May 2011 from Clark University with a BA in English and a BA in Women's and Gender Studies. She is currently the Senior Representative to the Chair of the English Department and was the recipient of the William H. Carter Jr. Prize in English for 2010. She intends to continue her studies at Clark University as a graduate student, earning a Master of Arts in Teaching during the 2011–12 academic year.

Eliza J. Gettel is a junior at the College of the Holy Cross in Worcester, Massachusetts, where she works as a tutor in the writer's workshop. A Classics major, Eliza spent her junior year studying in Athens and Rome. After graduation, she hopes to pursue graduate school in Classics or Classical Archaeology with the goal of ultimately becoming a professor.

Victoria Heckenlaible, studying Rhetoric and Writing at the University of Texas in Austin, will be graduating in May 2012. She plans afterward to continue her education or join the Peace Corps. This past semester Victoria studied Arabic and Middle Eastern culture in Amman, Jordan. She hopes to combine her interest in writing and the Middle East for a career in political writing or journalism.

Robin Martin will graduate in May 2011 with a BA in Professional Writing and English Secondary Education from York College of Pennsylvania, where she is currently a writing fellow and tutor. After spending her summer abroad, she intends to teach high school English and work on her master's degree in Rhetoric and Composition or Spanish Education.

Travis Maynard graduated magna cum laude from Lexington, Kentucky's Transylvania University in May 2010 with a BA in Writing, Rhetoric, and Communication and a minor in Philosophy. In April 2010, he presented an earlier version of this article at the Theodore Clevenger Jr. Undergraduate Honors Conference, part of the Southern States Communication Association's annual convention. Travis is currently applying to various graduate programs in Rhetoric and Composition and has lofty aspirations of obtaining his PhD.

Carrie H. Patterson graduated in August 2010 with a BA in Speech Communication from Baylor University. While at Baylor, she was an officer of Alpha Delta Pi sorority. She currently works as a design consultant for the Pharmacy Design Group in McKinney, Texas.

Margaret Schmidt will be graduating from Pennsylvania State University in the spring of 2011 with a BA in English and Spanish. She plans to attend law school in the fall and pursue a career in international law.

Andy Stewart graduated in May 2010 with degrees in English and Communication Studies from Furman University, where he served as the editor-in-chief of the student newspaper. He is currently taking a year off, living and working as a ski instructor in Dillon, Colorado, and contemplating the next stage of his life.

Janel Walton graduated cum laude from the University of Alaska, Anchorage in the spring of 2009 with a BA in English, a minor in History, and her honors in English. She was awarded the 2009 UAA Consortium Library Prize for a previous version of this paper. In May 2010, she graduated with an MA in Teaching, and she is currently working as a high school English teacher.

